Lacy Blouses Now Popular With Velvet Evening Suits

TORONTO (CP)—Ruffles and lace, which we regard as feminine fripperies, have been popular with the males in three periods of history.

The Stuarts liked ruffled lace collars; the Regency dandies of the early 19th century were partial to ruffled shirts and wrist ruffs, and a couple of years ago the Mods were sporting elegant shirts with frilled fronts of lingerie lace.

Now the ladies have taken the frills and lace back to themselves again. These Dandy blouses are ideal companions with velvet evening suits. Such is Ship n' Shore's white dacron crepe with lace jabot and wide lace cuffs, worn with a black velvet pants suit, or their sheer voile blouse with lace edging the tucked yoke and bordering the buttoned cuffs, worn with a scrolled black velvet skirted-suit. And Canadian Sabre Slims featured this fall an arnel white blouse with deep ruffled lace cuffs and ruffed collar.

A large Canadian department store has already given an entire fashion page in local newspapers to several Dandy styles in arnel and acetate lace, including full ruffled collar, jabot and deep wrist cuffs, and a completely ruffled front and small ruffles below a banded three-quarter-length sleeve.

BRUMMEL LED WAY

The word Dandy did not come into our vocabulary until 1818. Before then the high-spirited young males were called Bloods. The Dandies wanted to be regarded more for foppish elegance than as dashing fellows. Beau Brummel set the stage. His middle-class background did not prevent him becoming a crony of the Prince Regent, later King George IV. In this high social strata he became the recognized leader of fashion.

Brummel stressed complete perfection in every aspect of dress. Actually he himself dressed in a comparatively simple manner. It was the romantic poet, Lord Byron, who was mainly responsible for the ruffled Dandy look.

Byron was a romanticist and extremely popular. Men copied whatever he wore. Byron became tired of the fashionable cravat, so beloved of Brummel, that pushed up right under the chin. He did away with it and let his long pointed soft collar fall down in a sort of cascade. It started the frilled romantic look.

But if the Dandy blouse is being featured for late - day suits, Pat Sandler of Highlight has introduced a no-blouse suit for spring. It isn't another topless look such as the swimwear of a couple of seasons ago, designed by Rudi Gernreich. It's a bra suit. Buttoned up, the suit appears completely modest and normal. Take off the jacket and there is a matching bra. Midriffs are nothing new but the bra does provide a certain shock.

SHORTER PANTS APPEAR

It's a little early to be positive of what spring will emphasize but there are ripples of interest in a short version of the pants suit: Top New York designers now are showing advance spring models to buyers and special customers. Several have included shows - for - knees pants in both street and evening suits.

Donald Brooks, for example, combined short pants under a matching brash plaid coat. One designer favored a culotted suit in printed silk. Originals teamed narrow short trousers under hip-length jackets.

However this does not mean that this mini-trousered suit will be a leading contender for top place in spring fashions. Many of the styles shown in the first few weeks of any new collection do not always meet with store buyers' approval and are subsequently dropped from the fashion firm's line. So it will be interesting to see whether the shortened pants suit catches on. Certainly Canadian women will eye it with caution. And since it is undoubtedly in a boyish tradition, the elegant ruffled Dandy blouse will definitely not be partnered with the abbreviated look.

Spring will, however, run to brilliant colors. Since colors have to be decided practically a year in advance, they do remain firm. Sometimes, of course, one color may turn out to be more in demand than anticipated but the over-all picture doesn't change.

Cadi Acquits Beattie Of Inciting Hatred

TORONTO (CP) — William John Beattie, Canadian Nazi party leader, was acquitted Wednesday on a charge of using language likely to stir up hatred against Jews and Negroes.

Magistrate Charles Oppet said freedom of speech is a matter for legislation only by Parliament, and is beyond the legislative powers of a municipal council.

Beattie was charged under a city bylaw in connection with a speech June 19 in Toronto's Allan Gardens. The bylaw is against inciting racial hatred in city park speeches.

Court was told that a double ring of detectives and mounted policemen surrounded Beattie during his speech and held back an angry crowd of more than 2,000.

Magistrate Oppet said in his judgment: "The idea of freedom of speech is woven through the fabric of British justice as we have known it . . . and still continues.

"I believe that this right, no matter how trying the circumstances may be, should not be tampered with lightly and particularly on a local basis or even on a provincial basis, but that there should be one law in this connection for every Canadian resident."

Safe-driving Week's Toll Is 74 Dead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 74 persons died in traffic mishaps across Canada during Safe-Driving Week which ended Wednesday.

The seven-day total was two fewer than last year's 76 fatalities, but 15 more than the average of 59 deaths during Safe-Driving Week in the last 10 years.

Safe-Driving Week Dec. 1-7, is sponsored by the Canadian Highway Safety Council which this year had hoped the week's toll would remain below the 10-year average.

Town Council Studies Water Pipe-line Plan

DESERONTO — A letter from the Ontario Water Resources Commission informed the Deseronto Town Council that the proposal to build a provincially owned pipe line from Napanee to supply water to Deseronto would not be acted upon until "communications from the various municipalities are received regarding its acceptability."

Each member of council now has a copy of the proposed plan furnished at the Nov. 18 meeting with the Commission in Napanee. The communication was filed at Monday's meeting to give the council an opportunity to study the plan before coming to a decision.

A letter from Clark Rollins, M.P.P., advised the council that consideration was being given to the adjustment of the Land O' Lakes Tourist Region boundaries. There was the possibility of a meeting to discuss this proposal, he said. The council members indicated their desire to attend any such meeting.

A letter from the town of Wiarton wished support for a proposal to petition the government to assess certain property which is now tax free. Property such as the Brewers Warehouse and the Liquor Control Board should be subject to the same tax as properties belonging to the Bell Telephone Co., Wiarton says. The communication was filed.

Council agreed to pay the county rates this year, instead of holding them back a year as has been the habit for some time. This amounts to approximately $24,000.

The chief of the Volunteer Fire Department and his 16 men will receive their annual salaries. Council voted the necessary $3,375 for this purpose.

Council members agreed to order the required markers for Centennial Park. The design chosen by the women's committee and approved by the entire committee will be used.

Deseronto has 11 heads of families with 53 dependants, as well as 18 single people, receiving welfare assistance, council learned.

Police Urge Yule Season Safe Driving

NAPANEE — "Drive with extreme care as the festive season approaches," urges Safety Officer J. E. Elliott in his weekly report for the Napanee Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Last week safety was taught to 385 children in the Tamworth and Newburgh public schools.

During the week officers of the Napanee detachment were on duty a total of 966 hours, and drove 9,035 miles patrolling highways and roads. During this time they laid 14 charges under the Highway Traffic Act, checked 66 motor vehicles, and issued 14 warnings. They also investigated five property damage accidents, with four people injured in three of these.

According to the report, people were more law abiding than usual last week. There were no "break and enters," and only one minor theft investigated. They investigated seven disturbances and 23 other miscellaneous occurrences.

Unemployment Situation Better Than Last Year

NAPANEE — Thanks to the Napanee Industries, Ltd., the unemployment situation is not as bad here as in some other areas, local office of the Manpower Services has reported. At the end of November 241 males and 118 females were seeking work, 90 fewer than at the same time in 1965.

During November, the Napanee Industries took on between 90 and 95 new men, and welders were brought in from other places, including Belleville, Trenton, Cornwall and Sudbury, to fill the demand. The company is now training welders on the premises. There are still vacancies for qualified men.

Food Prices Committee Plans to Take the Show on the Road

OTTAWA (CP) — The parliamentary food prices committee will hit the road to hear from consumers across the country, members told delegates to an organizing convention for a national consumers' protest group Wednesday night.

Reid Scott, NDP member of Parliament for Toronto - Danforth, told about 30 delegates the committee decided to go to the consumers "because they can't afford to send delegates here."

M. T. McCutcheon, Conservative MP for Lambton West who also addressed the meeting, said later the committee will probably be on the road by Feb. 3, 1967.

The group will hear from organized consumers' groups and individuals who can "just walk in—like they did tonight."

The MPs got some animated backchat from the delegates, mostly women, who came from Toronto, Montreal, Windsor, Fort William, Port Arthur, Hamilton, Brantford, Halifax and St.Jo hn.

Groups from Vancouver and Winnipeg were held up in Toronto when their plane was grounded.

The meeting was organized by Mrs. Lawrence Wilson of Manotick, a small community just outside Ottawa. She started the supermarket boycott movement here about two months ago.

The consumers group will hold an organization meeting tonight and elect officers later. They hope to present a brief to the parliamentary food prices committee, probably some time in the new year.

Briefs have already been submitted to the Ottawa group by protest organizations across the country. An economist heading the research branch of Mrs. Wilson's group is condensing them for submission.

Mrs. Wilson said the national organization might arrange a coast - to - coast boycott "on a given product or a given chain of stores."

She said the Ottawa boycott had resulted in food prices going down about seven per cent since Nov. 1.

"But this is the crucial period. We can't just stop now."

In his speech, Mr. Scott said advertising agencies are "a bunch of bandits who bean TV advertising at children before they can even talk."

Later he told reporters advertising agencies had told the parliamentary committee they sold children on cereal by identifying it with a cartoon character.

Children would then "blackmail" their mother into buying the brand at the supermarket when she was rushed and had other small children in tow.

He said advertising should tell "the worth of the product and its advantages."

In his speech, he said, a permanent prices review board for the food industry might be able to stop the gouging and profiteering.

Warren Allmand, Liberal member for Montreal - Notre-Dame-de-Grace, told delegates the food committee's report would possibly recommend a department of consumer affairs, which could investigate and lay charges on complaints from consumers.

EXPECTED SOON

The committee's interim report is expected about mid-December. Mr. Allmand said it might also contain recommendations on grading of products and size and labelling of packages "so you could tell what was in there besides air and water."

He advised the group to direct their action also to provincial governments.

Mr. McCutcheon, a farmer, said he "firmly believed" there would be a world - wide food shortage in years to come.

In answer to Mrs. Susan Hammond of Hamilton, who said butter was rotting in storage and tomatoes had been dumped under rather than sold "out Leamington way," Mr. McCutcheon said a heavy rain storm followed by hot weather had "virtually boiled the tomatoes."

"A lot of you consumers wouldn't have wanted them if they'd been put in cans."

Mrs. James Palmer of Halifax told the MPs she was "horrified and amazed" that they asked consumers to go back and do research on their local food situations.

"We're paying you to do it. It's a racket. You know it's there. We can't do any more than we're doing."

Delegates hooted when Mr. Scott said "we don't have a lot of money either." He said he could guarantee that if they formed a national organization "you will be heard."

Pope Warns Netherlands Be Cautious on Doctrine

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul, in a letter made public Wednesday, warned the Roman Catholic hierarchy in The Netherlands to be cautious on basic tenets of doctrine and faith.

It was the most direct public admonition yet by the pontiff to a national hierarchy known to have been causing him deep concern.

The Dutch Roman Catholic community is among the most progressive in the world. Past warnings by the Pope against changes in attitude on the meaning of the Eucharist, the virginity of Mary and belief in the resurrection have been described by Vatican informants as partially caused by debate in Dutch Catholic circles.

The Pope's letter was addressed to a recent meeting of Dutch bishops convened to discuss effects of the Vatican ecumenical council. The letter said the Pope expected from them "a clear and firm profession of faith that will remove any doubt on its genuine formulation . . ." He said he hoped their meeting would have the effect of "putting the brakes on certain unconsidered and erroneous opinions which recently have obscured, as is known, in certain points of the faith and upset the firmness and serenity of many believing Catholics."

The letter, dated Nov. 22, was sent to the Dutch hierarchy then, but was released here only Wednesday.

Hellyer

Unification Best Method To Fulfill Future Role

PAUL HELLYER

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer fired the opening rounds Wednesday in the Commons debate on unification of the armed forces by declaring it is the best way Canada can meet its future military demands.

Division of the forces now into the RCAF, the RCN and the Canadian Army imposes restrictions that "should be removed in the interests of the most effective military forces and in the interest of the men and women who belong to the force," he declared.

Conservative Marcel Lambert charged that Canada's basic defence policy is to provide peacekeeping forces for the United Nations. This policy could have little future since peace-keeping now is in bad odor at the world organization.

The Edmonton MP, veterans' affairs minister in the former Diefenbaker administration and Opposition defence critic, also accused Mr. Hellyer of abandoning the defence of Canada to the United States.

Mr. Hellyer and Mr. Lambert were the only speakers as the Commons opened debate on the unification bill, introduced Nov. 4.

Today the government tries again to introduce emergency legislation to halt the work stoppage at British Columbia ports. It failed to get the necessary unanimous consent of the Commons Wednesday when independent MP Gilles Gregoire was the sole dissenter.

Failing necessary consent, the Commons will be asked to give its final approval to the government's medical care insurance bill.

In a 105-minute speech, Mr. Hellyer outlined government reasoning for merging the forces. This included savings in money and manpower as well as increased efficiency.

He conceded that unification will mean heavy hearts for some. But he hoped these people will see that "the single service is born with the great heritages of the three services that is its life blood."

The single service raised questions of esprit de corps which was so important in a military force and it wouldn't be surprising if man had difficulty under the new set-up.

"One force, with one name, a common uniform, and common rank designations will nurture this total family loyalty," the minister said.

Mr. Hellyer noted the high interest in the uniform for the new force and said it will not be issued to all for up to five years. In the meantime current uniforms are to be worn.

A sudden break from old rank designations would be difficult for some, Mr. Hellyer said, and he intends to authorize new force members to retain those of their former service.

The new rank structure follows mostly that of the army. Units and elements of the new force will be the same as existing ones.

Mr. Hellyer promised full information on conditions of service in the new force before the unification bill is acted upon.

"Present members of the forces will be guaranteed under provisions of the bill that they will not be required to perform duty they could not have been required to perform in the service to which they belong."

On this account, no special provision is being made for retirement pensions. Those wishing to retire earlier will have the usual adjustments in pensions but these are normal adjustments and in no way a pension penalty.

New recruits will be signed for a five-year period. If the engagement is mutually satisfactory, men could be re-engaged for an indefinite period. Either the force or the men could give six-month notice, placing non-commissioned ranks on the same footing as officers.

Mr. Lambert said specializing in peace-keeping would make Canada a military satellite of the U.S. American troops and installations would be on Canadian soil to defend Canada.

Unification also didn't fit into the country's NATO commitments, where the navy had a big role to play.

The navy was being scuttled because it didn't fit into Mr. Hellyer's one force, he said.

Landymore

Opposition to Plan "Most Important Duty of Career"

HALIFAX (CP)—Rear Admiral William Landymore intensified his attack on unification of the armed services Wednesday, describing the program as a threat to Canada's defence and his opposition to it as the most important duty of his career.

The former sea operations chief, fired last summer by Defence Minister Hellyer for opposing the unification plan, released a 29-page brief which he had written for the Commons defence committee but which he now feels will never be presented.

The brief blasted the unification program as uneconomic, demoralizing, destructive and little more than "change for the sake of change."

The 50-year-old admiral, veteran of 30 years and best known in the Canadian navy, said unification presents "potential danger to the country's defence," threatens morale and will lead to a crippling exodus of serving officers and men.

Admiral Landymore, who survived the 1940 sinking of the destroyers Fraser and Margaree, said unification will sink the navy with projected reductions in manpower leaving eight or nine destroyers without crews by as early as next June.

The brief says the admiral was dismissed three days before he publicly criticized unification last July 15. And his private refusal to co-operate with the minister's program—not his public criticism of it—was the true reason for his dismissal.

The brief also describes how naval officers reacted to unification. "They tried desperately to tell me they didn't like the idea," the admiral said. "I couldn't escape the message they gave me—they were pinning their hopes on me to do something to save the navy."

He said "the public has been duped into believing unification is the end all and be all of integration. I predict it will be the end of effective defence of Canada and I don't envy you (the committee) your task of explaining your mistake if you support it."

New uniforms for a unified force — uniforms most serving officers and men don't want—would cost $80,000,000. Canada could build two fleet replenishment ships for the same amount.

The brief asks the defence committee to call an immediate halt to all processes of unification and launch a thorough inquiry into the program.

Effectiveness of the armed services would be impaired for years "due to misplaced enthusiasm for the untimely exercise and destructive experiment of unification."

The program would leave Canada's defence "woefully inadequate" and would prohibit the country from meeting its commitments to NATO.

Admiral Landymore said chiefs of staff in Britain, the United States and all NATO countries were convinced that navies have a distinct and separate role to play.

He describes unification as futile, expensive, folly, dangerous and destructive.

Wiretapping 'Too Common'

TORONTO (CP) — Aubrey Golden of the Canadian Bar Association says police are using wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping equipment to an extent that would "drastically shake public confidence" if it became generally known.

Mr. Golden, vice-chairman of the bar association's sub-section on civil liberties, lashed out at public complacency which allows such "snooping" by police and private investigators. He was speaking Tuesday night at a panel discussion sponsored by the Canadian Civil Liberties Association.

Steel Industry Predicts Layoffs if Decline Continues

MONTREAL (CP)—Steel industry officials said Wednesday more layoffs are expected soon in the Canadian steel industry if a current downward trend in orders continues.

The three largest producers have recently been forced to make small-scale layoffs but larger layoffs can be expected, they said.

A number of faciors have contributed to the general market decline, including some inventory adjustments by steel-using firms and the normal quieter period at this time of year in construction.

"In the case of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp.," said an official, "a number of anticipated overseas orders had not developed and a strike at the company's Montreal works had resulted in a loss of a sizable quantity of semi-finished steel shipments."

The United Steelworkers of America called the strike against the Montreal plant Oct. 21 when 1,000 men walked off their jobs demanding wage parity with workers at the Hamilton plant of the Steel Co. of Canada. The dispute has not yet been resolved.

Dosco was forced to reduce operations at its mill in Contrecoeur, about 20 miles east of Montreal, by "somewhat less than 50 per cent," a company spokesman said.

He said "there could be more layoffs" in Contrecoeur, where about 40 men have already been put out of work.

Dosco reduced the work force at Sydney, N.S., by another 150 men, bringing to 300 the number of laid off workers in the Sydney plant since last week.

The Steel Co. of Canada has laid off 560 workers at its Hamilton plant and Dominion Foundries 25 workers and added that "there likely will be more."

A Dosco spokesman said the strike at the Montreal plant was partially to blame for the layoff of workers in Contrecoeur because of a shortage of the right kind of steel supplies.

He said the company offered to increase the wages to a basic scale of $2.41 an hour from $1.95, bringing them to within seven cents of the basic Stelco hourly rate.

Talks between both sides broke off Nov. 29 when the company refused to agree to the union's demand to reduce operations at the Montreal plant to a five-day from a seven-day week.

Seasonal Ripple

U.S. Experiencing Wave of Labor Layoffs

NEW YORK (AP)—A small wave of worker layoffs was noted this week in the U.S. automobile, appliance and construction industries. Companies experiencing slumps in some sales have cut 1967 production.

An Associated Press survey found some layoffs were merely seasonal and limited to a few days or weeks. But others were unexpected and some of indefinite duration.

Layoffs in the auto industry reflected expectations of slower car sales, at least in the first half of 1967.

Lagging sales of large appliances also will cause a large but brief layoff of 5,000 General Electric employees. GE said the layoffs—in household refrigeration, dishwasher and disposal manufacturing units at Louisville, Ky.—would be for five days, starting Dec. 15, "to bring factory inventories into line with factory sales."

The year-long slump in the construction industry, coupled with cuts on federal highway programs also caused production cuts in the construction machinery industry. One of the largest, Caterpillar Tractor Co., said the reduction was not sufficient to cause layoffs but that it would eliminate overtime pay.

And in Oregon, layoffs in the lumber industry have mounted to 7,000, reflecting the poor market for lumber resulting from the construction drop.

General Motors two weeks ago announced an 8.3-per-cent 1967 production cut, and then followed it up last Monday by announcing layoffs of 4,000 workers around the U.S.

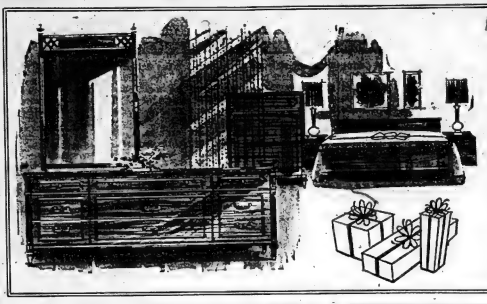
About 2,100 workers were laid off in Atlanta, 900 more were to be furloughed by the end of the year in Arlington, Tex., and the others were in St. Louis and Willow Run, Mich.

GM said more layoffs were planned by Jan. 9 at six other plants. In all, GM has 23 assembly plants in the U.S.

Chrysler Corp. became the second of the big-three auto makers to cut employment, announcing it will lay off 450 of 4,700 hourly and salaried workers at the Lynch Road plant in Detroit and another 270 at its 2,100-man Los Angeles plant effective Jan. 3.

Ford Motor Co., and American Motors said that they plan no layoffs. But a Ford spokesman in Kansas City noted "on schedule only for this week and the next."

In Windsor, a Chrysler Canada spokesman said no layoffs are planned but indicated there may be a cutback in overtime early in the new year.



Chrysler Canada also has said it is examining its budget to see whether some cost-savings programs can be instituted.

A Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., spokesman at Oakville, said no layoffs are planned and Ford is operating normally on two regular 40-hours-a-week shifts at the car plant and two of 48 hours at the truck plant.

At Brampton an American Motors Canada Ltd. official said there are "no plans whatsoever" for any layoffs. "Everything is in fine shape," he said.

A General Motors of Canada spokesman said at Oshawa: "We haven't changed our schedules" which means that as of now we have no plans for anything that would change our work forces."

Forced Sales 'Unfair'

TORONTO (CP)—The Bureau of Municipal Research says legislation should be changed "to put owners (of properties being expropriated) on a more nearly equal footing with the expropriators."

The bureau says in the current issue of Civic Affairs changes in legislation are needed to cut down the increasing number of "heated" fights that flare up over expropriations.

The bureau is a privately-supported organization which publishes studies on aspects of local government.

Its publications are mailed to some 1,200 elected and appointed civic officials, businesses, private individuals and other interested parties.

LIST HANDICAPS

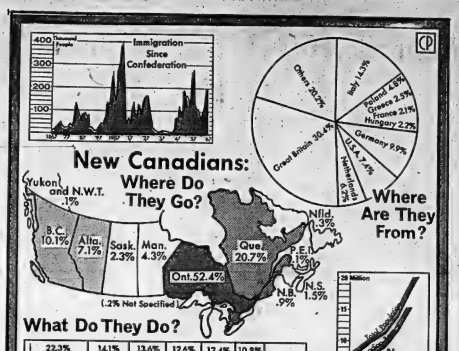
Civic Affairs says many of those whose properties were taken over found they could be shortchanged because:

1. The expropriating authority doesn't have to tell them how it arrived at the cash offer it makes. It doesn't have to reveal its appraisals.

2. There is no guarantee in most cases that the expropriated owner will be reimbursed for his expenses for moving, hiring legal advice, decorating new premises or paying higher mortgage rates than previously.

The bureau recommends that "owners be granted, as a matter of right, all the information and reasonable professional assistance they require to establish their legal position and the fair value of their property.

The expropriator should tell the owner the market value of the property, so that the owner should then be able to claim additional compensation for specific loss and relocation costs.



The bureau said there are 2,000 expropriating authorities in all of Ontario, which can force property owners to sell.

Jakarta Returns Property

JAKARTA (AP)—Indonesia's cabinet presidium Wednesday decided to return all foreign property seized during the confrontation against Malaysia, government sources said.

An announcement from the presidium meeting said plans were under way to increase production on the seized plantations and companies. But the sources said this meant putting them back under foreign control.

Among the firms to have property returned are Goodyear rubber plantations in Sumatra, British rubber and rice plantations in Java, the British Unilever products plant and British and American tobacco plantations. Production fell steadily since takeover at the height of Communist party influence.

Canada's Immigration since 1867 has been an on-again-off-again affair affected by wars, depressions and government campaigns for settlers. The figures range from nearly half a million immigrants in 1913 to less than 10,000 a year during the Second World War.

Since 1945, more than half of the immigrants have settled in Ontario and nearly a third of them have been British citizens. More than 20 per cent planned to go into the manufacturing and mechanical trades, more than 12 per cent into professional, managerial and technical trades.

At the start of this century, one Canadian in five was foreign born. By 1961, the last census year in which the figures were collected, the ratio was about one in six, but the total population had grown from 5,000,000 to 18,000,000. This year there are more than 20,000,000 Canadians.

(CP Newsmap)

Typical Immigrant Heads For Big Eastern Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — Gerda Munsinger wasn't your typical Canadian immigrant but she did reflect average preferences when she headed for the big Eastern cities. Most post-war immigrants have.

They come from the industrial and business centres of Europe and most find their future in the plants, offices and construction sites of central Canada.

Of the 2,504,000 arrivals in the 1946-63 period, 52.4 per cent settled in Ontario and 20.7 per cent in Quebec.

"The immigrants who have come since 1946 have settled more widely throughout the country than in any previous period," says the recent white paper on immigration.

"They contributed 26 per cent to the Yukon's growth from 1951 to 1961, 33 per cent to Toronto's and almost 100 per cent to that of isolated Kitimat, B.C."

Yet opportunity and the sponsorship system, through which 900,000 post-war immigrants have entered Canada, pull most to Toronto and Montreal.

The bustling cities offer fast employment and a chance to settle in among relatives and friends while learning the language and customs of the New World.

The combination is irresistible.

"It is still true to say that immigration effectively begins at the island of Montreal and goes west," the white paper declares. "The rate to areas east of the Ottawa River is generally low."

Only about 2.8 per cent of the arrivals since 1946 have settled in the Atlantic provinces. More than half of these are in Nova Scotia.

Next to Ontario and Quebec, British Columbia attracts the greatest percentage at 10.1. It is the natural landing for Pacific emigrants and its name and heritage still draw many British newcomers.

The Prairie provinces, which attracted hundreds of thousands of homesteaders in the first 14 years of the century, have become home for only 13.7 per cent of post-war immigrants.

Booming industrialized Alberta has taken 11 per cent, Manitoba 4.3 per cent and Saskatchewan 2.3 per cent.

Only one-tenth of one per cent of the post-war immigrants have settled in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

But this works out to about 2,500 people and they tend to be highly skilled. Among the 135 who went north last year, 69 were workers and these included two mining engineers, a chemist, a physicist, two teachers and five nurses.

The 1946-63 figures show that of those entering the labor force, 22.3 per cent go into manufacturing, 14.1 per cent into farming, 13.6 per cent into clerical and sales work, 12.6 into service industries, 12.4 per cent into professional jobs and 10.8 into labor.

Actual trends in this decade are much different, although manufacturing still leads the list of occupations among newcomers.

There were 146,758 immigrants in 1963 and 74,195 were in easier the labor force. Among these, professionals out-numbered farmers 7 to 1.

Led by the British, Europe continues to supply the overwhelming majority of new Canadians. Since 1946, Britain has accounted for 30.4 per cent, Italy 14.3 per cent and Germany 9.9 per cent.

Americans follow at 7.4 per cent, 6.2 per cent are Dutch, 4.8 per cent Poles, 2.5 per cent Greek, 2.2 per cent Hungarians and 2.1 per cent French.

The Hungarians mostly arrived in 1956-57 as a result of a rebellion, the kind of upheaval that historically has spurred emigration.

A developing trend is seen in the number of Asians, mostly Indians, Chinese and Japanese, coming to Canada in the 1960s. There is a backlog of applications at New Delhi.

A study aimed at finding out why there aren't more immigrants of French descent is under way. One major reason is that France is such a comfortable place to live.

French immigration was dealt a double blow in the 18th century, first by the English conquest of Quebec, then by the French revolution of 1789.

Immigrants who arrive with little knowledge of either language tend to learn English, even if they settle in Montreal.

Fulton Fends Off Heckler

OTTAWA (CP) — Davie Fulton, a possible candidate for the Conservative party leadership, fended off a persistent heckler at a student meeting Wednesday and refused to discuss John Diefenbaker's leadership.

Mr. Fulton, who held the works and justice portfolios in the Diefenbaker government, supported the national Conservative association's call for a leadership convention in 1967 but refused to "get into personalities."

He had to bat down a stubborn questioner at a meeting at the Carleton University Student Conservative Club.

The student asked Mr. Fulton, who represents the Kamloops riding, why the party had kept Mr. Diefenbaker as leader for so long.

REFERS TO LOYALTY

Mr. Fulton began to reply that there were "things such as loyalty" when he was interrupted by the student's interjection: "You mean no guts?"

"I'm not going to get into personalities," replied Mr. Fulton.

To his comment that he could make "invidious comparisons" between Mr. Diefenbaker and Prime Minister Pearson, a student shouted: "Go, go Davie."

He was asked about the apparent split in the Conservative parliamentary caucus and the national association. The caucus had recently produced a petition with 71 of 95 MPs supporting Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership.

Mr. Fulton said it is inconceivable that any group in the party would defy the decision by the national association to hold a leadership convention. He couldn't see "any responsible element" in the party going against that decision.

Allard Visiting France

PARIS (Reuter)—Gen. Jean Allard, Canada's chief of defence staff, visited the underground headquarters of France's nuclear strike force at Taverny, near here, Wednesday.

But Allard, on the third day of a five-day official visit, had to cancel a helicopter flight to the Canadian war memorial at Vimy Ridge in northern France because of low clouds.

Allard had talks Monday with Armed Forces Minister Pierre Mesmer but neither the Canadian embassy nor the French ministry disclosed the subject of these talks.

The Canadian general is officially returning a visit made to Canada by the French armed forces chief of staff, Gen. Charles Ailleret, in June, 1963. But his visit has been regarded as having special importance because of close Franco-Canadian relations in political, military, economic cultural and scientific fields.

Another Gangland Victim

The body of Joseph D'Amico, 27, of Boston lies in front seat of car. A volley of shots apparently fired from two passing cars killed D'Amico in what police said was the 36th gangland killing in the Boston area in 2½ years. Police said D'Amico was a passenger in a car driven by James Kerns, 28, of Boston. Kerns was charged with being an accessory after the fact of murder. (AP Wirephoto)

Toronto Man Fined $2,000 for Deceptive Advertising

TORONTO (CP)—Solly Budd, 40, president of Windsor-Mac-tin Canada Ltd., Wednesday was sentenced to a fine of $2,000 or six months in jail after pleading guilty to deceptive or misleading advertising.

Judge Harry Walsberg said Budd couldn't be assessed a nominal fine "which might be looked upon as a license fee." The maximum jail term is five years.

Police evidence was that Budd distributed 1,000,000 pamphlets advertising a car engine device called Din or Ac which claimed to cut gasoline consumption by 50 per centin

An engineer's report said the device would produce a fuel consumption by 50 per cent.

The judge said Budd had grossed more than $175,000 on money-back guarantee "that the venture and had given a[ ]was carried out."

PCs Say Policy Study Aimed at Unity

OTTAWA (CP)—Several Conservative MPs say their planned policy meeting this weekend has been wrongly painted as a move to strengthen the hand of the largely pro-Diefenbaker caucus in the party's infighting over leadership.

Some are miffed at Alvin Hamilton (PC — Qu'Appelle) whose press conference Friday announcing the meeting touched off the wave of speculation. Part of it included suggestions the caucus was infringing on the party association's role as policy-maker.

After Wednesday's caucus meeting, J. Waldo Monteith, the chairman, tried to shoot that one down with a carefully worded statement.

It said the caucus discussion will be reported in the resolutions committee of the association. Implicit there is recognition that the caucus is not trying to bypass the association on policy.

"We're not trying to get into a fight with anybody," one MP said. Mr. Hamilton was not authorized by the caucus to be the spokesman on the matter, he added, although anybody had the right to call a press conference.

One aim of the policy conference is to try to unify the party, badly split at last month's convention which voted to hold a leadership convention next year. A minority of the federal caucus supported the leadership review idea while the majority wanted John Diefenbaker to remain.

The widespread interpretation that the forthcoming policy meeting was another round in that battle palsied several MPs who said it was all done in the name of unity.

They said even the anti-Diefenbaker minority in the caucus strongly supported the idea of a caucus policy-making conference. One or two at least will be panel chairmen. The decision to hold policy session was unanimous.

LBJ Not Talking as Much Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been a strange development in President Johnson which may have gone unnoticed because, while he may seem to be talking as much as ever, he really isn't.

He has been talking in press conferences for months but that is scattered talk on a variety of subjects, not detailed and not in any sense full explanations on serious subjects.

He has not been making national speeches or explanations as he did in his early White House days. As a result he has become more remote from the people.

And as a result of that his popularity and the public's confidence in him have sagged. For example, it has been a long time since he took to the airways to talk about Viet Nam.

All that's been coming out of Texas about the American economy as far is a jumble. He will, of course, have the opportunity to be clear and specific about this in January in his budget and economic and State of the Union messages.

Meanwhile, a rather puzzled public waits. But that he is losing ground with the public was illustrated in two public opinion polls published this week by George Gallup and Louis Harris.

The latest Gallup poll, which at the beginning of 1966 showed 63 per cent approving the way Johnson did his job, showed only 48 per cent did, although this was a four-point increase from October.

Gallup attributed the downward trend to disenchantment with the "Great Society" and the course of the war in Viet Nam. In the latest survey, 43 per cent said they approved Johnson's handling of the war, 40 per cent didn't.

But the Harris polls was even gloomier. Harris found only 42 per cent approved Johnson's handling of the war, a seven-point drop since his trip to the Manila conference in October.

FIRST NOMINATION—Village clerk Garrett Morton chalks up first name presented for possible election — that of Mrs. Amelia Bosley.

TWEED (Staff) — This village's heady flirtation with an all - woman municipal council for 1967 foundered last night.

But the end of the romance leaves no one holding the baby for the responsibility of local government.

Instead, the whole village has closed ranks to redress a recent disastrous nomination meeting that produced only two women to man the five - member village council.

A second nomination meeting last night saw 12 people nominated for possible election to the remaining three seats.

The possibility of a fully female council receded as only four women were nominated and several of the men proposed for office indicated they also may run.

For the women, only, Mrs. Jeannette Whitfield, gave a definite commitment to seek election. And, for good measure, she made her acceptance in English and French.

"If my nomination is accepted I'll do my very best to serve this community in every way possible," she told her fellow — and female — villagers who crowded the little council chamber for the event.

The other three women were reticent about committing themselves before tonight's qualification deadline when all candidates must signify their intentions.

The ladies-in-waiting on the deadline were:

Mrs. Amelia Bosley — "At the present time I'm non-committal."

Mrs. Sandra Thompson — "I decided to run because I didn't think there was anybody else in Tweed interested in doing the job. But it appears the situation has changed so I think I'll wait until tomorrow evening."

Mrs. George Sinclair — "I'll certainly give some serious thought (to a decision) before tomorrow."

However, they decide, the women already have successfully contributed to pulling the village out of its municipal affairs lethargy. The possibility that Tweed might be solely run by women made the national news wires in recent days — and the publicity seems to have generated a new community spirit in the village.

For their effectiveness, they were handed several verbal bouquets last night.

"This is as many nominations as we've had for reeve, council school board and public utilities put together for quite a while," enthused village clerk Garrett Morton as he chalked nominees' names on a blackboard. "It seems it pays to advertise."

Added a spectator: "This is the best thing that ever happened to this place since running water."

"I think it would be unique for Tweed to have a female council," Burton Thompson, former councillor, told the meeting.

"I know there's been a kind of movement afoot in the past few days to get rid of the idea. But I feel it would be a bit of an advertisement — and a few of our good ladies might surprise us."

Reeve Guy Hughes enthused: "It's very wonderful to see so many people out to the second nomination. I wish there had been this many for the first meeting."

Councillor Barbara Allen, acclaimed reeve for 1967 at the last, abortive nomination meeting, said the thought of an all-women council had grown on her — but it now looked as though there might be an election resulting in a council of both men and women.

Mrs. Allen's acclamation, along with that of Mrs. E. G. Cournyea as councillor, gave impetus to publicity for an all-woman local government.

Mr. Thompson was one of two men who committed themselves to an election.

"If there is an election my name will be on the ballot," he told the villagers.

Terrance Rabbitte, a Brewcomer to civic affairs also promised to accept the nomination — and I'll do as well as I can."

An Anglican clergyman also might seek election. He is Rev. Donald Sinclair, of St. James Church, who was acclaimed a councillor last year after the village had similar problems finding municipal representatives.

He noted he had never been chance of having to place himself before the people.

elected and now had a possible

Confessed the clergyman: "I don't like having served the people of Tweed for year without having their expression in the matter. I'll take the matter under consideration again for the next 24 hours."

If an election is necessary after tonight's qualifications are in, it will be held next Wednesday.

Those nominated last night were: Amelia Bosley, Ronald Way, Terrance Rabbitte, Robert A. Wood, Sandra Thompson, Burton Thompson, Heath J. Jones, Jeannette Whitfield, Charles W. Cassidy, Mrs. George Sinclair, Rev. Donald Sinclair and S. J. Lessard.

Happy With Choice

It Was Canada or Iron Curtain

The outlook was bleak for Polish patriots in 1946. They had fought for their country's freedom, only to return home and find their government in Communist hands. For many, it was a pill too bitter to swallow.

Emilion Kafka was one who had fought for Poland with the Allies, and who was unwilling to return to his native land under the post-war conditions existing there. In November of 1946, Emil arrived in Belleville, having signed a contract with Canadian government authorities permitting him to remain here for two years while working on an area farm. Mr. Kafka was one of 4,000 Poles who entered Canada that year under similar agreements and one of eight to settle in the Belleville district.

Now living with his family on the Trent Road, some four miles west of Belleville, Emil exemplifies a people that has known a history of persecution, and has inherited a tradition of fighting for survival.

"We only intended to be here a couple of years — we expected another war almost immediately between Russia and the Allies. But when it did not come, and my two-year contract was up, I had to decide whether to stay or return. I could not go back to a Communist country."

The decision to remain in Canada was not an easy one. He had left behind his mother and whatever members of a family of 11 had survived the bitter European conflict.

Emil was born in 1912 in Ciesa, near the Czechoslovakian border, in an area that was actually part of the mighty Austro-Hungarian Empire until after World War I.

Under the terms of Poland's compulsory military service scheme, he joined the army in 1933, serving two years in the Polish cavalry. Each year after the completion of his initial service, he was required to spend one month annually in military training.

With the outbreak of war, Emil, who had been a forest ranger, joined the Polish army. He was captured in 1939 and sent to a Siberian prisoner-of-war camp, where he remained until his release in 1941. A scant few months later, he joined the Second Polish Corps of the British 8th Army.

And then, after the initial exuberance of the Allied victory, came the sombre realization that his country had not won the freedom for which so many Poles had died, but was in the throes of a Russian-directed Communist take-over. Even the province where Emil was born became annexed by Russia as part of the Ukraine.

Mr. Kafka's first Canadian home was to be with a Consecon farmer, Ernie Pierson, who has since died. He worked on the Pierson farm for almost 14 months, then went to a Stirling area farm, working out the remainder of his two-year contract.

After making his decision to stay in Canada, Emil went to work at Belleville's Corbin Lock firm, where he has been an employee for the past 18 years.

Of his compatriots, and even his family, Emil knows neither where, or indeed, if any of them are still living. Aside from his mother, whom he brought to Canada in 1956 and who died in 1961, his last family contact came in 1947 from a brother in Argentina.

His father, wounded badly in World War I, had died in 1927.

Mr. Kafka knows the whereabouts of only one of the Polish veterans who accompanied him to Canada 20 years ago. Although an informal group known as the "Polish Combatants" used to meet in Belleville, the members gradually dispersed, many of them being attracted by the lights of bigger centres like Toronto, says Emil.

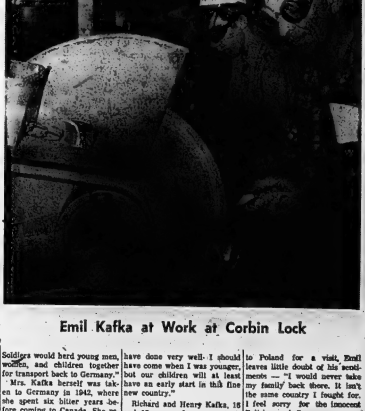
Emil met his wife Olga in Trenton in 1949, and they were married the same year. Mrs. Kafka's home in Poland had been some 80 miles from that of her husband, as it turned out.

Her memories of Europe paint as bleak a picture of Europe's bad years as do her husband's. "When the war was on, and the Nazis occupied Poland," she explained, "they recruited Polish people to work in their factories and on their farms while their men were at war killing Polish men. It was not unusual for townspeople to come out of church and find trucks waiting at the door. Soldiers would herd young men, women, and children together for transport back to Germany."

Mrs. Kafka herself was taken to Germany in 1942, where she spent six bitter years before coming to Canada. She related that many of her family were killed during the war, as were Emil's relatives.

The Kafka family has had little difficulty integrating into Canadian life. "The main problem we encountered at first was, of course, the language," says Emil. "But other than that, we have done very well. I should have come when I was younger, but our children will at least have an early start in this fine new country."

Richard and Henry Kafka, 15 and 15 years of age, are both Quinte Secondary School students, while 12-year-old Eddie attends public school in Bayside. The boys share music as a common interest, with the guitar and accordion being popular instruments in the Kafka household.



As to thoughts of returning to Poland for a visit, Emil leaves little doubt of his sentiments — "I would never take my family back there. It isn't the same country I fought for. I feel sorry for the innocent Polish people."

Mrs. Kafka agrees. "We feel like Canadians now, with no one always asking what you are doing or where you are going. We have lots of friends and neighbors, and although we weren't born here, we feel like adopted children."

From Shrinking to Expanding Nation

In one of Chicago's seamier sides and the haunts of the Moslem in Islam or wherever they be, the natives are getting restless.

Chicago's guitar-twanging troubadour of the ring one Ernie Terrell has signed the dance card of another Jose Mahammad Ali, Cassius Clay in the Missouri cotillerichs, for the Big Waltz to be staged in Houston, Texas come February 6th.

"This should," as the man said as he buried his mother-in-law "settle something at last."

Although both have the reputation of being pedallers of established repute, the result should settle once and for all that the world heavyweight championship is not a bicycle built for two.

Terrell is the world champion in the books of the World Boxing Association. In any other part of the globe Clay is recognized as the king of the heavyweights.

Although neither would win honors at a Murray School of Dancing International competition, both are believers in "He who fights and dances away, lives to collect the future hay."

If the gross gate lives up to the expectations of the promoters Mohammad will back away nearly a million in the saddlebags of his pink Cadillacs while Ernie the Crooner will bank over a quarter of that amount.

Under the terms of the contract Clay will get 50 per cent of the live gate and ancillary rights. Terrell will get 20 percent and 17½ per cent which includes television, (closed circuit) radio, movies, tapes etc.

And in case you're interested the huge Houston Astrosome has been scaled to do $200,000 with prices ranging from $5.00 to $100.00.

In the cold-war pre-bout era, as of now, lyrical lipplags are beginning to be heard from both camps.

Clay foams for his pre-fight blattings, predictions and whatnot was strangely silent in this respect while he was knocking off wobbly roadblocks on his championship trail. This, no doubt was because of his almost contemptuous disdain of the ability of the five challenger ten-pins he disposed of in four strikes and one spare.

But in the braggadocio preliminaries, Muhammad, it appears has met his match.

Terrell whose right hand can put a covey of cackling dowagers to sleep with a guitar rendition of Brahms Lullaby, or knock an opposing flagster bye-bye with the flagers rolled, has decided to play the Clay game of pre-fight predictions.

Up to this point one could call the insult-and- pepper exchanges a draw.

Terrell, as confident as a young fighting cock going to his first rooster riot says, "This is going to be a real pleasure. I never had a desire to beat someone like I want to beat him and I'm going to do it."

"I know I'm going to knock him out and I know he knows it too. The beauty of it is that I'm going to get paid for it. I'm going to prove once and for all that he's nothing but a big N/."

Unabashed Clay came back with, "Don't talk like that. Talking is my line. You're the WBA champion. That's your line."

"I'm tired of hearing everyone talking about you being the WBA champion. I'm the champion of everything. I'm going to show you — but good."

"I'm tired," Clay went on, "of hearing this one-arm bandit calling himself champion- I want to take a good rest after making six title defenses within a year but I gotta get rid of him. After I beat him I'll give him 24 hours to get out of town."

For once, physically that is, Clay will have to look up to an opponent and readjust the elevation of his jab machine guns. Terrell has the edge in height and reach. He believes in "Backward, dance backward, Ole Foot, is your flight."

Clay, in my opinion is the fastest heavyweight in history afoot, going both ways. Standing still he has lightning in his fists.

The limb? Not yet. The wallet is still wearing mourning bands to the memory of the Ottawa Rough Riders.

'And The Leafs Came Tumblin' Down'

ROD GILBERT

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Takeoff time may be here for Montreal Canadiens.

After a lead-footed start that put them in last place in the National Hockey League for the first time since 1948, there are increasing signs that the Flying Frenchmen have again learned to fly.

They thumped league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 Wednesday night for their third straight win to gain a little altitude, although they remain in fourth place behind New York Rangers, who beat Boston Bruins 4-2 in the other NHL game.

Rod Gilbert scored two goals to lead the Rangers to a come-from-behind win over Boston Bruins. Bob Nevin and Orland Kurtenbach scored the other New York goals. Ron Schock and Ted Green scored for Boston.

Richard's goal was his seventh of the season and 250th of his 13-year career with the Canadiens.

Richard reached the 250-goal mark when he beat Toronto netminder Terry Sawchuk from the corner of the net, after combining in a nifty three-way passing attack with Claude Provost and defenceman Jacques Laperriere.

Richard 30-year-old brother of Maurice (Rocket) Richard, one-time great with Canadiens who scored 544 goals in his career, moved into 13th place in the all-time NHL scoring leaders and 10th among still-active players with his first-period goal.

Richard said he is looking forward to at least another 30 goals in his career.

It was Canadiens' first win against the Leafs this year in five meetings. It also marked the first time that Montreal managed to score more than three goals in a game in 18 starts.

Leaf forward Eddie Shack was taken to hospital for observation after being hit by defenceman Ted Harris. First reports said Shack had a cut requiring 15 stitches over his right eye.

Harris was given a five-minute major penalty for elbowing Shack, who was caught trying to get full speed with his head down.

Both clubs used two goal-tenders in the game. Montreal's Gump Worsley played the first period before giving way to Charlie Hodge because of a knee injury. Sawchuk, who let in five of the six Montreal goals, was replaced by veteran Johnny Bower at the 8:01 mark of the third.

Gilbert, with a sore right ankle, broke an eight - game scoring drought with his two goals against the Bruins as the fired-up Rangers moved into a tie for second with Chicago Black Hawks. His second goal snapped a 3-3 tie.

The Bruins took a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes of the game on goals by Schock and Green. Kurtenbach made it 2-1 late in the first and Gilbert put the Rangers ahead to stay with his two second-period goals, his ninth and 10th of the season.

Nevin put the game out of reach when he scored just after the 13-minute mark of the third.

The loss extended Boston's winless streak to six games, in which it has tied one.

New York will clash with the fifth-place Red Wings in Detroit tonight and Boston will meet Chicago in Boston.

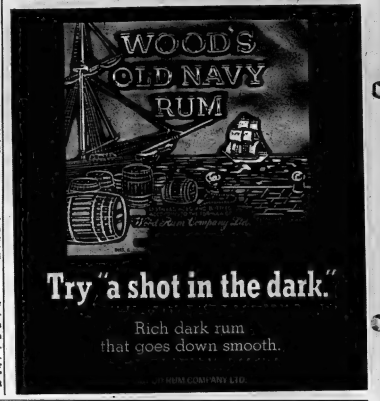
Pittsburgh Defeats Bears

PITTSBURGH (CP) — An empty-net goal by Billy Harris was the clincher Wednesday night as Pittsburgh Hornets downed Hershey Bears 6-4 and moved into first place in the American Hockey League Western Division.



The sixth straight win for the Hornets moved them out of a tie with the idle Rochester Americans.

Trailing 3-0 going into the last period, the Bears rallied to within one goal of the Hornets. But when goalkeeper Andre Gill left the nets in a bid to keep the rally going, Harris put the game on ice.

Chuvalo Likes Clay--And Big Pay

TORONTO (CP)—The victim of both Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell says it will be a dull, listless fight when the two meet for the world heavyweight championship because their styles are too much alike.

George Chuvalo, 29, Canadian heavyweight title holder from Toronto, lost 15-round decisions in both title fights in the last 18 months. He is also the only man Clay hasn't been able to knock out in a championship fight.

"Clay should win," said Chuvalo, who is certain he will get another chance at the winner of the Feb. 6 bout in Houston. His confidence was heightened Tuesday when Clay announced during signing ceremonies with Terrell that Chuvalo will be next in line.

"Clay will be the aggressor," said Chuvalo, "he is a better puncher, a faster puncher and has more variety in his attack than Terrell. It's difficult to make a fight with Terrell. He sticks out his left and runs or grabs, but do seldom uses his right hand.

"Clay, on the other hand, throws a lot of punches even when he's going back. And with Terrell, he will be on the attack, putting on the pressure."

Asked what kind of fight should be expected, he said:

"Because their styles are similar, it could make for a poor fight. Terrell always makes a poor, listless, dull fight. It won't be like when I fought those two, I was always moving in and punching. These guys are too similar in style."

Chuvalo said: "I'll be rooting for Clay. Terrell would be easier for me to defeat, but there'll be a much more lucrative payday with Clay. People don't want to come out and see Terrell because of the many poor fights he has been involved in. But they'll pay to see Clay — and I'm rooting for him."

Irv Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager, said Terrell has also promised Chuvalo a shot at the crown if he defeats Clay.

"We're in good position just as long as we don't blow any bouts between now and then."

Chuvalo has a record of blowing bouts against fighters of average calibre. But during the last few months he has been keeping busy by meeting and defeating novices.

Bantams Whip Gananoque 5-1

Belleville's bantam Kinsmen chalked up a 5-1 victory over Gananoque in an OMHA game played on the losers' home ice last night.

Each side scored once in the third period after the Kinsmen had netted pairs in the other two heats.

Rick Meagher, Cliff Janitsch, Dennis Cone, Geof Morton and Phil Kirby scored in that order for Belleville. Meagher and Greg Sarlieti each drew one assist.

L. Haggin To Succeed E. P. Taylor

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The annual convention of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations of America winds up today with election of a president to succeed E. P. Taylor of Toronto.

Florida Downs joined the association, boosting to 36 the number of North American tracks belonging to it.

Attendance Up

$Million Gate for Juniors?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Attendance has increased this season in five of the nine centres making up the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and indications point toward a $1,000,000 gate.

Biggest attendance increases after one-third of the schedule has been completed have been in Kitchener and St. Catharines, but Hamilton, Toronto and Montreal have also drawn larger crowds this year.

Crowds are down in Oshawa and Peterborough and are about the same as last season in Niagara Falls and London.

Last season, with the same 10 teams in the series, gate receipts totalled $984,000.

Kitchener Rangers, on top of the standings this season after three years near the bottom, have averaged 3,636 fans and have drawn several crowds of more than 4,000.

It hasn't always been this way. When the parent New York Rangers shifted their Junior A club to Kitchener from Guelph four years ago the club did poorly on the ice and crowds were often below the 1,000 level. But last season the team made the playoffs for the first time, in attendance averaged 2,000 and crowds of 6,000 were common for playoff games. As a result, subscriber drive this year has total 1,500, nearly double last season's 800.

St. Catharines Black Hawks, near the bottom last year, usually don't start drawing well until after New Year's, but this season, crowds have averaged 2,780 where attendance has seldom gone over 2,000 for games at this time in previous years. The Hawks are in second place.

Part of the reason for the increase may be a switch in home dates to Sunday from Saturday nights. Manager Ken Campbell said the team can't buck National Hockey League games on television Saturday nights and that was the reason for the switch.

After seven home games this year, Toronto Marlboros' attendance is up 6,000 over last season when the club drew 2,30; 000 with the aid of special promotions. Many of the Marlies' regular patrons are youngsters getting in at children's prices.

Hamilton Red Wings, playing in an old rink and with home games on television, are averaging 2,000 a game. Attendance has increased a total of about 2,000 so far this season.

Montreal Junior Canadiens, averaging about 2,500 a game, plan to switch home dates to Saturday afternoon and Sunday afternoon from Sunday night. Crowds are up, slightly over early attendance last year.

Niagara Falls Flyers, a top drawing team since moving into the Junior A series six years ago when the franchise was shifted from Barrie, are averaging about the same this year as last, 2,000. But the club, also a perennial power, is tied for sixth place and manager Paul Emms expects crowds to increase if the team moves up in the standings.

London Nationals are also averaging the same as last year, 2,500. Last season, London's first in the circuit, the club finished last but is currently tied for ninth place and crowds may improve if the Nationals continue to move up.

Peterborough Peies averaged 2,600 a game last year, highest in the club's 11-year history. But this season the Peies have dropped into the second division and attendance so far is running 2,250 a game.

Riley Leads Junior Macs Score Race

Despite a four-game winning streak, the Quinte McFarlands seem to be toying to catch the Cobourg Cougars every time they play.

It will be no different tonight when the Macs play host to the

RON RILEY

Kingston Frontenacs in an 8:30 game in Picton.

The Macs are in second place in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" standing with 14 points on seven wins and three defeats. Cobourg stands atop the loop with 16 points on eight wins and two setbacks. The Cougars defeated Kingston on Monday 4-2.

Meanwhile, Oshawa Crushmen are close behind with a 6-3-1 record for 13 points as the Macs can't afford a slip.

Left-winger Ron Riley continues to pace the Quinte individual scoring race with 23 points, according to unofficial records kept here. Ron has 17 goals and five assists for a three-point lead on linemate Ernie Sharpe.

However, league statistician Lyndon Dodge, of Cobourg, has credited Jilley with six assist and 23 points, and the matter is being checked now.

JUNIORS MEET

HALIFAX (CP) — Halifax Junior Canadiens meet two game series with St. Catharines Black Hawks tonight and the unproven defence is the question mark in pre-game analysis. Coach Phil Dalgleish said Wednesday his defencemen, who have had little to do throughout this season's 13-game sweep, will be put to the test by the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A team.

OPPOSE PEEWEE TOUR

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP) — A letter opposing a proposed tour of Europe by two peewee teams has been mailed to officials of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, Gordon Juckes of Melville says. Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Wednesday the CAHA frowns upon international competition for players less than 15 or 16. The teams, both from the Montreal area, were scheduled to play each other in five games. The tour was to begin in England and move to France.

Bermuda Golf

Three US Teams Top Tied

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) —Three United States teams were tied for the lead Wednesday after two rounds of the best-ball golf tournament here but a Canadian foursome is charging hard atthein heels.

The Meadowbrook Golf and Country Club team from Unionville, Ont., has a total score of 123, four strokes behind the Olympic Club of San Francisco, the Wee Burn of Connecticut and the St. Louis Country Club. Meadowbrook was tied for the lead after Tuesday's first round.

Playing the Castle Harbor course Wednesday, the Unionville team of professional Mel Taylor and amateurs Len Ball, Walter Vince and Mac Forrest carded a 66 after posting a 57 Tuesday on the Mid Ocean course.

They still have to play the Belmont Major course, considered the easiest of the three in the tournament.

PROS PLAY TODAY

The amateurs on each team got today off for sightseeing while the professionals play in a special tournament at the Mid Ocean Club.

Also still to play Belmont Major are Jack Hunt's Toronto Golf Club team, which has 130 after 36 holes, and Gord Sasi's foursome from Weston, Ont., with 132 after Wednesday's play.

Behind Unionville, in order, the Canadian entries in the tournament are:

Kitchener Westmount 127; Montreal Islemere and Toronto York Downs 128; Richelieu, Que., 129; Kanawaki, Que., and Toronto 130; London Hunt and Thornhill Summit 131; Peterborough Kawartha and Weston 132; Burlington Tyandaga 133; Aurora Highlands and Royal Quebec 134; Royal Montreal and Royal Ottawa 136; Burlington Idyiwylde, Sudbury and St. Catharines 139; Lambton 140 and London Sunningdale 142.

Friday afternoon, the field will be reduced to teams within six strokes of the leaders for Saturday's final.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

The first time the Montreal Canadiens played in our rink this season, we worked them 6-0, which was pretty nice. I was fortunate that night, too, in scoring a rather unusual goal.

It was in the third period and I had my back to the Montreal net, standing just outside the goal crease. We had just finished a power play and still had our momentum when my teammate Floyd Smith blasted a shot from the point. It hit the shaft of my stick, about half way up, and deflected between my body and arm into the Montreal goal.

Maybe this comes as a surprise, but we practice this type of shot for hours. This one, I grant, was a little unusual because it hit high up on the shaft. When we practice, we try to get the blade of our stick on it.

We employ a buming motion, letting the puck hit the stick with the shooter...firing just wide of the net. We've found the puck will do what it wants to do : you just try to get your stick on it.

Sid Abel, our manager, was the greatest at this type of shot. When he was playing with Ted Lindsay and me, he'd pick up lots of goals this way and would tell us "you fellows just shoot, I'll get it in." He would, too.

Parker MacDonald was also good at it and so was little Camille Henry. It's generally the bigger men who cash in on this type of play, but Camille was an exception.

I remember one game in Boston where I thought I scored four goals but didn't get credit for any of them. Incidentally I've never scored four goals in one game in my 21 seasons. Anyway, in that Boston game, Parker steered in a couple and I think Alex Delvecchio got his stick on the other two.

You don't forget a night like that in a hurry.

Minor Hockey

Six was the magic number for winning teams in the BMHA's midget division last night.

Bruins shaded the Elks' Hawks 6-5 while Canadiens doubled the score on the Rangers, 6-3.

Richardson's second goal was the Bruins' winner. Waite also scored twice, and had an assist, while Dempsey and Hatfield added singletons. McKenzie helped on a pair, Fobert on one. Mallory had a pair, Roy, Lebow and Rupert Isbers for Bill Hammond had two assists.

Jim Potts and Jim Rushton triggered two goals each to spearhead the Canadiens' victory. Randy Lambert scored once and assisted on three others while Wood had a goal and Steve Cronkright an assist. Bill Thompson scored twice and Stan Muldoon collected a goal and assist for the Rangers.

Orioles Were Tops In Defence

BOSTON (AP) — Baltimore Orioles had a lot more going than the long-ball power of Frank and Brooks Robinson en route to the American League pennant and a World Series sweep of Los Angeles Dodgers.

Official figures announced Wednesday by Joe Cronin, American League president, disclosed that the Orioles were tops defensively with a .981 fielding average, one point better than Detroit Tigers. California Angels were third with .979. The Orioles made 113 errors, five fewer than Detroit and 21 fewer than California. The Angels led in double plays with 186, 32 more than runner-up Kansas City Athletics.

Open House Friday

Canadian Tire Boasts 'Chalet'

One of the most complete lines of sporting goods to be found in the area will be the feature attraction when Belleville shoppers attend Open House this Friday at the Coleman Street Canadian Tire Corp. store.

The event is designed to focus attention on the store's recently completed sports "chalet" which has increased the store's floor area by some 3,000 square feet.

The addition, begun a year ago, has been in operation for the past month and a half, and has meant "a complete re-alignment of the entire store" says manager Douglas Boulton.

"We made a tremendous stock expansion and now can boast a complete all-season sporting line," said Mr. Boulton. Two large and colorful wall displays of ski and skating merchandise attest to this.

Open House guests will be treated to refreshments throughout the day as they scan the store's replenished stock for potential Christmas present material, or, for everyday requirements.

Donald Jones, who assumed the Belleville Canadian Tire associate dealership some five months ago, noted that bargains in every department of the store would be the order of the day for Open House shopers, and added a number of free draws will be held.

Those who have not been in the store since the addition of the enlarged sports wing will find that they can browse their way down straight aisles the length of the store, with the stock neatly displayed and readily available for their inspection.

It was only a little over a year ago that the trees were being removed at the store's north end to make way for the concrete block wing housing the sports chalet.

Now, with all store departments again fully re-ordinated and operational, the management is promising something in store for every member of the family.

Gregoire Delays Vancouver Strike Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — A government proposal to take over strikebound British Columbia ports was delayed Wednesday by Quebec separatist Gilles Gregoire (Iad.—Lapointe). He insisted that any move to reopen B.C. ports be tied into a guarantee to keep St. Lawrence River ports open all year.

Labor Minister Nicholson told the House early in the afternoon that he was preparing legislation for a public administrator to assume control of the West Coast ports and hoped to have it before the Commons today.

Government House Leader McIlraith announced at the 6 p.m. close of Wednesday's sitting that the government wanted a special non-stop sitting beginning at 11 a.m. today to pass the bill.

But the government proposal required unanimous consent of the Commons to waive the rule that 48 hours must elapse before a bill can be considered.

Mr. Gregoire refused the unanimous consent saying he would agree if the government would guarantee to keep the St. Lawrence open with icebreakers.

"Otherwise, no deal."

Mr. McIlraith said he would try again today at the regular 2:30 p.m. meeting of the Commons sitting to get the required consent. There was no indication whether Mr. Gregoire would change his stand.

Mr. Gregoire tried earlier Wednesday to adjourn the regular business of the House for an emergency debate on the problem of Quebec ports which have to close during the winter.

But he was ruled out of order by Speaker Leslie Lamoureux, who said Mr. Gregoire must have realized earlier that ice would form on the river and "or the B.C. ports can remain shut."

He stood firm despite appeals to his "patriotism", "reason," and "generous disposition" from Mr. Nicholson, Mr. McIlraith, Conservative House Leader Starr and NDP Leader Douglas.

"If you want me to listen to your appeals you must listen to mine."

He stood firm despite appeals to his "patriotism", "reason," and "generous disposition" from Mr. Nicholson, Mr. McIlraith, Conservative House Leader Starr and NDP Leader Douglas.

"Mr. Nicholson did not go into details of his proposed legislation. He said that would wait until it was introduced.

Old Dodge Used

OTTAWA (CP)—As a parliamentary maverick, Gilles Gregoire is right up there with the best. He proved it again Wednesday with his move to delay a legislated end to the British Columbia ports tie-up.

The impish French-Canadian MP won a parliamentary seat on a Social Credit upsurge in Quebec in the 1962 election. With his sardonic wit, he has been ruffling parliamentary feathers ever since.

He was on his feet 134 times in the first 60 days of his first Commons session.

It was a tour de force possibly unprecedented for a new man. Almost nothing was sacred, even the Speaker, whom he challenged almost to the point of no return.

A favorite Gregoire dodge is his use of the rules to delay government legislation. His refusal of unanimous consent for introduction of the ports tie-up legislation was the latest variation of an old theme.

DOES UNEXPECTED

He has a flair for doing the unexpected. Last July he created a stir in the capital when he sailed up the Ottawa River in a spanking new yacht he had bought in Toronto.

He soon made his parliamentary mark as a champion of Quebec rights charging that French - Canadians were not getting top jobs in the CNR.

Mr. Gregoire's opponents are as varied as his colorful language. His enemies include the Bank of Canada and high-interest rate loan companies.

Eventually he proved too rich for the blood of the Creditistes, the Quebec Social Credit MPs who split off from Social Credit after the 1963 election as their political fortunes declined.

Last summer, he took over the leadership of Le Rallieument National, a Quebec separatist party. Openly opposed at last to the Creditiste one - Canada policy, he quit as deputy leader and sat as an independent, even though he was a principal architect of his old party's success.

There's far more to Mr. Gregoire than his volatile temperament. Now 40, he holds degrees in civil law, literature and philosophy from Laval University.

His varied background includes three years as a student in a Jesuit order. His father was a Social Credit mayor of Quebec City in the 30s.

He failed his Quebec bar examination twice and never tried again as political organizing became his chief preoccupation.

Not entirely nerveless, the chunky, swarthy man with the slicked-down black hair admitted once that the first time he rose in Parliament "I was shaking like hell."

Four years later, he's still giving others the shakes.

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, Leonard and Lorraine and Mrs. Mervin Funston of Ripley spent a few days with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Batens.

The women of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held a Christmas tea and bazaar in the church parlor on Wednesday afternoon. Streamers, bells and a lighted Christmas tree lent a festive touch.

A large assortment of home cooking, including a tree laden with gingerbread men, was for sale. Knitted articles, handicrafts and Christmas decorations were offered to purchasers.

In the evening a coffee party was held, attended by a large number of men and women.

Blithe Spirit Fails to Impress

NEW YORK (AP)—Noel Coward's 25-year-old comedy, Blithe Spirit, was broadcast on NBC Wednesday night and it seemed that the years have not become altogether kind to the play.

Perhaps it was because television has recently had an influx of witches and ghosts. But whatever seemed a bright and terribly sophisticated play now looked slightly square and middle-aged.

The story concerns the misadventures of a British novelist after a medium at a seance materializes the spectre of his first wife, imperilling his second marriage and threatening his sanity.

One problem was the necessity of cutting the play to fit a 90-minute television slot. One never had a chance to enjoy the mischievousness of the ghostly Elvira, or to feel anything but mild annoyance at the harried husband caught between two angry spouses.

Ruth Gordon, playing Madame Arcati, the medium, walked off with the evening's acting honors. She gave the part the heartiness of a British colonel and robbed off cliches as if she had coined them.

Dirk Bogarde was attractive as the husband and Rachael Roberts was chic and properly bitempered as the second wife. Rosemary Harris, in silvery grey makeup, posted prettily.

CBS announced that British actor John Williams, a veteran of many movies and television series, temporarily will be seen in place of Sebastian Cabot on the Family Affair series beginning in mid-January.

CBS said Cabot, who has been in hospital with an ulcer, has taped 16 episodes in the series to carry it into next year.

The show will then be rewritten to send Cabot away on business. Williams will appear as a relative who takes Cabot's place as man servant to co-star Brian Keith.

Frank Sinatra returned with his second A Man and His Music special Wednesday night and the hour was in a mood completely different from the first.

In this CBS show, Sinatra was the swinging, merry singer, introducing his songs with jokes and patter and crowded a lot of pleasant music into the program.

ABC's special, Christ is Born, was in an unfortunate conflict with the last part of Blithe Spirit. It was an hour remarkable for the stunningly beautiful photography filmed in the Holy Land. The narration, primarily from the Bible, related the Christmas story with feeling and reverence.

Recommended tonight:

Writer Ray Bradbury Finally Recognized

Universal will be bringing to movie theatres' Fahrenheit 451, the company's first big venture in international film-making. It was directed by the new-wave Frenchman, Francois Truffaut, in his first English - language film; it stars Oskar Werner, and Julie Christie in a duel role.

The film is a futuristic horror tale of a cowardly new world in which zombie-like citizens stare at television and are forbidden to read books, which are destroyed by fire crews (burning point: 451 degrees fahrenheit). It is a thinking man's movie, but it may also be enjoyed on a purely science-fiction level.

That is the nature of Ray Bradbury's work, which may help explain why he was long the most unproduced of major writers.

The author was talking about his cluttered library in Hollywood after attending his sixth screening of the movie. "I like it," he said glowingly.

Bradbury wrote a memorable science fiction film, It Came From Outer Space, and adapted Moby Dick for the John Huston-Gregory Peck movie. Most of his other screen work has been in transforming his books into scripts that never were filmed. "Fahrenheit 451 was optioned a by three or four producers before Truffaut got it," said Bradbury, who resembles an owlish accountant. "It took Truffaut four years to put the deal together.

"The Martian Chronicles has been in the hands of such producers as . . . David Susskind, who wanted to put it on Broadway as a musical comedy.

"Finally it is going to be produced on the stage in Paris by Jean Louis Barrault next Jan. 15. It will be a full-scale production employing film, ballet and puppets, who play the Martians."

Why have film producers neglected Bradbury all these years?

"I think Hollywood producers have had a resistance to fantasy," he explained, "although there have been some great films in that line—Here Comes Mr. Jordan, Things To Come, The Thief of Bagdad (1940), The Man Who Could Work Miracles and even the Dracula-Frankenstein - mummy pictures of Universal."

"Also, I believe American producers shy away from science-fiction films because we suffer from science-fiction objects such as the automobile.

"The automobile," says Bradbury with calculated scorn, "is strangling our cities, polluting our air, killing 50,000 people a year and causing $9,000,000,000 worth of damage."

Bradbury, who has written about space travel as if it were a subway trip, doesn't believe in flying, either.

UN Accepts Barbados

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— The Security Council Wednesday unanimously endorsed the application of newly-independent Barbados for membership of the United Nations.

Certain ratification by the General Assembly Friday will make the Caribbean island the 122nd member of the world organization.

It will be the 28th Commonwealth state represented at the UN and the third smallest member in population, next to the Maldive Islands and Iceland.

Manitobans to Get Help Against Bureaucracy, Crime, Usury

WINNIPEG (CP)—An avenue to relief for the citizen tangled in the web of modern living was proposed Thursday in a wide-ranging remedies code introduced to the Manitoba legislature in a government white paper.

The precedent - setting document, welcomed by government and opposition members, sets out planned safeguards for persons with a complaint against government administration and for individuals using credit, provides compensation to victims of crime and free legal aid to indigents.

Provincial Secretary Stewart McLean, who introduced the paper during throne speech debate, said: "With the increasing pace and complexity of commercial and social relationships, existing safeguards of the private person are not adequate to protect him in many of the situations in which he is increasingly involved."

The code apparently will break new ground for Canadian provinces in compensation to crime victims and procedures to protect government administration.

Appointment of a legislative commissioner for administration is thought to be in answer to often - repeated opposition pleas for an ombudsman, although the commissioner's powers are restricted.

His duties are defined as being "concerned with faults in administration" and "an additional instrument" for members of the legislature to protect the citizenry.

Complaining citizens would take their case to their MLA who, if it was warranted, would pass it on.

The commissioner could examine the complaint if it did not fall within the jurisdiction of the courts or deal with actions or decisions of Crown agencies, commissions, boards and corporations.

He would not be permitted to criticize government policy or examine decisions of government discretionary powers unless it appeared to have been affected by a fault in administration.

If the commissioner finds the complaint is justified, he reports it to the minister of the offending department. If no action is taken, his only recourse is to report this in an annual report to the legislature.

Explaining the compensation for crime victims section, Mr. McLean said increasing crimes of violence emphasize the need for relief.

Plans are to give aid to persons injured during execution of a crime, when an arrest is being made or attempted and while attempting to prevent an offence.

Adjudication of claims would be handled by a special board —with no recourse to appeal— which would pay out under cases involving less than $150. Before submitting a claim, the victim would have to fall at attempting to obtain compensation from all other sources.

Broader safeguards and assistance are proposed in the field of consumer credit and legal aid to indigents.

Mr. McLean said it is important, in the field of consumer credit, to put the consumer and credit grantor on the same basis and protect unwary consumers against unscrupulous dealers. He said the principle will be, "Let the seller exercise caution. . . ."

Dockers in BC Return to Work

Stall Foiled

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has settled the West Coast port tie - up and has pulled the parliamentary rug from under separatist MP Gilles Gregoire, who was delaying federal intervention.

Mr. Gregoire has been stalling a government plan to legislate an end to the dispute when Labor Minister Nicholson announced the settlement Thursday. That made emergency legislation unnecessary.

The announcement evaporating the two crises sought in Commons by surprise just as the day's sitting started.

In what he termed the "Nicholson formula," the labor minister said both stevedores and their employers would get reports in operation promptly while a federal inquiry examined the dispute.

Both sides, he said, were concerned about the tie-up effects. Grain and other shipments through the port had been halted and there had been layoffs in B.C.'s timber industry.

The government had moved Thursday to get the ports moving again with legislation to put a public administrator in charge, but Mr. Nicholson temporarily spiked that idea by refusing unanimous consent to waive the rule requiring a 48 hour interval that ordinarily must precede introduction of a bill.

Mr. Gregoire demanded a government guarantee to keep the upper St. Lawrence open to navigation throughout the winter as a price for his consent. The government had been expected to seek unanimous consent again Thursday, hoping for a change of heart by Mr. Gregoire, when news of the settlement arrived.

DELAYED HELPED

Mr. Nicholson told reporters after the conference ended Thursday that the delay helped by giving the parties another chance to settle without government intervention.

"But I can't compliment him on the way he helped it," Mr. Nicholson said. "I think it's a disgraceful, disgusting performance by a person who calls himself a member of Parliament."

Such Language Before Mother!

Prime Minister Wilson is a hypocrite "of the basest kind" . . . Conservative Leader Edward Heath is despicable and a "traitor" . . . various other members of Parliament are about as low as they can get.

These were some of the accusations flung about the House of Commons Thursday night in a debate on the Rhodesian crisis that reached new depths of abuse between the ruling Laborites and the Conservative opposition.

"There were no losers," said The Times, "except perhaps the dignity of Parliament."

The Tories, with only a couple of abstainers, voted en masse against the government' appeal to the United Nations for mandatory sanctions against rebel Rhodesia.

Wilson's men, joined by Liberal legislators, won the approval of the House by 353 votes to 244 - a government majority of 109.

As the noise rose, one Laborite called Heath a traitor to Britain.

Wilson said Heath was engaging in "the most despicable manoeuvre in the history of the new Tory party — and that's saying something."

Heath accused Wilson of hypocrisy.

Then came shouts of "Sieg heil!" "Szer" and "Munich!"

Truce Shaky

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia ports resumed normal operations today as 4,000 longshoremen went back to work in an atmosphere of shaky truce following a crippling 21 - day dock dispute and work stoppages.

The longshoremen, members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, started unloading and loading an estimated 70 ships at Vancouver and six other ports along the coast and on Vancouver Island.

"They've already worked up a sweat," said a union spokesman. "We've got just about everybody available out handed cargo this morning."

The spokesman said many stevedores and longshoremen will probably work overtime to clear up the backlog — there were 47 ships awaiting the men in Vancouver alone.

A settlement, announced Thursday in the Commons by Labor Minister Nicholson, was greeted warmly by the foremen, but brought from employers the

Never Was Politician 'Sandy' Tells Admirers

Robarts Is Speaker

The man who has represented West Hastings at Queen's Park for the past 18 years, rolling up substantial pluralities in each of the five elections contested, never did learn to be a politician.

This was the admission last evening by 72-year-old Elmer "Sandy" Sandercock, as he accepted plaudits at a testimonial dinner held in his honor.

Mr. Sandercock is retiring from politics and will not enter his name at the Progressive Conservative party nomination for the next Ontario riding. He will, however, serve out his present term in the Legislature.

Ontario Premier John Robarts, as the speaker of the evening, said that in his nearly 20 years as a member of the Legislature of Ontario "Sandy" had participated in all of the great changes of this period.

Mr. Sandercock received a handsome color TV from his party supporters, a scroll in recognition of his many years at Queen's Park and a copy of "Mosaic of Belleville."

But it was the evening guest of honor who stole the show.

Accepting the plaudits and the gifts, Mr. Sandercock said it was nice hearing such fine things being said about him.

With tongue in cheek he joked "If I had known I was such a good man, I would never have quit."

And then in serious vein he expressed his appreciation to his supporters for keeping him in politics for so many years.

Over the years he said he had heard a lot about politicians but never had learned to be one.

"When election time rolled around I would drive up and down the road but would become so busy visiting that I would forget all about politics," he said.

Not only riding party supporters attended last night's testimonial dinner. Also in attendance were friends of Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock, party affiliations forgotten.

Chairman for the dinner program was Percy McGuire who said the large attendance demonstrated the esteem in which Mr. Sandercock was held. He said that "Sandy has served West Hastings well. He has served all the people regardless of party beliefs."

J. N. Yanover introduced the head table guests, while E. M. "Ted" Parker of Trenton introduced Premier Robarts. County clerk treasurer Carl Bateman expressed appreciation to Mr. Robarts.

Civic greetings were brought by Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis who said he was speaking for all residents of Belleville when he paid tribute to Mr. Sandercock.

Hastings County Warden Clayton Hall said that welcoming the Ontario Premier to the county and saying "thank you" to Sandy made the night the highlight of his life. Although Hastings was divided East and West, Mr. Sandercock had al-

U.S., Russia Agree to Ban War in Space

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Some UN diplomats believe the new U.S.-Soviet agreement to ban war and weapons from outer space can open the way to a pact to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

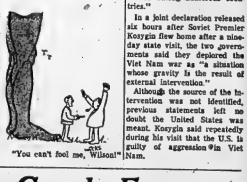
The agreement announced Thursday by President Johnson was welcomed at the UN as a major breakthrough in a 10-year battle for an international legal code to govern space exploration.

"It is the most important arms control development since the limited test ban treaty of 1963," Johnson said, referring to the earlier pact barring testing in the atmosphere, which most nations have ratified.

Rhodesian Boycott

Halt to Buying But Not Sales British Plan

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Britain faced the probability of African pressure in the UN Security Council today to include oil in any program of compulsory economic sanctions against Rhodesia.



Chief S. O. Adebo of Nigeria, currently a member of the 15-country council, told reporters African countries are consulting on ways of amending a British motion, introduced Thursday night, that calls upon all UN members to ban imports of certain Rhodesian commodities. The Africans want oil exports to Rhodesia banned also.

Foreign Secretary George Brown of Britain, who put the motion before the council, said he wouldn't oppose an amendment for the inclusion of oil if it were made "in acceptable terms."

The British government is reported to be ready to go along with a limited oil embargo, if the African press hard enough for it, provided that it replaces no action against South Africa.

The British draft resolution provides for mandatory sanctions on the export of commodities deemed to be of critical importance to Rhodesia's foreign trade, and on the import by Rhodesia of arms and military equipment.

The selected commodities are asbestos, iron ore, chrome, pig iron, sugar, tobacco, copper, meat and meat products, hides, skins and leathers.

Bombing Pause Unlikely--Rusk

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of B-52 bombers struck Viet Cong positions in South Viet Nam today in three raids that ranged from near Saigon to the north-ern edge of the country.

As the huge high-altitude bombers flew in from their Guam base, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk arrived in Saigon and discounted chances of a prolonged pause in American bombing raids over North Viet Nam.

Ald. A. Keegan Says Mayor Should Resign

Ald. Arthur Keegan says Mayor Jack Ellis should resign because he plans to seek the Conservative nomination for Hastings West.

Ald. Keegan says: "I know the work involved in the office of mayor in this city is almost a full-time job. Mayor Ellis ran and was elected for the two-year term as mayor. Now he says he is ready to go higher as a member of the legislature.

"If he is successful in campaigning for a higher office, he will be leaving Belleville's city council high and dry.

"So I suggest he now resign as mayor of the city of Belleville."

Unlisted Passengers Feared on Greek Ferry

ATHENS (AP)—Shipping officials revised the list Thursday of the Greek ferry Heraklion to 235 dead or missing today and expressed fear that a number of unlisted passengers may have been aboard.

Hope was fading that there would be more survivors than the 46 brought in by darkness Thursday. At first, 49 survivors were reported, but the ministry of merchant marine said three of those were later found to be bodies.

Rescue ships found 23 more bodies, bringing the total recovered to more than 46. The sea was littered with debris and thousands of oranges from the Heraklion's cargo.

Officials directing the search from Piraeus, the port of Athens, said many persons may have boarded the ferry at the last minute and paid their fare after the ship got under way from the island of Crete.

They said naval students from Canea, on Crete, often ride without being recorded on passenger lists and some other unlisted persons travel on the ferry free.

A second Greek ship sank today in another Aegean storm far south of the scene of the Heraklion disaster. The small freighter Aghia Barbara went down between Rhodes and Cyprus, but all 16 crew members were "picked up by passing ships.

The 8,900-ton Heraklion sank swiftly in a boiling storm at 2 a.m. Thursday, halfway on an overnight crossing from Crete to Piraeus with 208 passengers listed aboard and 75 in the crew.

Crew members told rescuers trucks and cars, torn from their lashings as the 11-year-old ship tossed in the storm, smashed loading doors that had been weakened by waves. They said a 16-ton refrigerator trailer battered open a bow door and the Aegean Sea, whipped up by 75-to 100 - miles - an - hour winds, poured in.

Chief Mate Nikos Theodorakis, 33, said he ran below deck after the alarm sounded.

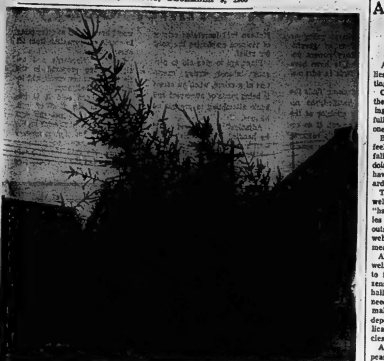
"Water was already pouring in," he said. "Automobiles were piled up to one side of the ship in the forward quarter. The heaving of the ship had snapped their retaining stays.

"I had no time to get a life-jacket on. I went over the side. For 10 hours, I clung to an oar until I was picked up."

Antonis Kambouris, 21, reported: "The flaw that finally broke open the loading door was from a refrigerator trailer up front. I was asleep when the alarm sounded. I awoke and lost a lifebelt and jumped into the sea. In 15 minutes the ship was gone."

France, Russia Blame U.S. For War's Gravity

PARIS (AP)—France and the Soviet Union declared today the war in Viet Nam endangers that country's neighbors and is "the principal obstacle to a relaxation of international tensions" and "lasting peaceful relations among numerous countries."



In a joint declaration released six hours after Soviet Premier Kosygin flew home after a nine-day state visit, the two governments said they deplored the Viet Nam war as "a situation whose gravity is the result of external intervention."

Although the source of the intervention was not identified, previous statements left no doubt the United States was meant. Kosygin said repeatedly during his visit that the U.S. is guilty of aggression in Viet Nam.

"I saw women jumping into the sea everywhere around me," said Dimitrios Economou, 41. "I had a lifejacket on. Several ships went by without seeing me. I gave up hope. Later I came upon a floating wooden crate and managed to throw myself across it. When the (British minesweeper) Ashton got me, I had been in the sea for about five hours."

Passengers roused from sleep by the alarm dropped off the side of the listing ship into towering waves in the darkness.

The Heraklion's captain, Emmanuel Vermikos, was last seen hurrying about the decks to direct the abandoning of the ship.

Province "Doing All It Can" To Encourage Country MDs

An Ontario Government official has said the government is doing all it can to encourage doctors to locate in smaller centres where there is a shortage of medical services.

W. B. Nichols, assistant to the deputy minister, department of health, said the Government has long been concerned with the problem.

"In the past five years, we have placed 30 to 40 doctors and dentists in those areas through our bursary plan for medical and dental students."

He said the bursary program was started five years ago by the department "to encourage young doctors and dentists to establish a practice in areas where these services are inadequate."

He said the department has a listing of all areas where medical services are inadequate and parts of Prince Edward and Hastings Counties are included in these listings.

He said a medical or dental student can receive bursaries under the program up to four years and a number have done so.

"But we can't go further than that," he said. "We can't force people to go anywhere. We can only try to encourage them."

Mr. Nichols said the Ontario Medical Association also has a listing of opportunities available for medical services.

The OMA lets doctors know where the opportunities are, but whether the doctors go there is up to them."

News of a shortage of medical services in the Quinte district came to light earlier this week when Stirling undertaker G. H. Hogle wrote a letter to the chairman of a special Commons-Senate committee on immigration.

The committee will try to find out why some immigrant doctors have trouble setting up private practice in Ontario.

Mr. Hogle pointed out that only one refugee physician serves the community and immediate area. Consequent investigation by The Intelligencer showed that serious shortages also existed in Prince Edward County (except for Picton) and Marmora.

Mr. Nichols said the College of Physicians and Surgeons looks after the licensing of medical men. "Whether these immigrant doctors, even if they were registered, would go to these areas is another question."

Testimonial To Be Aired

Applicants "Not Treated Decently"

City Welfare Program Under Fire

Are needy Belleville families and welfare recipients getting a fair deal at city hall?

City welfare officials claim they are, that each case coming to their attention is carefully considered and that no one goes hungry.

But there are others who feel the city welfare program falls short of what it should be doing if needy families are to have even a minimum standard of living.

They claim that despite city welfare there are still many "hardship", cases with families having to depend on handouts from publically supported welfare agencies for their meagre existence.

Also there is a claim that welfare applicants are made to feel like "third class citizens" when they go to city hall and because of this some needy families don't even make application. Instead they depend on handouts from publically supported welfare agencies.

A letter to the editor appearing in The Intelligencer today comments on reduced welfare costs in Belleville and at the same time states there are just as many "hardship" cases as ever in the city.

The difference, according to the letter is that assistance for these needy families never comes from agencies such as the Children's Aid, Red Cross and different church groups instead of from city welfare.

The letter writer quotes one informant as stating the lack of city "welfare" was creating more hardships for welfare recipients not only materially but psychologically.

One Belleville resident voicing criticism of the city welfare department is Belleville College of Physicians and Surgeons and chairman of the Medical Staff Society, who says that Belleville people seeking welfare are not even treated decently when visiting city hall.

Emphasizing that this was his own view and not the official view of the CAS, Dr. Hurley says the city welfare department is not being operated in a satisfactory manner.

"People seeking welfare at city hall are not being treated decently or with dignity," he said.

He says he knows that other public welfare organizations in the city have been called upon to provide assistance for needy families who either had been turned down at city hall or weren't receiving sufficient city welfare to live on.

And officials of the Belleville Salvation Army say their group is often called upon to fill a gap which city welfare is not filling.

Major June Dwyer reported that food vouchers and clothing had been supplied to needy families.

In most instances there were given to families not on welfare, she said.

Another Belleville person critical of city welfare department is Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, chairman of the Red Cross Individual Emergency Aid.

Mrs. Ketcheson stated that one case had come to their attention where there were not enough beds and mattresses for all family members and that the children had gone to bed the last winter without proper boots and overshoes.

She said that frequently the Red Cross handed out food parcels, clothing and blankets to needy families.

She said that welfare department is not using the Red Cross homemaking services for what it knows are referral cases. Under this program families unable to pay the full cost of home making services, have part of the cost paid by the city.

To qualify applicants must go to city hall for an interview to determine their financial standing.

They are made to feel like third rate citizens, so they just don't bother," Mrs. Ketcheson said.

City records show that welfare costs in Belleville have been cut by more than one-half since the present welfare administrator came to the city.

Mr. Hurley admits that the former welfare administrator, George Whitman, may have been too generous. Now, he says the pendulum has swung the other way and welfare payments are too little. And he says that in some instances the "too little" payments are delayed.

He said he had also heard a local doctor complaining because a patient of his could not get adequate drugs from the welfare department.

After all, he says, only 20 per cent of welfare costs are a direct charge on the city taxpayers, the other 80 per cent being paid by the government.

"If there has to be a choice between generosity and welfare recipients being given to little, I think generosity is the answer", Mr. Hurley said.

Mrs. Ketcheson said that while the Red Cross is fully prepared to help out in emergency cases she feels it is not the organization's role to supply regular food and clothing requirement.

"That should come under city welfare."

Department Operating 'In Very Capable Manner'

Late last winter complaints regarding the operation of the city welfare department were brought up in council and were referred to the city manager for investigation.

In the report submitted to council at a later date, the city manager said the welfare director has administered the affairs of the department "in a very capable manner."

A list of points for policy/procedure of the department was contained in the report.

These included:

- Maintenance of good relations with other public social service agencies and with the medical profession.
- Maintenance of good public relations, particularly with those persons seeking assistance.
- Use the facilities of homemaker and nursing services when the need arises.
- Investigate the financial position on the applicants only.
- Do not demand repayment of assistance granted other than in exceptional circumstances and where appeared to be warranted.
- Welfare assistance given to be based on the need and present day costs.

Name Omitted

In the report by Mayor J. R. Ellis on hospital affairs at Monday's meeting of the city council the name of Mrs. William Dallas was inadvertently omitted from the list of members of the board of governors of the hospital. Mrs. Dallas is the representative of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary on the Board.

Trenton's Ross Burtt Mr. Civic Affairs May Not Run Again

TRENTON — This town's "Mr. Municipal Affairs" may retire from the local government scene he has served for nearly three decades.

"It's in the lap of the gods as far as I'm concerned. It's uncertain — I may never run again," councillor Ross Burtt said today.

He was unexpectedly defeated Monday in his bid for re-election to what would have been his 38th term as a town councillor.

The 77-year-old veteran of civic government said he will spend the 12 months before the next election definitely making up his mind on the remaining, he will probably take a trip to visit relatives in California.

"I'm not used to having so much leisure time. I'll see how it feels to stake out for a year or two," he added.

Mr. Burtt entered municipal politics as a councillor in 1935 at the height of the depression.

"It was rough going then," he recalled.

Councillor Burtt's only other defeats came in three bids for the mayoralty—although he did serve a term as mayor. Many times he headed the polls in his bids for council.

His family also are deeply rooted in the town.

"I've nothing to confirm it, but I've also heard my grandfather was in council—or whatever they had at that time."

Conservation Authority Questions Wisdom of Further Land Purchases

The Moira River Conservation Authority is in a position that is possibly unique in Ontario.

At a time when many other Authorities across the province are wondering how they can afford to add to their acreage the Moira Authority is beginning to wonder if maybe it should start cutting back on its land purchases.

The question was asked yesterday by chairman James Sprackett at an executive meeting of the authority at Cannifton.

Noting that the authority now had close to 25,000 acres of reforestation property, Mr. Sprackett asked how long the present rate of purchase should continue. He said the authority properties were beginning to cost considerable in municipal taxes.

"I don't mean that we should stop acquiring altogether but maybe we should slow down a bit," he said.

Bill Hiscock, representing the lands and forests department at Tweed which has a forest management agreement with the authority, told the meeting that approximately 3,000 acres of property had been added this year, bringing the total to 14,458 acres.

More than 2,000,000 trees have been planted on authority property and another 100,000 are expected to be added next year.

Reports on the year's activities were heard from the various advisory board chairmen. Thomas Armstrong reported for the conservation area board; T. C. Graham for education; James Spry for forestry; Graham Bell for water control and W. Armstrong for fish and wild life.

Mr. Bell told the meeting that more money was needed for additional water control measures on the watershed, noting that several existing dams were in need of repair.

He referred to the $11,000 spent this fall in the repair of a wing wall at the Lingham Lake dam north of Madoc and said that eventually the main dam would have to be strengthened.

Pending approval of an authority brief asking for 90 per cent ARDA grants for major water control projects, Mr. Bell said that no big projects were planned on the Moira next year.

However, land would be purchased at the junction of Partridge Creek and the Skootamatta River. Money would also be provided for dam improvement fees and for conBell said that no big projects were planned on the Moira next year.

Construction of the Deercock Lake dam would not start until the ARDA program was changed.

The authority fill regulation committee will in the future include the municipal representative or representatives from the municipality from which the fill application is received.

The make-up of this committee was changed following a protest from the city of Belleville where objection was raised to fill placed in the river by Ben Safa at the rear of his property on Station Street.

Belleville Alderman Donald Joss, one of two Belleville appointees to the authority, said the city's objection is present river fill regulations was not that it wanted to add red tape to the procedure.

Trenton Parade Saturday

Santa Due for Warm Reception

The overnight low last night was 47 — compared with 43 degrees in 1953.

The overnight low last night as 47 — compared with 49 in 1953.

The mercury will drop several degrees for tomorrow's parade through the downtown area, but it still will be warm for this time of the year, said the base duty forecaster.

It will continue cloudy with the possibility of a few scattered showers.

The big parade moves off from the Community Gardens at 2.10 p.m., heads east on Bay to Campbell, north of Dundas East and west to Queen Street and St. Paul's school.

Following the marchpast, Santa's sled will draw up to the old federal building on Dundas Street, where town residents may deposit items for distribution to needy families by the Salvation Army.

Chamber of Commerce manager Jack Wilson says the lineup currently calls for five bands, 16 floats, at least five majorette corps, antique cars and more than a score of parade horses.

Looters Hit Four Homes

TRENTON — In less than 90 minutes last night looters plundered four houses in the Elmwood Acres area for a total of $500 in cash.

They gained entry by kicking open locked back doors in each instance. Police officer Sidney Vickers said the intruders ignored other valuables and went only for money.

A one-car crash resulting in considerable property damage late last night when an auto driven by Douglas Earl Gilpin, 25, of R. 1, Trenton went out of control at O'Malley's corner on North Front St. The car plowed down a number of guard rails before hitting the cement steps at the entrance of James H. Hoyt's house.

Astra Now Post Office Name For Canadian Forces Base

The story of its creation, without the usual pomp and ceremony which usually accompanies such official municipal happenings, came to light this week.

The name Astra in Latin means stars and appears in the motto on the official Royal Canadian Air Force crest. Since the first day of October it has been given new prominence by the federal post office department to designate Canadian Forces Base, Trenton. Actually Astra is about as air force as any word in the language.

The RCAF motto, Per Ardua Ad Astra Through Adversity to the Stars and other incentives has prompted esprit de corps among airmen since it was adopted as the official inscription by the air force. And it became recognized wherever Canadian airmen were called upon to serve in other parts of the world.

One veteran observed when he heard the change of address: "It seems only proper that part of such a famous expression is retained as the new name for Trenton base with its many years of RCAF background.

Town Council's Last Meeting On Dec. 29

TRENTON — The 1966 town council will wrap up its business here Dec. 29.

Clerk - Comptroller O. W. Larry says the agenda will be mainly devoted to such formalities as completing the year's accounts in preparation for the new administrative year.

Mayor D. J. MacDonald says his new council will be sworn in the first week of the year — possibly Jan. 3.

A civic lunch, with members of various town boards and committees, may follow the ceremonies.

Second Swimming Pool Suggested for Trenton

TRENTON — The inter-club meeting at the Legion Hall last night, considered to be the wind-up for the combined service clubs' swimming pool project, may in fact turn out to be the send-off for their second swimming pool undertaking.

Project treasurer Thomas Hetherington reported the fund for the first pool was "way over the top". He urged club members to try for a second pool during Centennial year.

"If we continue our effort at the high school and then put one on the other side of the river the split among townspeople caused by the decision to locate the first one on the west side will be avoided," he explained.

He called for the three service clubs involved to raise the necessary monies required to provide a pool for Trenton's recreation complex and Centennial project in the Community Centre area in 1967.

The target for the closed pool at the Trenton high school was $80,000.

Nomination To Pack High School

TRENTON — There will definitely be no dark-horse candidate running from this town when Quinte riding Conservatives hold their nomination meeting here Monday.

The convention, scheduled for Monday at Trenton High School, is expected to be the most highly-charged in 18 years for the Conservatives, said Mr. Parker.

The reason is that Elmer Sandercock, who this week announced his retirement as MPP Hastings West, has never been opposed at any convention since he was first named that year.

Already, says Mr. Parker, because of the situation, cabs are coming in from the public worried about seating accommodation at the event.

The high school auditorium can seat about 700 people, he says. But at least 330 of those will be retained for local party delegates who will select a candidate.

Strongest contenders for the party's ticket in an expected election in mid-1967 are still two Bellevillians — Mayor Jack Ellis and Dr. Richard Potter.

"I'll be quite surprised now if anyone is nominated from Trenton," said Mr. Parker today, "and if that's the case I'm positive they won't stand."

'Never Was A Politician'

ways worked for all Hastings, he said.

Trenton Mayor James MacDonald said Mr. Sandercock was always ready to help Trenton. "Sandy" had been a big help to him, he said.

Belleville Association chairman for West Hastings, Dr. Richard Potter of Belleville said "this was Sandercock night".

"We refer to Sandy as our member in the Ontario Legislature and few ridings in Ontario can boast of a member so known," he said.

On behalf of party supporters, Dr. Potter presented Mr. Sandercock with the color TV. MacDonald then presented him with the scroll in honor of his long service in the Ontario Legislature. Mrs. Lee Grills presented roses to Mrs. Sandercock.

The Ontario Premier was also remembered. Mr. Roberts received a block of Hastings cheese from Warden Hall and a history of Belleville from Mayor Ellis.

Head table guests included Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South, and Charles T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings East. Telegrams were received from many Ontario cabinet ministers and legislature members unable to attend the dinner.

Premier Roberts said it was a great honor and privilege to be able to pay richly deserved tribute to a much loved citizen of Belleville and Hastings County and to a man "I am proud to call my friend".

Mr. Roberts said that Mr. Sandercock in his 19 years at Queen's Park had participated in almost two decades of the greatest growth the province has ever known.

In that period Ontario's population had increased from 4½ million to almost 7 million, while the spending responsibility of the government had increased from about $300,000,000 to the present $1.8 billion.

This dramatic expansion has demanded a great deal of wisdom and judgment on the part of legislators and Mr. Sandercock had taken a full share of that responsibility.

Mr. Roberts listed the many special and select committees on which Mr. Sandercock had served, noting that the problems of the elderly had always been close to his heart.

As a former superintendent of the Hastings County Home, Mr. Sandercock in his maiden speech in the Legislature had proudly told how Hastings had been the first county in Ontario to erect a new, modern home for elderly citizens under a new program developed by the Department of Welfare.

The province had assumed half the cost of constructing the new home and was paying half the maintenance. This year legislation had been changed to provide construction grants of $5,000 a bed for homes with 80 per cent of maintenance also to be paid by the province.

Mr. Roberts said the people of Ontario would never be able to repay Sandy Sandercock for his part in developing the Homes for the Aged program and for his contributions to this important area of social service.

He has served almost continuously on the legislature agricultural committee and for several years acted as president of the Belleville Fair.

During the 1965 session Mr. Sandercock had been unanimously chosen chairman of the committee of the whole house, an extremely important position.

As chairman he presided while the House was in committee of supply and while detailed consideration was given to legislation.

Among the many important items of legislation to pass through the House during the session was the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan.

In honoring Sandy Sandercock tonight we are saying thank you to a man who has devoted a lifetime to improving the lot of his fellow man," said Mr. Roberts.

"We are also saying thank you to the people of Hastings West for their wisdom in sending to the Ontario Legislature such a fine representative."

"On behalf of the people of Ontario, the Government and the Progressive Conservative Party, I wish Sandy and his gracious wife, Ethel, many years of happiness and contentment."

Four Women, 2 Men Contest Tweed Election

TWEED (Special) — The women are at it again!

Wednesday night with four of them sharing a municipal nomination slate with eight men — and some of them tardy about their intentions of running a local election campaign — this village seemed to have lost a chance for an all-woman council.

Last night the four qualified to seek election and join their sister villagers — acclaimed reeve Mrs. Barbara Allen and acclaimed councillor Mrs. E. G. Courneyer — as the 1967 village council.

The election is Dec. 15.

The Rural Doctor

One of the hallmarks of the medical profession is dedication. It is this devotion to the arts of healing and to his fellow man that give the doctor his special place in a community.

But nowadays the demands on his time, the striving to serve all who need his attention, the house calls and hospital visits, are placing an increasing burden on medical men.

That is the situation Stirling's lone practitioner, Dr. Peter Briggs, finds himself in. And while he is not complaining unduly, he does point out that he is on call 24 hours a day. Moreover, he says he is completely in favor of trying to get another doctor in Stirling.

Dr. Briggs' story was told in this newspaper the other day. Stirling area residents agree the doctor is entitled to a vacation job, but is overworked. That is not difficult to understand.

Dr. Briggs says one solution might be to set up a clinic in which area practitioners could pool their efforts when needed. Other areas had solved the problem that way.

Indeed, doctors would be more likely to be attracted to a rural area if a clinic were available. Such a facility, with doctors to staff it, would make for a big improvement all round.

LBJ Backs U Thant

As far as achieving a settlement of the Viet Nam conflict is concerned, President Johnson's undertaking to UN Secretary-General U Thant that he will give "closest personal attention" to UN peace problems could mean everything or nothing.

The president and his administration have consistently ignored UN principles and rulings on Viet Nam. One instance of this has been brought to light by Newsweek magazine, which quotes U Thant as saying that the United States refused peace talks he tried to arrange with North Viet Nam in 1964-65, because it feared even the rumor of a meeting might topple the Saigon government.

However, there are grounds for believing that Mr. Johnson was not fully appraised of U Thant's moves at his Texas ranch. High U.S. officials, according to Newsweek, confirm privately that the president was "largely unaware of the essential facts of the secretary-general's peacekeeping efforts" until he visited him at the UN last month on the eve of his tour of Asian countries.

This suggests the president is not always in full control of the situation, and the inference is that some of the "new approaches" he says he favors, as distinct from the "doves," have more control over the Viet Nam situation than Mr. Johnson himself.

Be that as it may the president is apparently bent on remedying this situation, to the extent at least of paying more attention to the secretary-general. This is all to the good, because it was U.S. intransigence, and its cavalier disregard not only for U Thant personally but for UN efforts to achieve a settlement that moved the secretary-general to indicate he would not continue for another five-year term.

Now the Burmese diplomat has been persuaded to remain in the position of secretary-general, and this is a measure of the regard world statesmen have for him.

Mr. Hees' Warning

As former trade minister and president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, George Hees knows something of the principles of economics, of tight money and easy money, of depression and its companion in arms, recession.

Mr. Hees has been peering into his economic crystal ball and what he sees is not encouraging. Even allowing for some political bias, the former cabinet minister's warning should not go unheeded. He says a tax increase in the forthcoming baby budget envisaged by Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp could be followed by a serious recession.

Taxes, Mr. Hees warned, boost the inflationary spiral and eventually affect domestic and export sales. He felt any further tax increase soon would "put things into the danger point."

While we are on this subject there is also the matter of public spending — and borrowing. The other day we mentioned that Canadians, in order to have the things they need (or do not need) are in debt to the tune of more than seven billion dollars. They owe this to banks and finance companies. And this kind of spending, much of it unnecessary, is a contributory factor in the inflationary excesses we are experiencing today.

Such savings as have been effected are becoming of less and less consequence as the value of the dollar declines. If there is a recession the whole economic edifice could collapse and everyone would suffer.

Canada's Role In the World

Christian Science Monitor

Canada's role in the world of today is virtually unique. It rests on the simple fact that nearly everybody trusts her. Yet strangely, to enjoy this trust, Canada has not had to resort into a position of formal nonalignment or neutrality between the various world groupings which threaten from time to time to collide.

Few countries are as involved with the United States as is Canada. Canada is' not only locally under the North Atlantic Treaty but shares with the United States an integrated defense system for North America. Then there is the Commonwealth relationship with Britain, within which Queen Elizabeth wears a crown as Queen of Canada. Altogether then Canada is deeply rooted in the Western world. But there is no power in that world so effective as Canada in bridging the gap which so often seems to separate it on the one hand from the Communist lands and, on the other, from the peoples of Africa and Asia.

Some may say that Canada has been able to move into this global role because of the long years of preparation as a bridge between Britain and the United States. Certainly this should not be discounted. But more than anything else we are Canada's far-flung acceptability as a seeming from her active and constructive support ever since the end of World War II to the principles and ideas enshrined in the United Nations Charter. Not only has Canada shown herself willing always to make the maximum contribution to UN peacemaking and peacekeeping. She has proven also over the years that she has a singular view of others, together with an integrity that prevents betrayal of a trust.

Strictly Personal
The Ambiguity of English

By Sidney J. Harris

English is an impressive and ambiguous language; it is not easy to say exactly what one means in it. Unlike French, which moves on pressed wheels to its destination, English is loose, floppy, vague and errant. This is the glory of our poetry; but it is also the despair of our logic and philosophy.

Robert Graves, perhaps our finest living poet, has observed that the calamitous charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava in the Crimean War was made because of a carelessly worded order to "charge for the guns." The British commander wanted some of his guns in an exposed position to be hauled out of enemy reach — but it was construed as an order to charge the Russian batteries.

"But even in the calmest times," Graves adds, "it is often very difficult to compose an English sentence that cannot possibly be misunderstood." In his book, "The Reader Over Your Shoulder," he gives an amusing and exasperating example of a discussion in a City Council in England.

There was a notice proposed for the entrance of South Park: "No dogs must be brought to this Park except on a lead." One councilman pointed out that this order would not prevent an owner from releasing his pet from a leash when once safely inside the Park.

He then proposed an alternative wording: "No dogs are allowed in this Park without leashes." Another councilman objected that the order should be addressed to the owners, not to the dogs.

A third wording was suggested: "Owners of dogs are not allowed in this Park unless they keep them on leashes." This was turned down, because, strictly speaking, this would prevent a dog-owner from leaving his dog in the garden at home and walking across the Park himself.

Another councilman tried this: "Nobody without his dog on a leash is allowed in this Park." Everyone objected, for this wording meant that a citizen who owns no dog could not walk in the Park without first acquiring one.

The chairman tried to cut through the verbal fog with the terse notice: "Dogs must be led in this Park." Again, objections, because it sounded as though it were a general injunction to the Borough to lead their dogs into the Park.

After several more tries — all of them open to misinterpretation — the council came through with: "All dogs in this Park must be kept on the leash." If we ourselves have so much trouble with signs and notices saying exactly what they mean, no more no less, how can we blame that famous French moatice for putting a sign in her window designated to attract the English trade: "Dresses for Street Walking"!

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 9, 1966 . . .

The U.S. Congress debated annexing Texas 122 years ago today — 1844. 20 years after the English-speaking Texans declared an independent republic and defeated the Mexican army. The main obstacle to the republic's joining the United States was its residents' pro-slavery feelings. Texas became a state in 1845 and seceded 15 years later (against the wishes of Governor Sam Houston) only to petition for readmission in 1866, as soon as the Civil War was over, promising an anti-slavery constitution.

1165—King Malcolm IV of Scotland died.

1842—The first Christmas card was made by 16-year-old William Maw Egley in England.

Letters to the Editor
Belleville in "Banana Belt"

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is wonderful to see the cooperative effort of municipal officials from Belleville, Trenton and Sidney Township in regard to the prospective Institute for Higher Education. We hope that this is an indication of many such co-operative efforts in the future.

I am wondering if our Industrial Commissions place enough emphasis upon our very favorable climate when promoting this area. Last week, for instance, it was approximately twice as cold in Belleville on Saturday, but there were many sub-zero temperatures recorded and close to us. During the same week western Ontario had a very heavy snow fall which we escaped. So often we read of snow and much more extreme temperatures which seem to miss us.

Often too we read and hear of floods and tremendous damage. We are certainly very fortunate in this area to have an abundance of water and yet to have both the Moira and Trent River under control.

Truly we do live in the "Banana Belt" and I think we should tell people about it. Of course it is a mile wet today but it is probably as warm as Florida.

Yours sincerely,
G. S. Martin.

Community College
Sees Drawbacks in Township Site

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The promotion of a Sidney Township location for the, proposed technological college, appears to be a compromise made to smooth the rivalry of Trenton and Belleville for the college and as with most compromises, is less than ideal.

Any township location has two obvious disadvantages, poor access from north-south highways plus over-heavy traffic on highway 2 and more important, the lack of an urban environment. Such an institution would not have adequate facilities to be self-contained for years, and needs a town as much as a town might feel it needs it.

Students and staff will need rental accommodation and benefit by banks, recreation and sports facilities, libraries, theatres, shops, restaurants and many other services only found in a large town.

Considering the overcrowded and awkward area the college is intended to serve, the sensible compromise would be a twin campus institution, one located in Peterborough to serve the northern and western area, and the second in Belleville or Trenton to serve the remainder.

The disadvantages of the Sidney Township site will be apparent to the Board of Governors, and Peterborough may "win" by default. By grasping for this white bone we also risk losing all. I hope our representatives push for the twin campus plan they have previously discussed → it is not only prudent but fairer to the potential students they represent.

And I hope our city fathers accept a site in Belleville and make an offer. Even if Trenton makes a counter offer and wins, we will still have the most making the wrong compromise.

To Your Good Health
Heavy Drinking Invites Trouble

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is a heavy drinker. He claims that as long as he eats nourishing food and maintains a good diet, alcohol will not harm his health.

How can some men drink all their lives and live as long as others? I know of some! Must they have strong constitutions, or does it apply to all? Just what effect does drinking have on health?—MRS. C.W.A.

Your husband is taking a little bit of fact and stretching it too much. So far as his liver is concerned, faulty diet certainly has a great deal to do with cirrhosis. While some folks get cirrhosis without ever having tasted alcohol, the majority of patients with severe cirrhosis are heavy drinkers who, in addition, did not eat properly. Some hard drinkers, of course, get to the point of going on extended benders and not eating at all.

A healthy liver can withstand a good deal of alcohol as a rule, but a drinker soon finds himself highly sensitive to alcohol which in a very real sense is then a poison.

So your husband's argument has a fleck of substance to it—regard (Dec. 17/66) that fleck with him, and his liver doesn't become diseased in some other way.

Trying to justify heavy drinking with just that argument is pretty specious. Excessive alcohol irritates the internal tissues. Whiskey tenors develop. Gastritis (inflammation of the stomach) is common. The "rumdumb" sot can't be laughed off. There are distinct and provable changes in blood chemistry.

Mentally and emotionally alcohol has manifold consequences. It is a depressant. It deranges judgment and retards reflexes. Changes in hormones and vitamin balance of the body have been noted, although whether this is a cause or results is moot.

Many people gradually drink more and more, and reach the not-eating point. Or they drive while drinking, or they stumble and fall, and the consequences are not to be avoided by your husband's touted good diet.

Liver disease and brain damage are the most destructive penalties of heavy drinking, but there are many more kinds, too.

I've consistently refused to preach total abstinence, because I think alcohol, when not abused does some good in the world, but I most vociferously disagree with your husband's notion that a good diet prevents all its dangers.

True, some people drink for years without visible effect on their livers and stretching it too much. So far as his liver is concerned, faulty diet certainly has a great deal to do with cirrhosis. While some folks get cirrhosis without ever having tasted alcohol, the majority of patients with severe cirrhosis are heavy drinkers who, in addition, did not eat properly. Some hard drinkers, of course, get to the point of going on extended benders and not eating at all.

Welfare Outlay in City

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have recently read in your paper that welfare in Belleville has only 150 persons receiving city welfare assistance. A saving of over $11,000 over the same previous yearly period had been realized.

This news seems encouraging to the taxpayer, but it brings several questions to mind that should be assessed and answered.

Most of the centres where lower percentages of welfare cases can be found are located in the southern part of Ontario. This coincides possibly with their associated industrial boom. It is strongly suspicious when a city such as Belleville with a long period of dormant industrial expansion should have a low percentage of welfare assistance.

It has been heard from several sources that there are just as many "hardship" cases in Belleville. Yet the assistance for their meagre existance now comes from publicly supported welfare agencies such as Children'said, Red Cross, church groups etc.

This may be good or bad depending on what funds these organizations have for this use and includes the generosity of senior government assistance as well.

One informant said that lack of city 'welfare' was creating more hardships not only materially but psychologically on the welfare recipients.

If this is true it is a deplorable situation and a reassessment of welfare assistance in this affluent age should be made.

It would be of public interest if your newspaper could investigate and report on conditions of welfare assistance in this community.

Agriculture Students Have Off Campus Course On How Marketing Policies Affect Farming

WINNIPEG (CP)— Some of the best teachers of agriculture students at the University of Manitoba have not been near a classroom for years.

They are business executives and government administrators involved in marketing, distribution and processing of food products. At least 50 of them are involved annually in showing students in the second-year class of the diploma course in agriculture how farm products are handled once they leave the farm.

Each of these off-campus experts and specialists lectures and demonstrates his organization's role in the marketing chain as part of an unique course on "marketing policies and practices."

Students spend two days a week for 10 weeks, touring market agencies, sales firms, processing plants and retail outlets. Their task is to find out from the men in charge the mechanics of the market and the economics involved. In some cases the students are short-term employees.

"The purpose of the course," says Prof. Gordon Anderson, "is to show the future commercial farmers just what happens to farm products before they are offered to the consumer.

"They learn where and what charges are set for the services performed all along the line and what economic factors underlie the day-to-day business of the food industry."

The course concentrates on the marketing and handling of grain and grain products, livestock and meats and produce such as vegetables.

Their study of the grain marketing structure places the students in direct contact with such grain handling firms as the federal-Searle Grain Co., Manitoba Pool Elevators, Canada Malting Co. and United Grain Growers. They discuss marketing with officials of the Canadian wheat board, the board of grain commissioners and the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

The highlight of this portion of the course is a trip to the Lakehead to get a first-hand look at a grain terminal and a malting plant. Members of the grain trade finance the major portion of this trip.

In their study of the livestock and meat marketing business, the students work for two days in teams of two with member firms of the Winnipeg Livestock Exchange. They feed and water cattle consigned to the firms, group them in selling lots and scrutinize lots for purchase.

Lectures and tours of the Manitoba hog marketing commission offices, Canada Packers, Swift Canadian Co. and the Red River Co-operative Supermarket meat department are part of the course.

Nice and easy.

It's nice work, making a whisky that tastes as easy as 5 Star. But it's no easy job.
It means selecting very special whiskies from our five distilleries across Canada. (Only Seagram's has five, by the way). Then blending and re-blending them to get 5 Star's easy taste.
Is the taste worth all the trouble? Very easy for you to find out.

Yule Tea, Bazaar Sponsored By Tabernacle Church Women

One of the most popular bazaars of the year was held on Wednesday afternoon in Tabernacle United Church by the ladies of all the organizations of the church.

The guests were first greeted by Santa Claus in his sleigh, complete with reindeer and gifts. At the door, assisting the venerable gentleman, was Mrs. H. Bailey, convener and Mrs. B. A. Crooks, wife of the minister of the church. The bazaar was officially opened by Rev. R. A. Crooks.

The ladies of Tabernacle Church, by virtue of much labor and ingenuity, always manage to present a great variety of booths. Especially attractive was the centre booth of Christmas decorations. Toyland, besides offering many manufactured articles, had doll clothes for all types of dolls, handmade to delight the heart of any wee lass. Milady's boudoir gratified not only the sense of sight but the sense of smell, with sachets and mysterious bottles and containers of bath salts and perfumes. Anyone fortunate enough to get near the homebaking delicatessen and candy tables came away with something extra special indeed, as was the case with the aprons and novelties. The Hi-C Trading Post besides being a treasure house, was further enhanced by the young traders in pioneer costumes of long dresses and poke bonnets for the girls, talls, high hats and canes for the boys.

The men of Tabernacle Church always do their share towards the bazaar. Percy Kerr, Joe Hunter and Harry Bailey offered fancy cushions, cheese, bird houses, potatoes, house plants and even a pool table which will cheer a young lad and also his daddy come Christmas morning.

Mrs. Thomas Orr, is to be commended for her efforts in decorating for the occasion.

The serving tables were covered in white damask linen and silver tea services, centred with a large white candle glittering in gold and silver on a red doily. The candle was flanked by pine boughs, pine cones and perky little birds, with four twisted candles, one at each corner of the doily. The individual tea tables were centred with red and green doilies, pine cones and a few sprigs of pine branches. The table centres were created by Mrs. R. Boldrick and Mrs. E. Goodfellow.

During the first hour Mrs. B. Salisbury, Mrs. E. Lott, Mrs. A. Archibald and Mrs. E. Nelson poured tea. During the second hour Mrs. R. Crooks, Mrs. H. Bailey, Mrs. M. Graham, and Mrs. W. Slavin presided, and during the third hour, Mrs. J. Aitchison, Mrs. C. Templer, Mrs. A. Cornish and Miss E. Horton.

General conveners of the bazaar were Mrs. Harry Bailey and Mrs. Edwin M. Lott. Those in charge of the various booths were: Fancy work, Mrs. G. Miller; aprons, Mrs. W. B. May; children's wear, Mrs. R. Petifor; boy and girl toyland, Mrs. G. Reynolds and Mrs. D. Maclean; bake goods, Mrs. E. Greenleaf; delicatessen, Mrs. C. Mott; candy, Mrs. F. Buttery. Christmas decor, Mrs. C. MacKenzie; milady's boudoir, Mrs. Robert Atkins and Mrs. D. Mitchell; Hi-C trading post, Mr. Bruce LaRue; CGIT, Miss Judy Robb.

The tea room was in charge of Mrs. H. Robinson, with convener Mrs. R. Love. Assisting Mrs. Trumpour were Mrs. D. Atkins, Mrs. P. Toland and Miss E. Horton. Tea room hostesses were Mrs. H. Robinson, Mrs. R. Love, Mrs. R. Boldrick and Mrs. C. Shaw.

Camera Club Enjoys Views Of Europe

As the season progresses many new members and visitors are turning out to enjoy the instructional and social events which are being presented.

Evidence of the benefits, people can achieve, from belonging to a local camera club, is being shown this year with members having several years' experience, providing mort social programs.

Due to a full social program, for the evening the monthly competition with the theme "Belleville", has had to be held over until January. It is hoped to provide a special program to consist of two monthly competitions, combined, at this time.

Mrs. E. Ineson showed his photographic abilities to best advantage, when he took the members on a photo-travelogue tour of the European Continent, which he visited last fall. Combining colored 35 mm slides with taped comments, and musical background, he presented a most enjoyable program, for the evening's social hour.

The "Canadian Photographic Society" forwarded their selection of slides chosen as the best from a recent cross country competition with our members viewing and commenting on them.

The evening was concluded on a social note with refreshments being served. It was mentioned at this time that the next meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, January 4th, 1967. -

All members are requested to submit their combined slides for the competition, theme, "Belleville" and the competition "Picture Story Sequence", consisting of three to six pictures at this time. Visitors are extended a welcome to participate in this enjoyable hobby.

Senior Citizens Hold Annual Yule Bazaar

Remember how mother baked? She used a pinch of this, a bit of that and a lot of know how, and always the result was wonderful. Such was the success of the annual Christmas tea and bazaar sponsored by the Senior Citizens' Club of Belleville at the Recreation Centre on Wednesday afternoon. The bazaar was officially opened by Mr. Lloyd Doran.

Surrounded by Christmas garlands, the hall breathed the spirit of the season. The serving table covered with cutwork cloth and centred by Christmas bells and poinsettia, flanked by green and red candles was presided over during the afternoon by Mrs. W. Calbury, Mrs. M. Wannamaker, Mrs. G. Gist, Mrs. F. Bly and Mrs. J. Doyle. Small tables for the guests boasted white linen cloths with green candles in silver candlesticks.

There were many fine pieces of crochet, knitting, sewing and novelty work. The baking table and candy tables were loaded with mouth watering delicacies.

Overall conveners were Mrs. M. Clapp and Mrs. H. Taylor. In charge of the bake table was Mrs. K. Ferguson and Mrs. M. Cook; candy — Mrs. H. Vickers; fancy work — Mrs. E. Luffman and Miss I. Reid; aprons — Mrs. A. Longhurst; and Mrs. H. Claus; white elephant table — Mrs. M. Doyle and Mrs. M. Simpson.

Mrs. M. McKenna was kitchen convener. Taking the tickets at the door were Mrs. F. Bedell and Mrs. L. Sharpe. Piano music for the afternoon was furnished by Mrs. L. Adams.

For Women Only

It's A Permanent Coffee Break at the Bank

MONTREAL (CP)—With the Dec. 12 opening of Le Salon, the Bank of Montreal's exclusive new branch for women only, it won't be all unusual for ladies to meet at the bank for coffee.

Le Salon, located on Sherbrooke Street in the heart of Montreal's fashionable uptown shopping area, has introduced an entirely new concept into Canadian banking.

In addition to the usual facilities for savings and chequing accounts, the bank provides personal services for travel funds, passports and letters of credit.

Extra costs of provision of the special services at the branch will be covered by the requirement that clients maintain a minimum credit balance of $2,000.

HAS REGENCY MOTIF

From floor to ceiling Le Salon is decorated and fitted in a Regency motif. Pink broadloom carpets create a subdued air of elegance.

Antique mahogany desks are placed throughout the main banking area so customers can conduct their business seated opposite assistants instead of through "cages." Among the assistants there is at least one who speaks fluently in either English, French or German.

A maid is on the premises during banking hours and coffee is served in fine bone china cups to clients.

Although the Bank of Montreal has some 60 women in management, including branch managers, a man was chosen to act as adviser in the all-female environment "because," said Mr. Haslett, "women still prefer to talk business with a man and it is for this reason that a man is in charge."

Business College Instruction Needed To Acquire Perfect Penmanship

DORIS CLARK

Will you please advise Messy Writer that she will need instruction as well as practice? This may be obtained at a business college, perhaps a night class.

I never learned to write until I attended business college and it is important. I had no writing instruction after the first grades. I wrote backhand with many curlicues.

A child near here could not pass spelling tests until a neighbor took him in hand and taught him penmanship; he was a former business college principal. The child's mistakes were not in spelling: it was rather that his teacher could not read his writing so marked his work "wrong".

Importance of Penmanship.

DEAR PENMANSHIP —

All messy writers — take note! If you want to put your best foot forward, you'll need to write a good hand.

Not only that, but it shows thoughtfulness when — one takes pains to make handwriting legible. Well worth some night classes.

DEAR DORIS —

Please tell me if, when I made a will leaving a small sum (less than $1,000) to my only son and relative, an executor to this will was necessary, to make the will valid. The lawyer (some years ago) did not mention this.

Mrs. S.

DEAR MRS. S. —

Somebody has to do the actual work of carrying out the instructions in the will.

Failing to name an executor wouldn't make the will invalid. But if the court appoints an administrator it is likely to cost a great deal more.

To Sixty-Five Years Young: The Old Age Security Plan is one thing; The Canada Pension Plan quite a different one. The first provides a flat-rate pension to elderly, solely on the basis of age and length of residence in Canada. The second will furnish a pension, later on, related to the contributions and earnings made by the recipients during years of employment.

You will be eligible for O.A.S. in 1968, when you will have reached 67, by 1970 it will be payable at age 65. Your application (and there are forms in any post office) should be made six months before you become eligible.

To Bored Stiff: Why be so serious about what are really trifles? It's my guess that you have kept your nose down so long that all you can see is the grindstone. Read a joke book; learn a riddle; see if you can't strike a spark of joy somewhere— even if it seems forced at first. If you can make someone else laugh, you'll get a feedback.

Confidential to Loves Children: Keeping up with the Jones next door is a poor reason for adding to your brood. Who is going to buy the extra bacon if Hubby is still only working part time until he graduates? Raising two, and helping out with a job, surely makes you feel important enough, right now!

Doctor Issues Warning Against Trike-riding

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After a long day at the hospital (I am chief of surgery) I picked up Ed Sullivan and turned to your column. I was overwhelmed by the letter from the distraught woman whose brother committed suicide after he had run over a child pushing in the street.

An hour ago I had to face an anguished mother and tell her that her 4-year-old, blue-eyed son had died on the table. He, too, was riding his tricycle in the street and had been hit by a truck. Her last hope — a child — was entangled with the trike that the boy and the trike were laid together on the stretcher.

I cannot count the times I have been called to the emergency room to face sobbing parents whose child was playing in the street. Sometimes we are lucky and can mend the broken body, but too often we cannot.

I would like to ask the parents who are reading this column, "Do you want your child to grow up to be an adult?" You will of course reply, "What a foolish question." But I warn you, the next time you allow him to ride his trike any place he chooses, he may not come back to you alive. — ANONYMOUS M.D.

* * *

DEAR M.D.: Many thanks for taking the time and trouble to write. Over 30 million people will see your letter, and some of them will heed your warning.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I used to think you had a good sense of humor but I am beginning to wonder. Your reply to the young couple who named their pet poodle Pearl, after their mother who had just died, was dumb.

I named my hamster Lily, after Mom, and she was honored. I'll bet if that mother named Pearl was alive she would be honored. — MIKE.

* * *

DEAR MIKE: If Pearl were alive she'd probably be honored, but Pearl isn't alive, and that's the difference. It's O.K. to name a pet after the living, but I feel it is disrespectful to name a dog after a recently deceased mother.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a high school senior who read something in a psychology book that sounded a lot like your column. It was straight to the plot and it made a lot of sense.

Often you print letters from girls who get into trouble because they engage in pre-marital sexual relations. Parents could help prevent such trouble if they understood a few things. Here is the quote and I hope you consider it worth publishing because 80% of the mothers and fathers in this country never see a psychology book.

"The parent of the opposite sex wields a powerful influence on a child's attitude toward sex. The impact of a father's personality on his daughter is often far greater than he suspects. A girl whose father does not admire her or take an interest in what she does often feels cheated and turns to another male whose admiration she hopes to win. In an attempt to satisfy the emotional needs not met by her father, she may try to hold the devotion of a boy friend by giving the keeps of herself. This could lead to physical intimacy." — MONTREAL MISS.

DEAR MONTREAL: The quote you sent is excellent. It expresses in forthright, easy-to-understand language one of the major reasons for promiscuity. I appreciate your sending it to me and I hope it makes a dent.

Marinated Mushrooms Make Holiday Treat

Question: . . . do you have a recipe for pickled mushrooms? Mrs. W. K. O.

Answer: I have a recipe for Marinated Mushrooms which I recommended highly. Green peppers are included in it but they could be omitted, but I think you will be glad if you include them.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS AND GREEN PEPPERS

¾ lb. medium-small raw mushrooms

1 large green pepper

Onion French dressing (see below)

Under running water scrub the mushrooms until you are sure they are clean. Cut them in halves down through the stems. Drain and dry. Wash the green pepper and cut in half and remove seeds and ribs. Cut into pieces about 1 x ¼". Combine Four over Onion French Dressing: One-half cup salad oil, 2 tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon onion salt, ½ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce (optional), ½ clove garlic, sliced. Combine all ingredients. Shake well and pour over mushrooms and green pepper in bowl, cover and refrigerate for 24 hours, stirring 3 or 4 times. Drain at serving time and serve cold. Delicious as a cocktail snack or with hot or cold beef or any cold meats or fish. NOTE: If desired you can make an easier Onion French Dressing by using 1 foil package of Onion French Dressing dry mix. Put this into the graduate flask manufactured for the purpose and add vinegar, water and oil as directed. Shake well.

MINISTER UPBRAIDS SEPARATIST — Labor Minister Nicholson (right) in a chance meeting outside the Commons chamber Thursday with Gilles Gregoire tells the MP that what he did Wednesday was "a disgrace." Mr. Gregoire refused to give unanimous consent for debate of proposed legislation to deal with the tie-up of West Coast ports. The disputing parties in the strike agreed Thursday to end the stoppage while an industrial inquiry looks into points at issue. (CP Photo)

Medical Bill Finally Passes Despite Last Minute Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — A bit battered, but still intact, the government's medical care insurance bill sailed safely into port Thursday and a sister bill to help the aged steamed full speed ahead.

Debate Thursday was divided among settlement of the West Coast port strike, medical care and old age security legislation. MPs were in turn today to uninterrupted study of the measure proposing an increase in pensions to the needy elderly.

Labor Minister Nicholson announced the ports settlement at the start of Thursday's sitting and the House then turned to the medical care insurance bill, which provides for the federal government to pay half the cost of approved provincial insurance schemes.

But before the measure received third reading, it had to await a final Opposition attempt to change the bill.

At issue in an amendment by Dr. F. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) was the key opposition objection to the plan—the government's postponement of the effective date of the bill to July 1, 1968, from the originally announced date one year earlier.

The Liberals were joined by four Social Credit MPs and one independent as they defeated the amendment 103 to 80. It would have sent the House back into committee to re-insert the earlier starting date. Supporting the amendment were 61 Conservatives, 18 New Democrats and one independent MP.

The bill then easily gained final reading, 177 to 2. Social Credit Leader Thompson and Howard Johnstone (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke) voted against it.

George Hees (PC—Northumberland) and David Lewis (NDP—York South) fought for the earlier starting date and rejected Finance Minister Sharp's stand that cost of the measure could more easily be met in 1968.

Mr. Hees said the real reason for the delay was that the government planned to call an election in early 1968 and wanted the medical care bill for a plum to hold out to the electorate.

Mr. Lewis said implementation of the plan might easily be more difficult in 1968 than in 1967.

THERE'S NO REASON

"There is not any economic reason for this postponement; and certainly there is not any political reason for this postponement.

"There is nothing but obstinacy and reactionary financial considerations that have no relevance to Canada's economy or to the welfare of the country."

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) said it was a "cruel jest" to postpone the plan for a year using the argument that it could have an inflationary effect. He urged Health Minister MacEachen to "threaten to stage a walkout, or something like that" to win cabinet approval for an earlier start.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said that "even yet the government might show that it recognizes implicitly the meaning of solemn undertakings given both during an election campaign and for a long time prior thereto."

He could only believe the reason for the delay "is that the government knows that in its present form the plan will not work."

ONE AMENDMENT STICKS

Over the many days of debate on the bill, the sole amendment approved to change the bill in any important way was one urged by the opposition and finally introduced by the government.

It makes it possible for the government, through orders-in-council, to broaden the coverage to include groups such as dental surgeons and optometrists, if a province wishes to include such services.

To qualify for federal assistance a provincial plan must cover 90 per cent of its population initially, apply to all services by physicians, be portable and be administered by a body accountable to a legislature.

The pension bill provides for a $30 monthly increase to $105 for recipients of old age security payments with no other income. Those with income will have the $30 reduced by $1 for every $2 they earn privately.

Mr. MacEachen said the opposition's insistence on a flat $25 increase in the basic pension would mean $60 a year less for between 300,000 and 600,000 pensioners with no outside income.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said this party would press for changes in the bill but would support it.

Although the plan did not contain as severe a means test as some plans, applicants still had to reveal their income to get the increased income and this was a means test. Applicants would suffer indignities in obtaining the increase.

Drug Cost Burden Condemned

OTTAWA (CP) — Medical members of the Commons drug prices inquiry expressed surprise Thursday that neither drug manufacturers nor retail druggists had responded favorably to appeals to help lift the burden of drug costs from children afflicted with cystic fibrosis.

Officials of the Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation told the committee that drug costs for sufferers of the disease range up to $300 a month.

Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) and Dr. William Howe (NDP—Hamilton South) asked whether the druggists' association and the drug manufacturers' association had offered help or responded to appeals on behalf of these patients.

When foundation officials said they hadn't, Dr. Howe suggested it is clear that the two associations are more concerned with making money than performing any philanthropic service.

Liberal MP Turns Maverick To Protest Pension Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — James Brown turned into a "maverick" Liberal MP chiefly this week, but don't brand him with the same iron as Ralph B. Cowan.

Mr. Brown, a lawyer from Brantford, broke party lines to the extent of criticizing his government's pension policy.

But he said in an interview he doesn't make a practice of parading his differences with the cabinet and full public view on the Commons floor.

"I just had to do it this time," said the 7-year - old member who has been battling for higher pensions since his election in the June sweep.

"But I'm not just quite like Ralph Cowan yet."

Mr. Cowan, member for the Toronto riding of York-Humber, wins the party's maverick contest hands down.

He often puts cabinet ministers on the griddle in strident tones. In recent weeks he has castigated the cabinet for commuting death sentences, although hanging is the law, and for not applying closure to end a Conservative money debate in filibuster.

Government back - benchers are supposed to air their differences with the party in the closed confines of caucus. Once an issue reaches the Commons, they are supposed to present a solid front.

But Mr. Brown said he had "worked off" on higher flat-rate pensions since the days of the St. Laurent cabinet.

He had hoped to discuss this time against the government's decision to add up to $30 a month to the $75 old age pension for those in need. The plan, based on an income test, would trim $3 off the $30 supplement for every $2 of outside income a pensioner has above the $75 a month.

He argued for a flat increase to $100 a month for every pensioner without any test related to income.

In his Commons speech, he said he campaigned before the 1965 election on the $100 pension. He also took issue with the government's argument that an income test is not a means test.

"The proposed legislation forces people to prove they are poverty - stricken before they can qualify for the supplement," he told the House. "... We have a means test in front of us."

"I cannot and I dare not oppose this resolution because if I did I would be opposing the principle that thousands and thousands of needy people should receive this supplement, and I could never do that.

"Apparently I cannot have my own way in this matter and I will have to yield . . . to the government's proposed plan."

Mr. Brown said no effort was made to stop him from saying his piece although his party "knew darned well" what he would say.

He was picked as secretary of his Liberal association at age 15, he added, and usually managed to function with his unwritten rules. But this was perhaps "the most important thing I've had to explain," to constituents.

"I've been a good party member and worker for years. I still am, I guess."

Kitten Survives Freezing Ride

ST. ALBANS, Vt. (AP)—A little, grey kitten which arrived here from Canada with its feet frozen to the top of a freight car will live out the rest of its proverbial nine lives in the comfort of a railway worker's home.

Central Vermont Railway workers said the kitten was lucky to have had its feet embedded in ice, otherwise it could have blown off the freight car during the 180-mile trip from Brockville last weekend.

The kitten was freed with only minor injuries and U.S. custom officials waived the usual animal inspection for border crossing.

A yard worker has adopted it.

Over Million Canadians Have Quit But 300 New Smokers Start Each Day

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,000,000 persons have overcome the habit of smoking, the health and welfare department said Thursday in releasing a survey on smoking in Canada.

The study also shows that of the estimated 5,500,000 Canadians who still smoke more than 45 per cent have seriously tried to quit.

Health Minister MacEachen says the "results . . . are significant when it is realized that at least 300 persons a day acquire the habit every day."

"The figures not only show that a large number of Canadians are personally concerned about cigarette smoking, but that many have been able to break the habit."

The study by Canadian Facts Ltd. between November, 1965, and January, 1966, among persons 15 years and older showed that among present non-smokers, 52 per cent of the men and nine per cent of the women at one time smoked regularly.

It also says there is evidence that some people can ease off in their smoking and that among those who smoke cigarettes only occasionally, 46 per cent of the men and 23 per cent of the women—a total of nearly 150,000 persons — formerly smoked cigarettes daily.

British Columbia showed the highest percentage of former smokers—49 per cent of the men and 17 per cent of the women—and Quebec the lowest —30 per cent of men and eight per cent of women.

B.C. also showed the highest proportion, at 33 per cent, of regular cigarette smokers who have tried to quit and Quebec the lowest at 27 per cent.

Among men, those who forswore the weed were more common in urban than rural areas. It was 50-50 with women.

Attempts to quit were more common among those under 40 but the men who actually did were more frequently 40 or older and the women between 20 and 39.

"Over-all, however, the findings indicate that dissatisfaction with their cigarette smoking habits is common among all age groups."

Of those surveyed, 64 per cent had stopped steady smoking for more than five years, 19 per cent for three to five years, 13 per cent for one to two years, and 15 per cent for less than a year.

Why did they quit?

Thirty - two per cent mentioned health reasons.

Fourteen per cent specified coughing, throat irritation or bronchitis and 10 per cent doctor's orders or suggestion.

Sunday School Lesson

News to Startle Kings

By Clarence W. Cranford

If Hitler could come back to earth, some of the things he would find out well have him speechless. For example, when he was the proud and boastful leader of Germany, Dietrich Bonhoeffer was a brilliant but a little-known German theologian who had been thrown into a Nazi prison to await hanging by the Gestapo. Today the very memory of Hitler is a stench in the nostrils of the world while the name of Bonhoeffer grows in power because of the Christian witness that came from his prison cell.

So it has been so often in history. Arrogant kings have become a despised memory. The humble servants of humanity like the St. Francises, the John Runyans, the Pasteurs, the Lincolns — have become a power for good in all succeeding generations.

The Uniform Sunday School for December 11: "Redemption through suffering." Isaiah 52:13 through 53:12.

This tells us something about God, something the author of Isaiah 53 glimpsed so clearly. Micah 6:8 has sometimes been called the high-water-mark of the Old Testaments. Micah says God requires men "to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly" with God. If this is the highest revelation in the Old Testament, surely Isaiah 53 is the deepest as the prophet plumbs the depths of God's dealings with men.

What he has to report, says the prophet, is so shocking it is hard for many to believe it. (Isaiah 53:1). It will startle nations, and even leave kings speechless. (Isaiah 52:15).

What is this news that is so shocking? It has to do with the "servant" of God (Isaiah 52:13) and with the cruel treatment he has received at the hands of men even though "He had done no violence, and there was no deceit in His mouth." (Isaiah 53:9 RSV)

One way to follow the prophet's message is to notice his pronouns. He begins with 'He', the 'servant' of God. "He was despised and rejected by men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief." (Isaiah 53:3 RSV).

Who did this to Him? The prophet comes to his second pronoun. He says "we" did. "We esteemed Him not." (Isaiah 53:3). "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned everyone to his own way." (Isaiah 53:6 RSV). All men, says the prophet, are under a cloud of guilt. All men have sinned, and come short of the glory of God. (Romans 3:23).

Even so-called good men have often looked the other way. "He" was "as one from whom men hide their faces." (Isaiah 53:3 RSV). Several times recently, people being attacked have called for help, and passers-by have ignored them. Because of fear, or not wanting to get involved, they have looked the other way. All too many have heard hungry people crying for food, and oppressed people crying for justice, and have turned a deaf ear.

But notice, the pronoun changes from "we" to "our". "He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities." (Isaiah 53:5 RSV). Man's greatest progress has not come through men of ruthless power, but through persons who have been willing to suffer for the sake of others. Walter Reed risked his life to try to save men from yellow fever. St. Francis gave up his wealth, and lived with the poor to espouse their cause. Teachers, physicians, social-workers, all people who have put principle before expediency, and people before personal privilege, these are the ones who have helped advance the cause of humanity.

But where is God in all this? Did He forget His suffering "servant"? Suddenly God's voice breaks in with the 4th pronoun. "I", says God, "will give him a portion with the great." (Isaiah 53:12 RSV). God has not been sleeping He has not forgotten His servant. He has permitted him to suffer for the sake of others. Now he will exalt him.

He permitted him to suffer because there is no other way to lift men from their sins. Arrogance won't do it. Even brilliance cannot. Men can spend their time making brilliant changes, and still end up with the world in a mess because people have not been changed.

Only God can do that as He expresses his redeeming love through those who are willing to suffer for the sake of others. And who is "he" through whom God expressed His love supremely? Undoubtedly the prophet was thinking of the suffering o Israel as he wrote. Christians have seen in the passage the perfect description o the suffering of Christ, and in Christ the perfect embodiment of the person and treatment described by Isaiah. To them the cross becomes the most telling symbol of God's love for men.

Island Park, Not Plaza, Suggested

KESWICK, Ont. (CP)—Donald R. Martyn, federal Progressive Conservative candidate in the Metropolitan Toronto riding of York North, said Wednesday night Georgina Island, an Indian reserve off Lake Simcoe's north shore, should be turned into a recreational park.

The Indians, with an assist from the federal Indian affairs department, are trying to lease the 3,200-acre island for large-scale commercial development including a causeway, 8,000 homes and a shopping plaza.

He told the island's 120 Ojibway Indians its commercial development would be "ruthless rape of the wilderness." Instead, it should be turned into a park and wildlife sanctuary as a badly needed recreational area for Metropolitan Toronto.

This way, the island would be kept "wholly Canadian" rather than developed with American capital, Mr. Martyn said.

Housewives' Protest Groups Unite; First Target: 'Gimmicks' in Cereals

OTTAWA (CP)—Ready - to - eat breakfast cereals sold by "gimmicks" will be left on supermarket shelves by members of the Canadian Consumers' Protest Association in a three-week boycott beginning Jan. 13.

Mrs. Lawrence Wilson president of the new association said at a press conference Thursday housewives will be asked not to buy cereals which beam their advertising at toddlers through cartoon characters of offers of toys.

After Jan. 3, 1967, another product or produce counter will be announced for selective shopping.

The association was formed at a conference of leaders from regional consumers' groups Wednesday and Thursday. Of the 30 delegates, 22 represented about 30 organizations from Halifax to Winnipeg. A Vancouver delegation was stranded in Toronto when bad weather cancelled airline flights.

A brief from the national organization will be presented to the parliamentary food prices committee in January, Mrs. Wilson said.

The five - women national board of directors represents centres from Halifax to Winnipeg. The board has been elected for six months. The site for an annual meeting planned for next June has not yet been decided.

The protest groups which began by refusing to shop in supermarkets now have worked out a positive program aimed at lowering food prices.

In a summary of regional briefs presented to the conference, a federal department of consumer affairs, possibly including a price review board, is recommended. The summary asks for federal and provincial tax policy revision, especially on provincial sales tax.

Commoning that present antimbiest and food and drug legislation is "a joke" the summary urges the government to introduce a bill with teeth in it to regulate food industries.

Venturing into economic and trade policy, the housewives' summary said abolishing all tariffs on foodstuffs would encourage needed competition in the food business.

Ontario, Quebec, Winnipeg, St. John, N.B., and Halifax, said in statements at the end of the press conference they planned to start membership drives in their communities.

The regional groups will retain their own names and identity, but contribute about 50 per cent of their finances to the national headquarters.

Directors of the association are: Mrs. Wilson, Manotick, Ont.; Mrs. D. W. Pearse, Winnipeg; Mrs. Sam Hammond, Hamilton, Ont.; Mrs. Marcel Gelinas, Montreal; Mrs. Nelson Dearing, Windsor, Ont.; and Mrs. James Palmer, Halifax.

Housewives' Demands Push Prices Higher

HAMILTON (CP)—A farmer Thursday laid a major share of the blame for high food costs at the door of the housewife.

Tom Robson of Leamington, a director of the Ontario Canning Crop Growers' Association and a vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said food processors are not making excess profits. Packing costs are a major factor in prices, he said.

"They (housewives) pay 25 cents for a package to carry home a pound of bacon rather than buy it in old brown wrapping paper," he told the OCCGA convention.

No Loophole in Licensing Transport Official Says

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Ontario department of transport denied Thursday there is any loop-hole in Ontario law that permits motorists to drive without insurance or without contributing to the province's unsatisfied judgment fund.

He was replying to a statement by Crown Attorney Peter McWilliams to a coroner's jury in Oakville Wednesday that there appeared to be a loop-hole in the law.

The inquest was told that William David Leet, 21, of Oakville, driver of a car in which three persons were killed, had his driver's licence restored after a suspension by showing a proof-of-insurance slip. After he got the licence he let the insurance lapse.

The department spokesman said that anyone who drives a car must produce proof at any time, at the request of a policeman, that the driver is insured or that the uninsured motor vehicle fee has been paid.

In addition, a motorist convicted of drunk driving, impaired driving, criminal negligence or manslaughter must provide proof of financial responsibility before getting back either a driver's licence or motor vehicle licence.

GETS MONEY FOR TITLE

TOKYO (Reuters) — Princess Yasuko, niece of Japan's Emperor Hirohito, will be given a lump sum of 27,000,000 yen ($83,600) compensation for renouncing her title to marry a commoner, it was announced Thursday.

Provinces Have Control

Federal Regime Without Right To Stop Deceptive Packaging

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has little authority in some of the critical areas where the committee investigating food prices might like to suggest bold legislation.

A health department expert told the committee Thursday that only the provinces can step down deceptive packaging, fractional sizes and misleading labels and bonuses.

Dr. R. A. Chapman, boss of the food and drug directorate, suggested that the way out may be duplicate or concurrent legislation enacted at the same time by Ottawa and the provinces.

But this would require close inter - governmental agreement in an area complicated by differences of political philosophy.

SEEK ANSWERS

They pressed Dr. Chapman hard Thursday for answers to a dilemma posed by the limited scope of federal legislation and federal powers.

Dr. Chapman said the Food and Drug Act, applying to foods, drugs, cosmetics and medical devices, is a criminal law enactment under which charges can be laid against the food industry only when it endangers health or commits fraud.

This severely limits the scope of the act. Because criminal law is involved, prosecutions are hard to win.

Food - industry abuses most often mentioned by housewives and consumer groups — confusing claims, odd sizes, deception in prices and containers—don't add up to fraud in the legal sense, Dr. Chapman said.

If the federal government tried to pass legislation in this area it would fall into the category of trade and commerce in food.

But in this case, the federal authority extends only to foods entering interprovincial trade. Its laws would be largely ineffective within provinces, and easy to dodge.

DIVISION HEARS BEEFS

Dr. Chapman said the directorate has its own division to hear consumer complaints and take action where possible. It received 1,700 beefs last year and went to court 100 times to seek prosecutions under the act.

Committee members complained they had never heard of the consumer service, and were told that only $18,000 a year is spent to publicize the division, that it is not listed in telephone books, and that it has only three full-time consultants outside Ottawa.

Earlier Thursday, the Canadian Labor Congress argued against any major restraining action by the government to tackle so - called inflationary pressures.

The CLC said the economy now is deflating itself. There was some danger of a downturn in 1967 and 1968. Tax raises, major cutbacks in government spending or deferment of social security programs could plunge the country into a recession.

Area Increases Differ

Auto Insurance Rates to Climb Next Year

TORONTO (CP) — Motorists in six provinces will have to pay more next year for automobile insurance — with increases ranging up to 28 per cent—according to an All Canada Insurance Federation survey released Thursday night.

The survey forecast rates will go up in Ontario, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba and Alberta. There will be decreases in Prince Edward Island, Quebec and British Columbia.

The government-operated insurance rate for Saskatchewan, raised 11 per cent last spring, will probably remain the same for some months, the survey said.

In Ontario, the average increase predicted is about three per cent. In addition, the survey forecasts an increase of about seven per cent on part of the average insurance policy—that covering third-party liability—because of new legislation making motorists responsible for injuries to passengers when the "gross negligence" can be proved.

BLAMES COST CLAIMS

Aside from this, the survey blames "steadily rising claims costs" as the major reason for rate increases in Ontario.

"... While there has not been an appreciable increase in the frequency of automobile insurance claims in Ontario, the average cost of each claim has jumped from $436 to $496," the survey says.

Around the province, rate changes will vary from a drop of 18 per cent in North Bay to an increase of 28 per cent at the Lakehead.

The survey gives examples of rate changes for Ontario municipals, based on late-model, medium-priced cars with insurance of "$100,000 inclusive third-party liability, $100 deductible collision and $25 dollars deductible comprehensive":

Toronto up 6.6 per cent; Hamilton - Oakville up seven per cent; Ottawa down 2.5 per cent; Kitchener, Guelph, Galt up 26 per-cent; Sudbury down 0.5 per-cent; Kingston down one per cent.

Across the country, the survey says, "the accident rate has brightened slightly with fewer insurance claims being made for each automobile. However, the average cost of each accident is increasing steadily."

Most insurance companies now are printing and distributing new rate manuals which will take effect after Jan. 1, the survey says.

Most companies also will use a new classification system next year giving a larger discount to drivers who have gone three or more years without a claim —60 per-cent discount compared to the present 35 per cent.

Allard Hints Delay Possible in France

LONDON (CP) — Gen. Jean Allard, chief of the Canadian defence staff, hinted Thursday that Canada may be able to gain a little time in the arduous job of moving its two air bases from France.

"We have some good arrangements with the French," Allard said in a telephone interview from Paris when asked whether the April deadline will have to be rigidly observed.

However, once the move is made, there will be no remnant of Canadian military air transport on French soil.

Allard, who previously suggested it would be advantageous for Canada to have such transport in France to serve Canadian military commitments in the Middle East and elsewhere, said: "It is not necessary nor desirable to leave anything behind."

"This question has been in the air a long time. Like everybody else we were warned to move. We are definitely leaving France. We can supply the Middle East no matter where we relocate."

President de Gaulle has ordered all NATO military bases closed and removed from France by next April.

Asked specifically whether France now had agreed to extend the deadline for removal of the bases, Allard said he could say no more than that "we have some good arrangements with the French."

Paul Smith Remanded

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Paul Smith, 37, of Hastings, Ont., was remanded one week when he appeared in court Thursday charged with non-capital murder in the death of Larry Robert Reynolds, 26, also of Hastings.

Reynolds' body was found Saturday night in a crashed car near a Hastings-area concession road. A post mortem showed the man died of gunshot wounds.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By Bernard C. Meltzer

The general public is the greatest impediment against quality construction in new houses. This statement may appear to be overdrawn, but actually it contains element of the truth. The public demands quality construction, but its collective buying actions force minimum construction standards. The explanation below may generate considerable controversy.

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

I bought a new house two years ago. While I'm satisfied with it, I'm beginning to realize that if the builder had spent some extra money on basic construction, it could be an excellent house instead of just a good house.

He used 2 x 2 lumber, I wish he had used No. 1. The floor joists are 2 x 10 inches, if he had used 2 x 10 inches, the house would have a more solid feel. The roof has only a 10 year guarantee. For an extra $35 he could have got a 20 year roof. There are only two shut off valves in the house. I wish there was one at every fixture.

I could enumerate dozens of similarly small, but which I think are important, features in basic construction. I must admit that the parts that are seen, such as the kitchen and baths, are excellent.

The builder has an excellent reputation and is a civic leader. I asked him why he did not spend the extra money for basic that the market paid for what construction. His answer was they can see and say builder who spends extra money on basics would soon be out of business. This is an astounding statement from a man I respect. I would welcome your comments.—Mr. N. B.

Answer: The accusation that the mass builder does not build a quality house is persistent and is partially true. Builders are not happy with this situation, but they have learned that the construction customers.

For example, suppose two builders were marketing a house that outwardly appeared to be the same. One built to minimum acceptable standards while the other used the best material and workmanship and as a result spent $500 extra (this is about the range in cost between the best and minimum in a $20,000 house). Therefore, one developer is selling for $20,000 while the other must get $25,000 for a house that appears to be similar. I need not comment as to which builder would be successful.

A house is a technical and complex product which is bought by laymen who cannot distinguish quality. This is the best excuse of the builder and not the developers. Therefore, when marketing new houses, a developer is almost forced to the concept of "what the buyers sees, give him the best; what he doesn't see, make the product adequate but don't overbuild."

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

When my father died last month, he left his home in equal shares to his three children. My sister would like to buy out my brother's and my share based on a $24,000 price. I say the property is worth $30,000, and my brother thinks the price should be $25,000. — Mr. C. A.

Answer: The obvious and best solution would be to retain a professionally qualified real estate appraiser and be guided by his evaluation of fair market value.

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

Most mortgage lenders in our area charge a 3 per cent prepayment penalty. The mortgage I'm getting contains a 3 per cent prepayment penalty clause.

My broker tells me to ignore this clause because it has been his experience that this bank usually charges no penalty for prepayment of the mortgage. What would you do?

Answer: If my mortgage contract contained a prepayment penalty clause of 3 per cent, then I would conclude that this would be the cost of paying off the mortgage, notwithstanding any oral statements made by third parties.

If everything else is equal, I would recommend that you accept a mortgage from a lender with a 1 per cent penalty clause and disregard the oral allegations made by your broker.

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

I live in Trenton, New Jersey, and own a house in Utah left to me by my mother, which I would like to exchange for a similar house in Phoenix, Arizona. I have just finished reading an article telling about "the glamour of exchanging properties. It did not explain how to do it. How can I bring my deal about? — Mr. D.

Answer: Stories about glamorous results achieved from exchanging properties are usually overdrawn. Exchanging properties located in two distant and diverse communities rarely is successful. I know this to be true, in spite of overglamorized stories which occasionally are published.

If you want to buy a house in Tucson, Arizona, do so through a local broker after selling your house in Utah — also through a local broker.

Dear Mr. Meltzer:

I have just finished wallpapering the house. Before I started I was debating whether to remove the old wallpaper. I asked, searched and look — but could find no clear statements as to the point when it is best to remove the old wallpaper and start all over again. — Mrs. D.

Answer: Old wallpaper is removed when there are already too many layers on the wall (most experts say not more than three, but definitly not more than four) or because the old wallpaper is no longer sticking tightly or shows cracks.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letter as possible through his column.

His Favorite Pipe

What better way to spend the cold winter evenings than with your favorite pipe? This might well be the question as one observes this bespectacled "monkey" contentedly puffing away. The "monkey" is a small statue carved from a coconut, and the pipe belonged to the photographer. (AP Wirephoto)

Golden Coins Flow After Black Slag But They Too Bring Grief to Aberfan

ABERFAN (AP) — A golden flood of money has poured in on Aberfan since a huge black slag heap crashed down on the Welsh village Oct. 21, killing 144 persons, including 116 children. But instead of comfort, the money has brought bitterness, suspicion and quarrels to Aberfan.

The tragedy that cost this town of 5,000 almost a generation of young children when a school was crushed had brought $3,430,000 so far for its disaster fund from all parts of the world. The final amount may reach nearly $8,000,000.

Some of the money came from Canada, which had Aberfan disaster funds in several communities.

"People are frightened by the job of administering this fantastic fund," said Rev. Ian Pemberthy, the Methodist minister. "It is too big."

ADMINISTERS FUND

The Aberfan disaster fund is administered by a committee set up by Mayor Stanley Davies in nearby Merthyr, administrative centre for the area.

This committee so far has paid out $336,000, including $50 to each parent who had a child in the school, and $5,000 to those who lost their homes.

Many are bitter because only one person from Aberfan is on the committee. A permanent trust committee will be set up later and the villagers want a greater say in how the massive fund will be spent.

Parents agree that the thing most urgently needed is Aberfan is a temporary school for the 90 survivors of the crushed school building.

Canada today presents a cheque for $100,000 to the United Nations Children's Fund as a "living memorial" to the Aberfan children and to 19 school students who died in a bus-train collision at Dorion, Que., Oct. 7. George Ignatieff, permanent Canadian representative to the UN, will make the presentation in New York.

This Canadian government gift is in addition to its annual $1,000,000 gift to the children's fund.

The Aberfan children, aged five to seven, have been kept together since the disaster. Each day they go to the Workingmen's Club at Aberfan and play games, but there are no facilities for studies.

Blast Hurls Two Men Through Office Window

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — An explosion hurled two men through a window after fire broke out Thursday night at the headquarters of Inter - City Truck Lines Ltd. here. Neither was hurt.

Three firemen were injured in a three-hour battle to extinguish the blaze which caused damage estimated at $500,000.

They were David Taylor, whose arm was broken when he hit an electric wire and fell from a fire truck; James Stevens, who suffered an injured foot, and John Simons, who received neck and face burns.

The two men flung through a window were Kenneth Goheen and Robert McNeil, both of St. Catharines, who were working in the dispatcher's room when a fuel tank blew up.

The fire triggered several fuel tank explosions that rocked the area.

The blaze started when two men were using welding torches to cut mud flaps off a truck and a spark hit some gasoline, firemen said. The men tried to fight the fire with extinguishers, then ran for help.

Salesman Asks Whales Be Saved

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — An Edmonton salesman is convinced the 17 beluga whales trapped near Inuvik should be saved as a centennial project.

Peter Benson of Edmonton, a salesman for an electrical company, says saving the trapped white whales "would be a better centennial project than Expo 67."

The whales swam last summer into the Eskimo Husky Lakes region 30 miles northeast of Inuvik and were trapped when winter ice started closing in.

Mr. Benson said Tuesday massive bonfires or large portable industrial heaters should be used to keep open several air holes in the ice.

A precedent was set by dropping feed from aircraft to caribou herds when feeding areas were closed off, he said.

The hole narrowed to about 105 square feet last week but has increased considerably.

Eskimos say the whales are suffering and should be killed.

MUST BOIL WATER

BATH, Ont. (CP)—Reeve Allan Hawley, who Wednesday ordered village residents to boil all municipal water, said Thursday the chlorination system should be restored by Saturday after a broken gear is replaced.

Rednersville

REDNERSVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Summers Dawson and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones spent Saturday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lebow of Maynooth spent a week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Higgins.

Ten tables of euchre were in play on Monday evening in the old school. Prizes for the evening went to Mable Ouderdonk, Helen Bonter, Polly Cunningham (consolation), Keith Elliott, Kenny Genereaux and Roy Wannamaker (consolation.)

The old school which is no longer in use has been purchased from the school board for a community hall. A meeting was held at the school and five people were elected to be in charge. They are Mrs. Wilson, Summers Dawson, Borden Thompson, Erle Peck and Carl Reid.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1966

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Canadian harness horsemen can hold their heads high in pride. For by whatever nuit of measure, Canada's 1966 season of harness racing has to be acknowledged as greater than any foregoing one.

Betting figures for 1966 which won't officially be compiled until racing ends December 31 at Windsor raceway, will go well above the record production of 1965 when $184,852,232 was wagered at Canadian racetracks. At a point late in the '66 campaign the Canadian Trotting Association estimated the 1966 season's total would be around $220,000,000.

Canadian-based stables, showing excellence, had vast success campaigning on United States racetracks. 1966 saw a marked increase in the flow of Canadian stables doing well in competition on major and minor U.S. circuits.

There was Armbro Flight's tremendous win in the eighth $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot July 9 at Westbury, N.Y. There were the efforts of two Canadian-owned two-year-old pacers, Lyndon Dodger and C. K. Adios both showing two-minute swiftness on U.S. tracks.

There were the accomplishments of the Canadian-bred three-year-old trotter, Governor Armbro in the Kentucky Futurity and those of Max Webster's Armbro Gazelle.

There were the heroes of a three-year-old trotting filly Fresh Yankee owned in Sydney N.S. which time and time again kayo'd the best three-year-old trotters in the United States. The efforts of three-year-old pacers R. A. Meadowland and Shadydale Hyman both Canadian owned and those of Ack-Ack, Timely Knight and Score Time, all went into the bumper 1966 season from a calibre standpoint.

Armbro Flight is the brightest gem in the Canadian racing crown. A world champion (at three, half-mile race record of 1:59.2; at four, world's fastest mare on a mile track at 1.59) she is now turned out on a California farm with a lame foreleg. She hopes to race in January.

The mare went into temporary retirement with a total lifetime earnings of $483,682, the largest amount ever won by a North American trotting mare and second in the world to Elaine Rodney's $610,685 much of that earned on European tracks.

Governor Armbro, after repeated seconds, finally triumphed in a trotting classic when he won the second Kentucky Futurity in straight heats 2:01.2 and 2:00.2.

Another significant Canuck victory was that of Earl Laird who took the Hollywood Park trot feature in 2.13.2 a world mark for a mile and one-eighth. Max Webster's Armbro Gazelle earned $50,000 and a stablemate Lyndon Dodger paced a mile in two even.

C.K. Adios Ottawa-owned which cost $1,200 paced Lexington's Red Mile track in 1:58.4. A $15,000 offer from a wealthy American was rejected.

Another bargain was Fresh Yankee which cost $900 as a yearling, won $7,000 as a two-year-old; defeated the reputed Kerry Way and finished the season with a mark of 2.00.3.

Some tremendous mid-season efforts were put forth at home and latterly the Montreal pacers Ed Wolux and Ack-Ack put in back-to-back wins in 1:59.4 at Blue Bonnets Raceway.

Canada's biggest day in harness racing occurred at Blue Bonnets when on October 16, a shilly afternoon, 34,454 fans turned out for the appearance of the great and now retired Bret Hanover. Bret paced to a record 1.59 for the new Blue Bonnets five-eighths raceway and the day's wagering of $315,747 became Canada's all-time single day record.

Rangers Riding High; Share Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Who's that with a piece of first place in the National Hockey League? Holy hat tricks! It's New York Rangers!

While Chicago Black Hawks were thumping Boston Bruins 10-2 in one NHL game Thursday night, the Rangers moved into a first-place tie with the Hawks by beating Detroit Red Wings 4-2.

Another highlight of the night's hockey was a goal by Bobby Hull, his first since Nov. 19.

The goal enabled him to keep an edge on his younger brother and team-mate, Dennis, who also scored in the Hawks' scoring spree against the Bruins. Bobby now has 18 goals and Dennis nine.

Chicago and New York enjoy their first-place eminence by virtue of 26 points each, one more than Toronto Maple Leafs, who did not play Thursday.

Stan Mikita of Chicago kept his firm grip on the top slot in the individual scoring race as he scored one goal and picked up four assists.

MOHNS STARS

At Detroit, Harry Howell opened the scoring for New York at 4:26 of the first period. Gordie Howe replied for the Wings at 5:20 of the same period to tie it at one goal apiece as they went into the second.

Don Marshall and Earl Ingarfield for New York hammered home two more nails in Detroit's coffin in the second period.

Ted Hampson scored for Detroit at 13:15 of the last period but hopes of a come-back died when Rod Gilbert smashed in New York's fourth at 14:30.

The night's action ended with the last three teams in the standings, Montreal, Boston and Detroit, with 21, 16 and 12 points respectively.

The loss was the ninth in 11 games for the Wings, who in that stretch have managed one win and a tie.

In Toronto, coach Punch Imlach scratched left winger Eddie Shack as a possible starter in weekend games. Shack returned home after spending a night in a Montreal hospital. He suffered a mild concussion and a 15-stitch cut over his right eye Wednesday night in a collision with Ted Harris of Montreal Canadiens.

DOUG MOHNS

Santa 'Clause'

Broadway Blues Bank Bonuses

DETROIT (CP) — The bonus clause has made a Santa Claus of pint-sized Emile Francis.

Christmas arrived Thursday night for Francis's New York Rangers following their 4-2 victory over Detroit Red Wings in a National Hockey League game.

Francis, 5-7 and 160 pounds, confirmed that his players have bonus clauses in their contracts. He would not go into details but Rod Gilbert, his star right winger, said the players get bonuses if the Rangers gain 26 points in the standings within 25 games. They hit 26 Thursday in their 25th game.

Reports have placed the bonus figure at $250 to $500 a player.

"Bonus clauses are nothing new," said Francis, a former goaltender with the Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks and several minor league teams.

"They've been going on for years. I've been in the Ranger organization nearly 20 years and they were paying them when I first joined New York."

But he wouldn't say how often the Rangers have had to pay off.

The team has played .500 hockey only twice in the last 20 years, in 1953-54 with 32 wins, 28 losses and 10 ties for third place, and in 1957-58 with 32 wins, 25 losses and 13 ties for second place.

Francis said all Ranger players now have bonus clauses written in.

"This thing is designed to spur the players to do better. It's an incentive deal and it works on a sliding scale.

"I've played with other clubs that had bonus clauses," he said.

"But you can't go up to your players before a game and tell them there'll be an extra $100 if they score so many goals or if the team wins."

Big Brass Blasts Bruins

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins, winless in seven games, were threatened with a major personnel shakeup today in the wake of a 10-2 National League blitz by Chicago Hawks.

"We're not going to just shake up lines or defences this time," Boston general manager Hap Emms said angrily after the Bruins' woeful performance before a crowd of 11,541, the smallest Boston Garden turnout of the season.

"This was disgraceful," Emms said. "We're going to get some players who will work and I don't care where we get them from. I don't care if we get beaten 50-0 as long as players work. If they don't want work up here, they can play in the minors."

The biggest scoring outburst of the NHL season, topping Boston's 9-3 rout of Detroit Nov. 24, ended Thursday night with official confusion.

Doug Mohns, a former Bruin who had opened the scoring on a 60-foot slap shot at 3:35 of the first period, tallied again at 19:16 of the finale, and then put the puck into the net a third time a split second before the final buzzer.

Emms, Boston coach Harry Sinden and the Bruins couldn't have cared less, but the Black Hawks protested.

After a half hour, Brian O'Neill, administrative assistant to NHL president Clarence Campbell, reported that Buffey had conferred with other officials and players and reversed himself again, allowing the goal.

The Bruins, outshot by a 43-21 margin, managed only goals by Ron Stewart in the second period and Eddie Westfall in the third.

Asked if the Bruins would practise today, Emms snapped:

"Practice? That's all they've been doing. It's about time they got down to work."

Maris To Cards In Yankee Shuffle

The new Yankee general manager slipped Roger Maris and Mr. $75,000 salary tag to St. Louis for third baseman Charley Smith Thursday.

It was MacPhail's second deal since being hired to help rebuild the Yankees who finished the 1966 season in the American League cellar for the first time in 42 years. Ten days ago he swapped third baseman Clete Boyer to Atlanta for outfielder Bill Robinson.

It was MacPhail, then working for Baltimore, who engineered the biggest inter-league trade of 1963 when he dealt three players to Cincinnati for Frank Robinson.

MacPhail can hardly expect the same kind of instant success for the Maris swap that Robinson brought to Baltimore. Smith is a journeyman third baseman who carries a lifetime batting average of .243.

"We want to make a fresh start," said New York Manager Ralph Houk. "With two fine young outfielders, Steve Whitaker and Bill Robinson, vying for jobs, we want to give them a chance."

It was an open secret that the Yankees were ready to unload

ROGER MARIS

Maris, who only five years ago broke Babe Ruth's record for home runs when he hit 61 in a 162-game season.

"I wasn't at all surprised," the slugging outfielder said after being told of the deal. "I rather expected it. In fact, I expected to be traded ever since 1962."

Smith, who has played for the Los Angeles Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies, Chicago White Sox and New York Mets as well as St. Louis, exclaimed: "I'll be darned."

After his record - shattering season, he rocketed into baseball's higher slary class but his production slipped noticeably. He hit 33 homers in 1962, 23 in 1963 and 26 in 1964.

He was crippled by injuries through most of 1965, appearing in 46 games and hitting only eight homers. He underwent surgery for the removal of bone chips at the base of his right hand after the season and played in 119 games last season, managing only 13 homers.

The Cardinals feel that Maris can come back for them just as Orlando Cepeda did last year after they acquired him from San Francisco. Cepeda, considered washed up by many baseball men, batted .301 for the Cards after being traded for pitcher Ray Sadecki, who won only six games.

Thunderbirds Tie Plainfield

Thomasburg Thunderbirds gained their first point of the Centre Hastings Hockey League schedule, in Tweed, last night.

They battled to a 4-4 tie with Plainfield. The tie boosted Plainfield into fifth place but left the Thunderbirds in the cellar, two points behind Foxboro.

Bob Hunter sparked Plainfield's attack...ing scored three of the goals and assisted on the other. Bruce Kennedy scored once and helped on two.

Following is the current points standing: Glen Ross 9; Ivanhoe 8; Wallbridge 7; Frankford 6; Plainfield 4; Foxboro 3; Thomasburg 1.

Minor Hockey

The Wings whitewashed the Leafs 4-0 in a lone Belleville Minor Hockey Association mid-get division game last night.

Paul Hopkins chalked up the Wings' shutout.

Beecher spearheaded the attack with his club's second and third goals. Mark Mutchlitt netted the first and Mitchell added the fourth. James drew two assists, Drummond and Seve one each.

Frontenacs Give Macs Hockey Lesson

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

The Kingston Frontenacs have been slumbering in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" League's fifth position so far this season, winning very few games.

But the Fronts outplayed the Quinte McFarlands in every department here last night to chalk up a convincing 5-1 victory.

The win was the first for Kingston in three meetings with the McFarlands and boosted the winners' record to four wins, six losses and a tie.

It was a costly setback for Quinte, snapping a four-game win streak, and preventing Flori Goegan's crew from tying Cobourg in first place.

Kingston outshot the Macs in every period, 42-24 overall and the losers tested John Cullen only four times in the final twenty minutes.

The Frontenacs took a 1-0 lead in the opening heat, made it 3-1 in the second and added a pair in the third.

Quinte did tie the game early in the middle frame. Billy Hopkins punched the disc past Coates second after Ron Riley tipped Sharpe's rebound wide of a corner. Bob drew assists.

That was at 1.34 and play was chippy, with elbows and high sticks going uncalled, over the rest of the period.

Less than a minute later, the Macs' Bruce Nell was thumbed for tripping and his temper earned him a misconduct from referee Keith MacDonald. Shortly after, Riley was grabbed and laughed off balance on a dangerous rush with Sharpe, but no penalty was given.

Facing a 3-1 deficit entering the third, Quinte kept trying but without success. Sharpe broke in alone with Cullen in the slot at 9.09 but the puck was too far ahead of him to control.

Neil was still off at 10.14 when Mike Flannigan drilled a good shot past Forrester. Three minutes later Graham slapped a sitzler over the Mac goalies' shoulder. Forrester spent much of the period backing at Frontenacs with his goal stick.

Back in the first period, Stan Galt converted his own rebound, with the Macs shorthanded after a sparkling save and the pattern of the game was established when Quinte failed to threaten on consecutive Kingston penalties.

Kingston's Galt - Graham - Flanigan line accounted for four goals and as many assists, led by Graham's two and one. Galt had one and two Flanigan ones of each.

The Macs next play the winless Trenton Apple Kings in Trenton Sunday, at 8.00 p.m. They will likely be minus Ray Summers who was knocked out of action with an ankle injury early in the second period last night.

The win, on Marquisse Royale, a 3-to-1 shot in the second race, was No. 310 for the jockey who rides out of Toronto.

What's This-Attersley, Montgomery?

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The Mo-Hawks are anxious to find out.

Montgomery is the rugged defenceman who did this puckchasing for Peterborough "Petes" and Belleville's senior "A" Macs.

Mo-Hawks coach Floyd Crawford (3) said yesterday that both have been contacted and "we hope to see them at practices shortly."

Both are veterans and have been out of organized hockey for a few years but the Mo-Hawks' brass feels that their experience and especially Attersley's tremendous playmaking could help the club.

"Nothing is too definite," Crawford said during the club's night's workout in preparing for tonight's game here, "but they are interested and we certainly want to have a look at them."

Attersley was invited to the Belleville camp this fall but did not have time to attend then. He is tied up in politics in the Oshawa area as well as operating two service stations. But he has said that the Mo-Hawks to send him a practice schedule. One of the Mo-Hawk players said following a phone conversation with Bobby yesterday that "he sounds interested."

Montgomery is working in Trenton and expects to be there for the winter. He had hoped to attend last night's team workout but was unable to make it.

The Mo-Hawks have been operating with only three defencemen, since Greg Marchen has experienced health problems, and Crawford is hopeful that Montgomery could fill a spot. "At least we'll take a look at Keith on skates," Floyd said, adding that an injury to one of his rearguards at this point could be disastrous.

Orillia Pepsi's, two points behind the Mo-Hawks visit Belleville for a nine o'clock game tonight.

"This is one we have to win," said Crawford.

Right-winger Lou Smrke has been given the medical greenlight to play again but will see very little action if he dresses tonight.

The Mo-Hawks have a score to settle with Orillia (remember 13-1?) and Crawford hopes to see his line of Gary Darling, Minnie Menard and "Shaker" Baker continue its hot pace. Menard has had three two-goal games in the club's last four and has taken over the scoring leadership with 19 points. Darling and Baker have also been picking up the points.

Bob McAlpine continues to score regularly and tops the club in goals with nine — one more than Menard. This line, with Wayne McConnell and Ralph Plane, will likely stay intact. Wayne Brown might be shifted into Gary Gresdahl's left-wing spot, with Bob Taylor and Eddie Marleseau, but Crawford would not say definitely last night.

The Pepsi's have improved a good clip, adding some seasoned veterans in Bobby and Billy Forbes, and defencemen Ivan Irwin and John Chaszeski. They will be out to catch the Mo-Hawks in the standing tonight.

It should be a tidy tussle.

Shack Has Mild Concussion

Toronto coach Punch Imlach said Shack will not play this weekend National Hockey League action. The Leafs play Chicago Black Hawks here Saturday and visit Detroit Red Wings Sunday.

Dr. D. G. Kinnear, Montreal Canadiens' team physician, said Shack suffered a mild concussion, in addition to a 15-stitch cut over his right eye, in a collision, in addition to a 15-stitch cut over his right eye, in a collision with Montreal defenceman Ted Harris in a game against Montreal Wednesday night.

Harris, who picked up a five-minute major penalty for elbowing on the play, caught the Leaf player with a solid check near centre ice, mid-way through the second period of the game.

SELBY OUT

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (CP)—Officials of the Western Hockey League's Vancouver Canucks reported Thursday that winger Bill Selby, last season's Rookie of the Year in the National Hockey League, will be out of action for at least six weeks with a broken leg. Selby, who played with Toronto Maple Leafs before coming to Vancouver early this season, suffered a fractured right leg in the Canuck's 3-2 overtime loss Wednesday night to San Diego Gulls.

Brewer Will Be Columnist

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Tribune says hockey star Carl Brewer will join the newspaper's sports staff soon. He will write a regular column, largely on hockey but covering other topics as well.

Brewer, finally permitted to return to amateur ranks after lengthy negotiations with the professional leagues, now is awaiting completion of paper work to clear him to join Canada's national team.

Brewer, a long-time defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, has not played professionally since refusing to report to the Leafs' training camp at the start of the 1965 season.

Gas House Goalies On Go-Go

It was a great night for goalies in the Comets-McInerney's Sunoco 4-4 Gas House Hockey League tie last night.

Comet goalie Dick Moore drew one assist.

Claude Carr, a goalie by trade who plays defence for Sunoco, led his club with one goal and two helpers.

Aiding Carr on the Sunoco attack were Dalton Lambert and Hugh Petrie with a goal and assist each. Jerry Brennan also scored and Doug Bolte helped on one. Duke Doran and Dave Hurst each collected a goal and assist for the Comets. Bill Williams and Hyde Bryant also scored and Lee McBrien joined Moore on the assist list.

Jim Woodcock led Marysville's victory march with two goals and one helper. Bruce Pascoe and Carm Milligan also scored and Doug Olsen had an assist.

Tom Woodley potted both Mustang goals with Leo Holland assisting on one.

Red Wings Move Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings, currently running last in the National Hockey League race, may never reap a harvest from one of the hottest junior clubs they have had in years.

Hamilton Red Wings, who have remained around the bottom of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series for the last several years, are finally making a bid for the circuit's championship.

Hamilton moved into a second-place tie with Toronto Marlboros Thursday night, defeating the first-place Kitchener Rangers 3-2.

But under a new NHL Canadian Amateur Hockey Association agreement, most of the junior players will not play for Detroit. They will be placed in a pool at the termination of their junior careers, subject to draft by any of the 12 NHL clubs.

Ontario Agriculture Department Split Into Four Divisions

TORONTO (CP) — A major reorganization of the Ontario department of agriculture which will create four new administrative divisions was announced Thursday by Agriculture Minister William Stewart.

The divisions—production and rural development, marketing and special services, research and agricultural education and finance and administration—will report directly to Deputy Minister Everett Biggs.

H. M. Arbuckle, chairman of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board, becomes director of finance and administration and K. E. Lantz, assistant deputy minister, heads the division of production and rural development.

R. G. Bennett, assistant deputy minister, heads the marketing and special services division and D. N. Hunley, director of the Agricultural Research Institute of Ontario, becomes director of research and agricultural education.

Mr. Arbuckle will be replaced as marketing board chairman by Earl Mignon, marketing specialist with the Ontario Food Council who has been stationed at Ontario House in London.

Mr. Stewart also announced two appointments to the farm products marketing board.

They are Edgar Hutton of Guelph, a producer of broilers, beef, hogs and corn, and Ray Lougheed of Barrie, a poultry and dairy farmer and past president of the United Co-operatives of Ontario.

Mr. Stewart said the new production and rural development division will supervise extension services and agricultural representatives and take over responsibility for livestock and crop improvement, agricultural and horticultural societies and junior farmer and co-operative loans.

The marketing and special services division will take control of all aspects of marketing and farm labor and will be responsible for the Ontario Food Council. It will also deal with veterinary services.

Threat of Serious Flood Loss In Southern Ontario Rises

TORONTO (CP) — Flood warnings were issued for every major watershed in southeastern Ontario today after the weather office forecast more rain for the already - soaked land.

Homes at Paisley, Wingham and Gorrie were evacuated Thursday night when the Maitland and Teeswater rivers overflowed after a five-inch rainfall this week and warm weather which melted 14 inches of snow.

The Nith River flooded at New Hamburg and 12 families were evacuated.

The threat of serious damage from floods in some areas of southern Ontario appeared to have subsided Thursday night although levels of some rivers continued to rise due to the rain and melting snow.

At London, the Thames River reached near-flood levels and subsided, leaving only a few flooded basements.

C. R. Leuty, Ontario government projects engineer for the Upper Thames Conservation Authority, said there would be no serious danger unless there was heavy rain. The half inch of rain predicted for the city by the weekend could be accommodated if it didn't come all at once, he said.

"North of London the situation is more serious because of the 20 inches of snow still on the ground and melting with the high temperatures," he said.

At the Fanshaw Dam, on the north branch of the Thames outside London, water level was 20.7 feet above normal but well within safety margins, Mr. Leuty said.

The Saugeen River in the Southampton area on Lake Huron was 26 inches above flood level, having increased 20 inches in 24 hours. However, the flooding is not likely to cause property damage, Mr. Leuty said.

Edmund O'Mara, water works superintendent at Chatham, said the Thames was expected to rise to a peak of about eight feet above normal in Chatham this morning.

Mr. O'Mara said this would still be about four feet below flood level and no serious damage was expected.

In Toronto, conservation authorities said there was no danger of flooding unless a sudden, heavy rain fall occurred.

Record high temperatures were reported in several southern Ontario centres Thursday, as snow disappeared across the province south of Owen Sound and Muskoka.

Tuesday's high temperature of 63 broke the previous record of 55 on Dec. 8, 1961. Record high temperatures were also set at Muskoka, 53; Windsor, 61; London, 60; Simcoe 61; Mount Forest, 59; Kitchener, 62; Trenton, 54 and Hamilton, the warmest in the province with 65.

Northern Ontario also enjoyed milder weather Thursday, but there were snowflurries between the cold western and warm eastern air fronts. Cooler weather with more snow is forecast for most northern regions today.

Golfers Healthier Than Anybody

LONDON (AP)—The brain boys turned the spotlight on the muscle boys and came out today with the conclusion that golfers are healthier than anybody.

The experiment was conducted by university professors and scientists among cricket players, golfers, Olympic oarsmen and about 140 ordinary students.

The winners:

Dai Rees, 53-year-old professional, British senior champion and former captain of the British Ryder Cup team which beat the Americans in 1957 and has been able to repeat it ever since.

Neil Coles, 32-year-old professional, leading money winner on the British circuit and a perennial threat in every major tournament.

Oarsmen came second in the tests, third were the students and the cricketers placed last.

Dr. John Jeffreys, head of the Physical Education Department at Leicester University, commented on the results of the tests:

"We were surprised that golfers were fitter because they were older, usually around 35. But it seems that walking is the secret."

The tests were given on a bicycle machine, pedalled at various speeds with instruments recording pulse rates, blood pressure, oxygen intake, breathing rates and general efficiency.

Exports Up

WINNIPEG (CP) — Exports of Canadian wheat and flour will exceed 500,000,000 bushels this year, R. L. Kristjanson, Canadian wheat board commissioner, said Thursday.

Carmichael Denounces Integration

TORONTO (CP) — Stokely Carmichael, 25, chairman of the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee of the United States, Thursday denounced racial integration as a white conspiracy.

"The interests of the U.S. Negros are in conflict with the national interests of the U.S.," he told 2,000 students at the University of Toronto.

Integration "is not realistic and not particularly desirable," he said.

"The result does not develop the black community, but would be to abolish it."

Lake Huron Ship Survivor Sues Bethlehem Steel

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Dennis Hale, the lone survivor of the sinking of the ore freighter Daniel J. Morrell in Lake Huron filed suit Thursday for $150,000 against the Bethlehem Steel Corp. in U.S. District Court.

The complaint alleges that the Morrell was unseworthy and that the operators of the vessel failed to provide adequate inspection, repairs or emergency equipment.

The petition said Hale's "extremities are numb and he is unable to walk. Normal circulatory function of the extremities has been permanently impaired and is expected to cause plaintiff severe disability for the remainder of his life."

Hale, 26, of Ashtabula, Ohio, spent 36 hours drifting on a life raft after the Morrell went down about 2 a.m. Nov. 29. Twenty-eight crew members lost their lives in the sinking. Hale, clad in undershorts and a jacket, was rescued finally by a helicopter. The petition says he suffered excruciating pain which caused hallucinations and a wish for death.

The petition, filed on Hale's behalf by two Cleveland lawyers, says wind and waves "were within normal limits" the night the ship broke in two and alleges that structural steel on the 60-year-old vessel was deteriorated, rusted and corroded and weakened by continuous pounding by weather, water, minor collisions and loading and unloading operations.

Saigon Arrest Protested

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnamese authorities said today they will not tolerate any more arrests of Vietnamese civilians by U.S. military police following the seizure Thursday of the mayor of Saigon.

A statement to that effect was made by the head of the national police as an aftermath of the handcuffing and temporary arrest early Thursday of Mayor Van Van Cua, a paratroop colonel.

Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, director general of the national police who is also the mayor's brother-in-law, told reporters:

"Only Vietnamese police can arrest Vietnamese civilians and check papers of the Vietnamese military. The Vietnamese police can also interrogate or arrest U.S. civilians. The U.S. military police can only question and arrest U.S. military men.

American military police handcuffed the mayor after he brandished a machine - gun which he had fired in the air a short time earlier near a restaurant.

New Prince in Europe

Mayor Talked About County In Scotland and Switzerland

PICTON (Staff) — There is a new Prince in Europe — certainly nearly all of Europe this summer heard of Prince Edward (the county that is). After last night's address by Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland to the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce there remains little doubt in anyone's mind but that Prince Edward is his latest title acquired from Scotland to Switzerland, as part of the public relations work done by His Worship on his recent trip to the continent.

The Mayor of Prestwick, Scotland has a key to the Town of Picton, as do the Lord Mayors of London, Paris, Rome and Geneva. One of Switzerland's industries has heard so much of Prince Edward it is considering doing some research here with a view to possibly starting a branch in the county.

Warden of Prince Edward County Harold Foster voiced the feelings of all present when he said the people of this county were very appreciative of the Mayor's work in seeking to encourage industry to locate in this area.

The occasion was Mayor McFarland's annual dinner and report to the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce held at the Royal Hotel, at which over 60 members and other citizens attended.

Mayor McFarland, accompanied by his wife, visited Loch Loy while in Scotland in search of some clues to the McFarland ancestry. While there he discovered a power project, evidently in use for some time, that he had seriously considered investigating with regard to harnessing Lake - on - the - mountain as a power supply for the area, long before he ever went to Scotland.

The Mayor stressed the value of industry to the county and pointed out that one industry alone in this county recently handed over its cheque for taxes to Sophiasburgh Township for the amount of $122,290.80. This pays 55 per cent of this township's taxes, the Mayor emphasized.

"We need more industries such as this," he stated.

He was referring to Lake Ontario Cement Co. plant, just east of the town. "Take that industry out", he said, "and what have we got? Double the mill rate. We need this industry and we need the railroads into our county. Without them Steel industry and the cement plant we would never have a railroad", he continued "The industries mean that as long as they are here we will always have a railroad."

The Mayor also mentioned one of the other town's major industries, Proctor-Silex; which he said, has lived up to and surpassed, any promise it made. Originally, he said, it had planned on hiring 300 employees, now there are 500 and are expanding and to the favorable future will advance to a staff of 600 personnel. The Mayor suggested that it had been a pleasure to do business with this company.

One other point the Mayor has been driving home recently is the need for a new high level bridge in Belleville.

"We need this badly," he said, "the present bridge is only approved for less tons and what is holding it up I do not know. We need a new bridge here so that ships will not tie up traffic and also an overhead bridge is needed at Carrying Place."

During the course of his talk Mayor McFarland exhibited letters from Lord Mayors of cities he visited, a letter from General de Gaulle, a lovely hand embroidered silk scarf bearing a coat-of-arms which was presented to Mrs. McFarland from the General and also a gold plaque presented to him, as well as a certificate offering the freedom of Paris.

In closing Mayor McFarland congratulated the canning industries on the assistance they provided for the county and said that he still thought there might be a possibility that a brewery could locate here. Some time ago when this was mentioned he said that he was besieged with letters saying the people did not want a brewery in the county. He wished to emphasize that if people wanted to drink, they could get all they wanted now by the truckload if they had the money — from the local breweries retail store.

"What I wanted and still think would be good for the farmers of this country is a brewery that will provide a ready market for alfalfa and be an asset for the farmers."

The Mayor mentioned the unions which he said, were the crippling factor in the country. Workers should realize that the more they strike for higher wages the more costs go up.

His Worship was thanked for his informative and interesting address by Warden Harold Bonter, who said "we are fortunate to have Mayor McFarland to do the work he is doing, and has done, for the good of this county". Chairman for the dinner meeting was president of J. H. Mallett, the Chamber of Commerce, who introduced the head table guests.

Fire Brigade Recent Winners Of Plaque

DESERONTO — If a prize were given for modesty, the Deseronto Volunteer Fire Brigade would surely win it. At Monday nights' council meeting Clayton Brooks displayed a plaque which none of the members had ever seen. He himself had spotted it on a visit to the fire hall in his capacity as chairman of the Fire and Police Committee. The Inscription read "For general maintenance and good housekeeping."

A telephone interview with Fire Chief Al Fraser disclosed the fact that the plaque had been awarded early in the year, and that the firemen just did not like to boast about it. It was presented to them at that time by the co-ordinator of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Firefighters' Association. After the 18 depots of the members of the Association had been inspected, the one in Deseronto was judged to be neat and tidiest, with its equipment and trucks in the best possible condition.

Chief Al Fraser and his 16 men not only take pride in their fireball and their equipment but also do many good deeds which are not publicized. One which does attract attention is their Christmas treat for the 340 children of the public school and for all their younger brothers and sisters.

This year Santa will arrive at the school at 1.45 December 22, Chief Fraser revealed during the conversation. This is a joint effort, he hastened to add, as the firemen have received contributions from the Council, the Lions Club, the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 280, and from interested citizens.

The project was begun by the Home and School Association, and when it disbanded, was taken over by the firemen.

Last year there was a great deal of unfavorable publicity when the firemen undertook to finance the project by selling tickets on some articles that had been donated. Some vindictive person informed the authorities, who had no alternative but to put a stop to this undertaking. The kiddies had their treat just the same, however, as indignant citizens came to the rescue with funds, and Santa Claus arrived as usual.

The plaque will remain in their possession until the next inspection, when it will, perhaps, find another home for a year.

VOTES AT 93

NAPANEE — One of Napanee's oldest voters Monday was Mrs. Elizabeth Brown of Water St., who, at 93, did not lose her vote when she cast it for "Bill" McAlister, husband of her granddaughter, who lives next door. He is the president of the ratepayers association. Until her eyesight partly failed a few years ago, Mrs. Brown was popularly known as "Mrs. Mittens," as it was her delight to see that all the kiddies she knew did not go with cold hands. Mrs. Brown lives with her daughter, Mrs. Florence Jackson, but prides herself on being able to do almost anything she wants to do around the house. This includes turning out a good meal.

ISSUES WARNING

Fire Chief F. W. ("Pat") Patton and his men had 100 school children visiting them at the fire hall this week, and took the opportunity to warn them about the danger of Christmas trees. Never put lights on an aluminum tree, he warned and never use lights on any sort of tree unless you know they are safe. Keep the butt of the tree in water, and spray it with a chemical which will retard burning. The 21 men are hoping this Christmas will be as safe as the past ones.

ROTARY LADIES' NIGHT

Dr. Leslie Jordan of Wilkes Barre, Penn., spoke to the Rotarians at ladies' night dinner Wednesday. Dr. Barr is in charge of the Rotary Club president exchange project for his district and had been invited to describe it to this club. It has not yet been undertaken by any district in Canada.

comment that they would accept it "temporarily."

Included in the settlement formula is a collective-bargaining clause for foremen, and a clause giving the foremen the right to form an association but not necessarily within the IL.WU.

That's what started the whole thing Nov. 17, when foremen picketed the docks in all B.C. ports to back their demands for bargaining rights as a local of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Included in the settlement is the formation of an industrial inquiry commission to look into the question of foremen's bargaining rights and to make recommendations on how similar disputes can be prevented in the future.

The 200 foremen involved Thursday voted unanimously for the new settlement terms and the IL.WU said that with the return of the foremen and "resumption of supervision" the ports will get back into full swing quickly.

Trade Minister Winters announced that a special commission will be convened to help put the shipments from the Prairies back on schedule.

Essay Contest To be Staged

PICTON (Staff) — During the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce dinner last night Lewis Duncan, manager of the Procter-Silex plant in Picton, officially announced the company's plan for a centennial project. It will sponsor locally an essay contest on "Why I Like My Community." There will be three categories, for elementary school pupils, secondary school students and adults.

American League

Record Season For Records!

BOSTON (AP)—The American League, still celebrating Baltimore Orioles' four - game sweep of Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series, has reported a record year in 1966.

President Joe Cronin said today 88 major league and American League baseball records were broken or tied last season.

The breakdown showed 20 major league records bettered highest since Mickey Mantle of and 22 tied, and nine league marks erased and 15 tied.

HOYT SET 5 MARKS

Hoyt Wilhelm, Chicago White Sox relief specialist, broke five of his major league records. They included most errorless games, 329; most games as a reliever, 784; most victories in relief, 90; most games finished in relief, 485, and most innings pitched in relief, 1,428.

Mantle, bobbled much of the season by injuries, broke two major league records by hitting eight homers in six consecutive games and hiking his career strikeout total to 1,500 by fanning 76 times. Maxwell also tied the major league mark by hitting seven homers in five straight games.

Bobby Knoop of California Angels set major league records by a second baseman participating in six double plays in a game against Boston May 1 and by making 12 putouts against the Red Sox Aug. 30.

Another major league record showed that American League clubs also set a mark by having 15 managers during the season.

STILL WANT CLOGS

Champions Bonspiel Postponed

TORONTO (CP)— The Tournament of Champions, an International bonspiel started three years ago in Toronto, has been postponed until next season.

Doug Maxwell, president and general manager of the tournament, said Thursday night the bonspiel had been scheduled for Winnipeg in mid-January, but will probably be held late in 1967 or early 1968.

Maxwell said that negotiations with a major sponsor collapsed when television difficulties developed.

He said Winnipeg is the probable site of the bonspiel, but "much depends on the availability of ice, selection of rinks..."

The tournament was first held in January 1964 with most of the top Canadian rinks competing along with a U.S. entry.

It was enlarged to include the defending Canadian champions in 1965 and in 1966 a U.S. and Scottish rink competed along with the Canadian entries.

The tournament failed to realize a financial gain, however, and Maxwell announced a few months ago that the site of the tournament would be switched from its Toronto home to Winnipeg in 1967.

RENEWS CHARGES

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Communist party newspaper Pravda renewed its attack on China today with an editorial charging the Chinese leaders with "subversive activities," the Soviet news agency Tass reports here. The editorial claims that help to Viet Nam could have been broader and more effective if Peking had agreed to joint action with other socialist countries.

April-in-December Weather Nears End

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's spring-like weather was on the way out today, leaving behind a slush - covered northland and rivers choked and swollen with melting snow and oncoming rain.

The weather office predicts snow and rain in southern Ontario today with temperatures in the mid-30s, a far cry from the record maximums set during the last three days. Northern Ontario was to receive light snow and 20-degree readings.

Eight centres Friday reported record temperatures for the day. Simcoe was the warmest with 58 and Toronto and Wiarton reached 57. Ottawa and Killaloe were a degree cooler, Trenton 55, Mount Forest 53 and North Bay 51.

The warm air spread into the north Friday, setting back the freeze-up of lakes and causing transportation problems for trappers who normally use motorized toboggans for their lines.

The lumber industry, employing 2,000 men in North Bay area, was completely idle.

Farmers were having difficulty keeping barns cool enough for cattle brought in from the ranges. In the North Bay area, 20 calves were reported dead of pneumonia caused by overheated barns.

In the south, flood conditions eased Friday as the weather turned colder. The Nith River flooded Thursday near Kitchener, surrounding two homes, but eased Friday.

The Grand River Conservation Authority said it was concerned about a five-foot rise in the river near Oak.

Homes at Paisley, Wingham and Gorrie were evacuated early Friday when the Maitland and Teeswater Rivers overflowed after five inches of rain.

PCs Seek Way to Woo Cities

OTTAWA (CP)—A new urban policy may emerge from this weekend's policy meeting of the divided federal Conservative caucus.

The meeting's urban affairs panel will consider nine draft proposals aimed at capturing the cities, where the party was notably unsuccessful in the 1965 election.

Alvin Hamilton, the party's principal ideas man, will be chairman of the urban panel. The former cabinet minister has been playing a key role within the party in this field.

About half the party's 197 MPs and senators are expected to attend the closed two-day meeting, which starts today and ends Sunday.

It was called to fill a policy void caused by the failure of the November party convention to do the job properly because of the wrangle over John Diefenbaker's leadership.

The caucus is still divided for and against the old warrior. Organizers hope the weekend conference will help heal the breach by producing agreement on policy, if not on leadership.

Most of the 74 expected to attend are MPs. Several of these are from the minority anti-Diefenbaker group in the caucus. Their presence boosts prospects for a step toward unity among the 96 MPs.

Any policy decisions arising from the meeting will be passed along later to the party's national association, the final arbiter.

However, caucus decisions, in Mr. Hamilton's words a last week, will have a "high degree of authenticity."

The member for Qu'Appelle has been spreading a party drive to make electoral inroads in urban areas with establishment of party committees in major centres linked to the federal caucus.

He has taken the theme that young married couples, retired and handicapped people and independent businessmen in urban centres must be drawn into the party's orbit with new policies.

He believes the party that comes up with realistic proposals to attract similar urban support will dominate Canadian politics for the next 30 years.

Zambia Hits Limited Sanctions But British Expect UN Accord

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — British representatives expressed confidence Friday that the United Nations Security Council will proclaim mandatory economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

Debate on the British resolution before the council halted for the weekend and will resume Monday when it is expected African states will submit an amendment seeking to make the sanctions stronger, probably to include oil to the list of selected items scrutinized by Britain.

The African states opened an attack on Britain through Zambia, Rhodesia's next-door neighbor and a leader in the move for full sanctions.

"Let us be realistic," Zambian Foreign Minister Simon M. Kapwepwe told the council Friday. "Sanctions are not going to work without the active participation of South Africa, which Britain has chosen to protect."

Britain is expected to reject any steps that would lead to a trade war with South Africa, even if it has to use its veto. British sources welcomed the weekend break, believing it would allow delegations to consult among themselves and with their governments on the resolution submitted Thursday by Foreign Secretary George Brown.

Brown is to report to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson on the impact of the British proposal that the council order embargoes on the purchase or shipment of a dozen key Rhodesian export items and on the sale of armaments to the colony.

African delegates have criticized the British resolution as not being sufficient to bring the rebellious government of Ian Smith to its knees. The minority all-white Smith regime declared independence 13 months ago rather than grant majority vote to 4,000,000 Negroes.

The African problem is to offer amendments which will be acceptable to nine member states of the council, the required minimum for the adoption of a resolution provided there is no veto. Britain has said it will accept an oil embargo on Rhodesia under certain circumstances.

S. O. Adebo of Nigeria and Apollo K. Kiwanda of Uganda, African Commonwealth members in the council, were trying to formulate changes that might command the support.

South Africa has become a key in the debate and Britain is caught in a squeeze because it fears confrontation with the country which is its fourth largest customer.

Brown insisted Thursday that the sanctions should affect Rhodesia alone and not harm the economy of any other country. It was obvious he was referring to South Africa.

BC Ports Go All Out But Backlog Piled High

VANCOUVER (CP) — The ports of British Columbia are operating at full blast again today as the waterfront industry attempted to make up for lost time.

Longshoremen returned to work Friday after a three-week work disruption caused by a dispute between longshore foremen and employers.

"Things are going very nicely on the waterfront, and with a lot of verve," Capt. B. D. L. Johnson, Vancouver port manager said Friday.

But he predicted it will take from four to six weeks to unsnarl the backlog of work and bring the port back to normal.

The majority of 50 ships waiting for cargo in Vancouver are grain carriers. Twenty - seven were waiting around the 10 grain berths.

Meanwhile, there has been no indication when the industrial inquiry commissioner will be appointed to study labor relations problems on the waterfront.

The waterfront shutdown was touched off by a strike of longshore foreman, who demanded recognition as a unit for grievance and bargaining procedures. The issue is unresolved, pending the inquiry.

Judge Puts Accused Trio in Straitjackets

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A five-week trial of a trio of hardened convicts ended Friday night with two of the defendants gagged and in straitjackets and after the third threatened to kill the judge whom one called a "creep."

After the three were convicted of attempted prison break, Assistant District Attorney Robert X. Medonis summed up the proceedings this way: "Incredible. I'm exhausted. I hope it never happens again."

The three state penitentiary prisoners — Richard Mayberry, 28; Dominic Codispoti, 34, and Herbert F. Lagnes 27—acted as their own lawyers. Sentencing was set for Monday.

As Judge Albert A. Flok ordered the pair removed, Mayberry and Codispoti threw the courtroom into an uproar by shouting at the jury, and drowning out the judge.

Flok called a recess and ordered the pair removed. Twenty minutes later deputies marched them into the courtroom, two of the prisoners were bound in heavy canvas straitjackets and their mouths were taped shut with adhesive.

"I swear on my mother's name, I will keep my threats to you. You understand that, you punk. I'll shake hands with you in hell. You're a dead man," adding a respectful, "Your Honor."

While Lagnes made the threat, Mayberry and Codispoti mumbled loudly through their gags. The situation completely got out of control. Flok called another recess.

Because the accused must be present to hear the charge, the judge ordered them into an anteroom and broadcast the charge by loudspeaker.

Each was charged with holding two prison guards hostage while attempting to escape with gin guns and prison - made bombs June 27, 1965.

Early the third last month, the three staged an escape from the Allegheny County Jail. They overpowered a guard, held a policeman hostage in his police cruiser, commandeered another car and wounded an off-duty workhouse guard before being recaptured a few hours later.

Jack Ruby in Hospital With Severe Pneumonia

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jack Ruby, who fatally shot Lee Harvey Oswald after President John F. Kennedy was killed, was taken from jail to Parkland hospital Friday with what the officials called a serious case of pneumonia.

Phil Burleson, one of Ruby's lawyers, said it was too early to tell how the illness might affect a new trial for his client, scheduled for next year.

Ruby, 53, was convicted and sentenced to death in 1964 for Oswald's slaying, but the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals recently ordered a new trial outside of Dallas.

District Judge Louis Holland transferred the trial to Wichita Falls but set no date. He indicated it possibly would be in February. Ruby as been in Dallas County jail since he shot Oswald Nov. 24, 1963.

Burleson described Ruby as a sick man.

"We are concerned," said the lawyer, adding that Ruby was being administered oxygen through his nasal passages.

"The guy's dying," said Ruby's sister, Eva Grant.

Dr. J. W. Collins said he had been treating Ruby for a cold about two weeks.

Air Traffic Controllers May Strike

TORONTO (CP)—A spokesman said Friday the 650-member Canadian Air Traffic Control Association will vote Monday on whether to take strike action in demands for wage increases.

If the air controllers vote in favor of strike action it could mean the shutdown of all major Canadian air terminals before Christmas.

Ronald Bell, member of the executive and councillor for the Toronto region, said the vote will be held regardless of the outcome of talks in Ottawa between officials of the department of transport and the federal treasury board. The talks resume Monday.

The association represents control tower operators, air traffic controllers and radar controllers across the country.

It is seeking an initial salary increase of $1,000 and an additional increase of $1,200 over the next five years for top-rated workers, who now earn up to $9,500 a year.

Russian Asserts China Slows Viet Nam Victory

MOSCOW (AP)—A top Soviet leader accused China today of prolonging the war in Viet Nam and causing immeasurably more victims there than necessary.

Charging that Chinese obstruction slowed efforts toward "the goal of the victory of the Vietnamese people," Alexander N. Shelepin, a member of the Politburo and a Communist party secretary, said:

"This great goal would be achieved faster and with immeasurably fewer victims if the position of the Chinese leaders, known to everybody, would not have become a hindrance on the way toward this goal."

Shelepin is the last Kremlin leader known to have talked personally with Ho Ch Minh. He was in Hanoi in January arranging Soviet aid to North Viet Nam.

His speech was delivered Friday in Kalinin, an industrial city 100 miles northwest of Moscow, and published today in the Soviet military newspaper Red Star.

The speech contained what was perhaps the strongest personal attack by a Soviet leader and Moscow-Peking since the ouster of Nikita S. Khrushchev. The fall of Khrushchev in October, 1964, ended the earlier round of Soviet-Chinese name-calling.

Shelepin denounced Mao for:

—The strengthening of the openly hostile struggle, unprecedented in the history of the Communist movement, against fraternal parties and first of all against the CPSU (Soviet Communist Party) and the Soviet Union.

—The desire to spread the so-called 'cultural revolution' beyond the border of China and "the reprisals against the cadres of the (Chinese Communist) party."

Shelepin stressed the Chinese refusal to co-operate in a united Communist stand on Viet Nam. This was taken as a reference to Chinese insistence on slowing and inspecting Soviet aid shipped to Viet Nam across China.

Queen Mother Has Operation

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Mother Elizabeth underwent an abdominal operation for relief of a partial blockage in a hospital here today.

A bulletin signed by six doctors said her condition after the operation was satisfactory.

The exact nature of the checkup was not disclosed when she was admitted to the hospital.

Atlantic Valley Believed Rich With Oil

HALIFAX (CP)—A deep underwater valley, lying between two rich Atlantic fishing banks off Nova Scotia, was named Friday as a promising area for submarine oil explorations.

The area, known to generations of fishermen as The Gully, is just north of Sable Island, a dreaded spit of sand which has claimed so many ships it's known as "the graveyard of the Atlantic."

Lying between Sable Island Bank to the south and Banquereau Bank to the north, The Gully plunges to depths of 140 fathoms — 840 feet-deep deeper than the fishing grounds on either side of it.

Long considered by fishermen as a useless trough of deep water, the canyon now is seen a prospect for oil.

The federal energy department announced in Ottawa Friday that "considerable amounts of hydrocarbons" are indicated in the undersea valley. These structures the department said, are of a type common to oil deposits in many parts of the world.

Hydrocarbons were indicated in "considerable amounts" in The Gully and in the adjacent area of the Continental Shelf during explorations by geologists from the Bedford Institute of Oceanography at nearby Dartmouth.

The geologists said "these rocks and the ancient environment of deposition they represent are similar to those of known oil producers in various parts of the world."

Using various scientific devices, the geologists determined that the structure of the ocean floor appears to contain a "very thick sedimentary section"—a promising condition.

The energy department made no reference to the thorny question of jurisdiction over the area.

Nova Scotia has made it clear it claims offshore rights and both the province and the federal government have issued exploration permits to various oil companies.

Macdonald Smith Outlines Position

MacDonald Smith

Politician Must Still Be Realist

Whether it be driving one of his sons to a hockey game, acting as chairman for a Belleville Public School Board meeting, or representing his church as an active executive member Macdonald (Mac) Smith, 43, has one watchword — activity.

Mr. Smith has been active in Conservative politics in Belleville since 1946 and his name is now being mentioned as one of the prime contenders for succeeding Elmer Sandercock in Quinte riding.

Mr. Smith has never settled for a half-interest in any activity. Everything he's done, he's done wholeheartedly, throwing the best he has into it.

Born and raised in Belleville, he was a student at B.C.I. in 1941 when he joined the army.

"I thought at the time the war would be over before I had a chance to help. I was only 17 at the time, but I lied a bit about my age."

He served in the Royal Canadian Artillery in northwestern Europe from 1941 until the end of the war. Following the war, he joined the militia and was in it for 12 years, finally serving as a major in command of the 22nd Independent Medium Battery.

Now he is area supply officer of the war supply agency, a federal government organization planning board concerned with the problems facing people for survival in the light of an atomic war.

"My father was always active in politics and I guess that's where I got my interest.

"I think one of the problems of some politicians is that they get to Toronto or Ottawa and get so involved in running a system or a plan, they forget about the individual.

"To me, the main responsibility of the representative is to see the individuals he represents, and not only the ones that voted for him.

"The individual should always be given a fair shake and elected member. Let the civil servants do the background work but not only the individual in the overall plan."

As long as he has been involved in local politics, Mr. Smith was never really a candidate until the last municipal election.

He is at present chairman of the Belleville Public School Board and has been a member of the board 13 years in addition to one year on the Bay of Quinte District High School Board. He was also chairman of the public school board in 1963.

"In all my years on the school board I always went on by acclamation," he said. "I'd had all kinds of experience in elections, but none as a candidate. One of the main reasons I ran was to see if I could draw votes."

He led the polls for school trustees.

"The elected representatives is the servant of the people. His first responsibility is to the area that elects him."

As a result, he says politicians often make big promises and think they are going to change the whole system when they're elected. "There are things you can do naturally but when a piece of legislation comes down it's been worked on for months by experts and bureaucrats and re-checked. No one man is going to change all that, but what he can do is get things done for his area."

Mr. Smith was president of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association for eight years between 1954 and 1962. He was campaign manager for Frank Grills in the last federal election.

"All party members have a duty in their party," he stressed. "To keep the party strong, the elected member must not turn his back on his home riding but must always be available.

"Even when you are not forming the government, there is still a responsibility to keep the party institution strong."

Mr. Smith is a successful businessman. He attended Ontario Business College after the war and joined the sales service station, which he operated for 20 years.

On the death of his father seven years ago, he became president of Harry Smith Fuels, a position he now holds.

He is married to the former Stella Morton and has four children, three boys and a girl, ranging in age from 12 and 13.

He has recently take an active interest in minor sports and sponsored the Pee Wee All-Star hockey team.

He is an active member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, has taught Sunday school, been in the Men's Club, directed Young People's, is a past warden and is now lay delegate to the synod and on the synod executive.

He is also an executive member of the Mental Health Association, a member of Rotary and a member of Eureka Lodge, No. 283.

He was harbor master in Belleville for six years from 1958 to 1964.

He says of all the things he's done, his work on the school board has been the most rewarding.

"Most of the major changes in the last 50 years have taken place within the last 15. I feel I've had a part in this development."

Mr. Smith is still not sure he will seek the nomination, but if he does and if he was to represent the Quinte riding, he says he will approach it with a 100 per cent effort.

"It's the only way I know how. A man can't go into a job like that on a haphazard basis."

Conservation Area Budget Set at $69,200 for 1967

A 1967 budget of $69,200 has been proposed for the Moira River Conservation Authority and a recommendation for this amount will go forward to the incoming authority members.

Of this amount, $18,000 would be raised by local levy, and an estimated $48,000 would be received from federal and provincial grants.

The over-all total would include an expenditure of $46,400 for capital works-including $8,000 for forestry, $6,400 for conservation areas, and $2,000 for water control.

Ordinary expenditures would call for $20,150 and maintenance of schemes $2,650.

The main item of interest to Belleville will be the construction of a seasonal dam in the Moira River just above the old Lazier's dam. Cost of the dam is estimated at $14,000.

Of the $18,000 to be raised for authority purposes through local levy, the city of Belleville would pay 60 per cent or $10,800, the same as for the last three years.

Three 'Brands' Offered Christmas Tree Buyers

Tree vendors offered pruned, plantation-grown trees from the Bancroft area in Scotch pine, spruce and balsam. Prices ranged from $1.50 for a 4-foot table tree to $5 for a 14-footer. The popular 6-foot trees sold for $2.50, with 7-to-8-footers going for $4.

Vendors reported Scotch pine the most popular, with the traditional spruce a close second. For those who object to the spruce's tendency to shed needles quickly, but who want a small-needled evergreen, they recommend balsam. Its needles cling as long as the Scotch pine's and it has the most pleasant fragrance of the three.

Four produce venders who braved the unseasonable drizzle reported business was slow.

Apples were in good supply, with McIntosh, Spy and Delicious offered at 65 cents for 4-quart baskets, 80 to 95 cents for 6-quart baskets and $2.25 to $3.75 a bushel.

Welfare-II

Family of 11 Gets $25 Cheque for Food

With today's soaring food prices, how far will $25 go toward feeding a family of nine children?

That is the amount on which a local mother in the north end of the city tries to get by.

But it certainly doesn't allow anything for luxuries.

This was but one of several similar family conditions found by The Intelligencer this week during an independent check of recent complaints that despite city welfare there are still "hardship" cases in the city.

A further instance was another family of nine trying to get along on a $55 per week pay cheque (when it didn't rain) and paying $50 a month rent.

And in another instance a young couple with a 13-month-old baby was without money and no prospects of unemployment insurance until Dec. 17.

Yesterday The Intelligencer published a story carrying complaints from the heads of local organizations to the effect that city welfare was not looking after the needs of many needy Belleville families.

And an independent check has substantiated the fact complaints are prevalent.

The circumstances of the family of 11 in north Belleville are that the father is under the doctor's care and is unable to accept full time work.

He is working part time as a school bus driver and receives just over $29 per week in take home pay. The family is three months behind in its $50 per month rent for a house without water.

The large front window is broken and is covered with plastic. There is insufficient bedding and the children sleep three to a bed to keep warm. Proper shoes and galoshes are a minus quantity.

It costs $1 per day for stove oil even during the current mild weather and the kitchen stove is the only heated salvaged from the city dump.

About two weeks ago, with no food or money in the house, the family applied for city welfare. At the time of application no money was received and the father was advised to seek full time work.

Last week a welfare cheque for $25 was received and another for the same amount this week.

The mother says her husband expects to be able to get unemployment insurance but this will be reduced by the husband's part time job.

Another family in the Hillcrest area, also with nine children, lives in a house for which the husband's $55 per week pay cheque from a local contracting firm. They are asked to "manage" but it is tough going the week when the $50 monthly rent bill is due.

At the time the young wife was ill and was in need of shoes, the husband said the welfare department refused to supply them even though he promised to pay back the money.

"I had an old car which I scrapped to raise money for the drugs," the husband commented. "I didn't think there was any point going back now for help."

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, chairman of the Red Cross Emergency Aid Committee, said her organization doesn't have the funds to provide food parcels except in emergency cases.

She says that regular welfare requirements should be taken care of by the city welfare department which has expenditures subsidized 80 per cent by the government.

"It's the city's responsibility," he says.

Another woman who came to Belleville from Trenton about a month ago says that when she applied for assistance at city hall, welfare department official suggested that she move to Cannifton.

The woman, separated from her husband and supporting an 18-year-old daughter and 15-year-old son, says she is being evicted because she is behind in her rent.

She says she was promised a month's welfare assistance if she moved to Cannifton. She said she has the promise of rooms on the West Hill but claimed welfare officials told her there could be a teen-age problem.

She is seeking work as a power sewing machine operator but says commuting to Cannifton would result in transportation difficulties.

Miss Jean Stone, Ontario Department of Public Welfare for the month of September show there were 132 Belleville people receiving welfare assistance in that period. This was .4 per cent of the population.

Prince Edward County with a population of 19,801, or just under two-thirds that of Belleville, had 183 on welfare. Trenton with a population of 13,115 had 202 on welfare.

Of all Ontario centres Hasted, East York and Etobicoke have the lowest percentage of population on welfare with only .3 per cent, as compared with Belleville's percentage of 4 per cent.

Bridge Named After Mayor Of Trenton

TRENTON — With the final approval of a special council committee the new bridge over the Trent river here will be named in honor of Trenton's first mayor.

Yesterday the committee convening the "name-the-new-bridge" contest announced Mayor Donald James' name had been selected from an estimated 2,748 entries. From the 24 entries chosen, a panel whittled the form of his name, John Saylor's variation was decided upon by Mayor Jim Jones. Mr. Saylor now lives at 1 MacAuley Drive, Trenton, received the $50 Centennial prize. He suggested the name.

While another 65 entries asked for some form of the name Centennial Bridge the final decision to narrow down the choice was not based on how many asked the name, but what the committee thought was the best, most representative name.

At yesterday's ceremony Mayor D. James MacDonald was on hand to be informed what the committee had decided by committee chairman Frank Kennedy.

'Hams' Train

Representatives from seven municipalities last Tuesday, took their 15 watt emergency government radio sets and headed them in their cars to become mobiles.

Then they proceeded in Quinte Area E.M.O. headquarters in Belleville for Communications training including practice on new procedures; care and maintenance of equipment, etc.; communication aides and an open discussion.

Dr. Richard Potter

Philosophy Calls for Interest in Voter

If politics are among a people's most important social products, continued contact with those same people is a contemporary politician's prime responsibility.

The 51-year-old Belleville physician is a committed contender for the Conservative nomination in the prime population belt of the Quinte district —the new Quinte riding.

And his first test is contact with part of those people shapes up Monday when he places himself before the riding's Conservative association convention at Trenton.

But, as his party's president since 1964 in the historic Hastings West constituency — now partially redistributed into the Quinte riding — he is no freshman observer of the political scene.

"This is a long time — and you learn a lot," he muses. "One thing I have learned is getting the constituents' attitudes and opinions. And I think the only way this can be done is by getting out and seeing them —and through your local association executives.

"These are the people with whom you've got to keep in touch. If you start trying to run a one-man show it doesn't work."

One of his tutors in this political truth he names as Elmer Sandercock, the man whose retirement as MPP for Hastings West has precipitated the current contest for the Tory succession.

"It was one of those things Sandy taught me on our trips together through the riding," reveals the doctor.

Neither should that crucial contact be broken by party lines: "I think in Canadian politics today this is breaking down too," says Dr. Potter.

"The old line that politicians didn't stop in to see a constituent because he was one of their opposition is gone. Most politicians are at the stage where they want to talk to all of their constituents."

There's another change the doctor is aware of — one which is of significance to all political parties in the district.

The now riding is primarily an urban one, Belleville and Trenton alone counting for a majority of its votes. Their surrounding villages and townships have also become satellites of urban settlement. Lost is the strong base of rural votes weaned and reared on generations of loyalty to Conservative ideals.

"I think Quinte riding is just about evenly divided — I don't think it's all the old Tory riding it used to be," sums up Dr. Potter.

"But then, I don't think there's any community in Canada today that you can say is a Tory riding or a Liberal riding."

"But it's the people who are not staunch party members now that decide what government you're going to have."

In recent times, his interests have been broadened beyond the backrooms and public platforms of constituency politics. More than a year ago when illness intruded on the career of Elmer Sandercock, Dr. Potter was drafted to help out with aiding provincial affairs in the riding, on a shariac basis with Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings East.

"It's actually is what stirred up my interest further since I got more insight into the workings of government departments and government generally. Being a representative certainly isnt the humdrum job some people think."

However, he is no fledgling to public affairs — his brush in the arena dating back to the late forties.

Born and educated in Belleville he graduated from Queen's University in 1939. In 1940 he married Enid Weaver, of Tottenham, and the same year went overseas to eventually serve as commanding officer of a medical training and reinforcements unit in England. With D-Day he served in the Normandy battle theatre commanding medical units in France and Holland, retiring in 1945 with the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

On his opening practice in Belleville he became interested in local politics and in 1950 became an alderman hopeful of promoting recreation, health and sanitation programs. (He was the second Potter on council in that decade, his father, the late Frank Potter also had been alderman).

The following year he was elected mayor and saw his programs started, he recalls, one of them being the sanitary-fill disposal of garbage — which years later now has blossomed into the Zwicky Island Centennial project.

Now, describing himself as a Conservative of the centre, he still is "particularly interested in public health and welfare."

However, his opinions range through other avenues of public development — including those posted "economy."

The new Quinte riding presents exciting opportunities for economic expansion because of its compactness, he feels.

"We should no longer talk about what we are going to bring into Belleville or bring into Trenton. We have to break down those barriers that have existed up to now where everyone who'ated to do something only for his town."

Because of its tight geographical packaging and excellent communicating, any new economic development benefits the whole area.

"I think if we do that, we can encourage big industry here."

However, to encourage business settlement a community must have much to offer. There are such basic economic influences as tax structures, labor availability and services, but above all else the question industrialists ponder is "What has the community got to offer for our employees?"

Recreation facilities thus are an increasingly significant factor, he says.

Dr. Potter and his wife have two sons and two daughters: Tom, a 25-year-old Toronto real estate broker and Andrew, 18, a Grade 13 student; Frances, 20, expected to graduate in arts and science from Queen's university next year, and Karen, 11.

The effects on family life and professional practice have been carefully weighed before taking the decision to face Monday's convention — with its possibility of a new public future. He has secured the services of a longtime friend who has agreed to share the responsibilities of his practice, freeing the time needed for attention to public affairs.

This weekend, in common with other contenders for the nomination he will be putting final details in placet for the all-important Monday ballot.

When Dr. Potter first bid for voting favor in 1945 he led the aldermanic polls with what he says was "a tremendous majority."

The following year he sought the mayoralty and had "the biggest majority of any mayor at that time."

By one of those ironic twists, one of his opponents Monday will be Belleville's present Mayor, Jack Ellis.

Liberals To Elect Officers

Liberals in the new provincial Quinte riding will meet at the Kiwanis Club in Belleville next Wednesday evening, Dec. 14 for an organizational meeting.

Business for the meeting will be the election of a new slate of officers for the Quinte riding association and the naming of delegates to attend the Liberal party leadership convention scheduled for Toronto early in January.

Belleville lawyer Kenneth Rose is president of the present Hastings West Liberal Association while Ted Tidwell is the secretary-treasurer.

Moira Level Rises

The Moira River is abnormally high for this time of year, with almost a spring flood volume, of water rolling down the watercourse. But there have been no reports of any serious flooding in the district.

Residents of one riverside housing subdivision south of Foxboro reported that water was creeping up to their backyards and was "almost" as high as in the spring.

Basements as yet no basements have been reported flooded.

County engineer Peter Antenno said he had received no reports of road flooding although some of the roads were quite soft.

Officials at the water filtration plant said that although forecast to have rained almost every day this month, actually there has been only 1.82 inches of rain so far in December.

But November was a wet month with a total of 3.57 inches of rain falling in the Quinte district.

Police Still Investigate Barn Death

MADOC (Special) — Provincial police today are still investigating the cause of a barn fire in which an elderly woman was found dead at Harold Thursday night.

Police say Mrs. Jenkins was found dead in the barn on the family homestead by her husband Lloyd Jenkins 68, and a neighbor, when they went to the barn about 10.30 p.m.

Her clothing was burned and there was a quantity of burned straw in the area near her body, stated investigators.

A post-mortem to determine the exact cause of death was conducted yesterday at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Food Costs Down

With food prices down in November compared with the previous month, a good deal of the credit may well go to the housewives who are focusing attention on this aspect of living costs.

In the United States it is the same. Food chains there have got the message from the housewives that gimmicks such as children's games are no longer welcome. A spokesman for one supermarket admitted the games had "run their course," and if the housewives did not want them that was fine.

In this country the Canadian Consumers' Protest Organization campaign is gathering momentum. In a move to oust the cartoon characters from packets of corn flakes it has called for a boycott of gimmick-filled breakfast cereals on December 15.

The organization also has a good point in urging the Government to help educate consumers by making its food-marketing information available and understandable. The Government has plenty of know-how in this sphere, since it is the Dominion Bureau of Statistics which issues the monthly cost of living index.

If prices come down further as a result it will benefit consumers and the economy as a whole. If Canadians have already learned something more about the lost art of saving pennies — and even dollars — that is all to the good too.

Big Brother Methods

If we are to believe the stories of "bugging" of a labor convention in Vancouver, Canadians may be forgiven for believing the commissioner of George Orwell's 1984 is closer to realization than they had thought.

To what extent is the concept of "Big Brother" affecting our lives? To answer that question we would need to have access to classified information filed away in the headquarters of the RCMP, which is the agency responsible for this country's internal security and counter-espionage activities.

But the testimony being given in Vancouver suggests that the privacy of both individuals and groups is being invaded to a degree that is unwarranted.

Canadians are not alone in being concerned. Citizens' rights are also being violated in the United States and the conclusion is inescapable that the principles of espionage — while perfectly legitimate weapons in their own sphere — are being introduced more and more into civilian areas where they have no place.

The Atlanta Constitution had this to say in a recent editorial: "Electronic eavesdropping is growing in Georgia as in the rest of the country and we join Dekalb Representative Elliott Levitas in calling for strict curbs on the practice.

"With present miniaturization of electronic circuits anyone can "bug" a room of telephone very easily and at little cost. Abuses abound among private citizens and law enforcement agencies."

The newspaper goes on to say that use of the devices by law enforcement agencies "should be zealously controlled and authorized by court order." It says further that third party electronic snooping by private citizens for any purpose or under any conditions "should be outlawed."

Chrismas Near

The lights and decorations are in place, but there is a curious lack of Christmas atmosphere these springlike and "un-December" days.

Mercifully, the traditional Christmas music has not yet descended. Beautiful and reverent as the carols are, it is so easy to murder them by repetition. And the tragic thing is that this goes hand in hand with the annual commercialization of what so many tend to forget is a religious festival.

This year Christmas falls on a Sunday so that the true significance of the birth of Christ cannot escape us. Still, the spirit of this time is already abroad. Belleville has had its big parade, one that will be long remembered by the participants as a chilly one in the midst of an uncommonly mild season. The Jewish community is celebrating Chanukah, the eight-day Festival of Lights, and in Picton the Kinsmen have entertained the Prince Edward community's senior citizens.

In the Gaza Strip where United Nations troops preserve an uneasy peace between Arab and Jew the Canadian contingent is busy wrapping toys for the refugee children of the area.

Like the Jewish fraternity, the people of Sweden, who are in the main Lutheran, recognize the religious significance of light. They pay homage to Santa Lucia, long honored as the saint who ushers light into the long Swedish nights. And where you have a Swedish community this traditional ceremony, in which a young woman represents the symbolic Queen of Light, is an act of Christian remembrance which has been long revered.

Men in Green Are Not Martians—Just Unified Servicemen

By GREG CONOLLEY
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

If you listen to the traditionalists, one of the real horrors of stories coming out of Ottawa these days is the fearful report that the unified, integrated and amalgamated armed forces are going to be dressed in green uniforms.

To hear the talk about it, Defence Minister Paul Hellyer is going to rip up his 125,000 men into baggy green coveralls.

Mr. Hellyer has offered the consolation that the old uniforms may be used for special occasions — in the mess and at other social functions.

Actually the defence forces will have a variety of clothing suited to the kind of duties they perform. There will be working garb and there will be some nifty costumes for walking out purposes.

Mr. Hellyer keeps emphasizing that the cloth will be the same quality for officers and other ranks. That will go down well with some who remember the relative elegance an army officer could attain in all his regalia as compared with the poor private soldier.

But however smart the new uniforms, they will be hard put to match those gentlemanly naval officer uniforms with gold stripes and neat white collars.

You could take a reasonably homely Canadian boy, dress him up as a naval officer and he looked something like David Niven.

If you lined up a Canadian general, admiral and air marshal, the admiral always won the beauty contest provided he wasn't pot-bellied and bow-legged.

THE SENIOR SERVICE

There was something about that navy uniform that made thoother services look just a little grubby.

It will be interesting to see what the new green — or blue or purple — service uniform will do to that other adjutant of the navy — the sometime British accent.

It was astonishing how a young Canadian boy, dress him up as a naval officer and he mission in the navy and suddenly start talking in a rather clipped British way.

But the new green uniform may cool out these linguists in the continuing Canadian navy, green and a brand A don't seem to go together.

The uproar among the soldiers, of course has been understandable. They see their beloved navy as being destroyed by Mr. Hellyer. They envision what is left of the navy being converted into a kind of transport service for the army.

The admirals fear their ships will be taken away, their traditional fighting role altered, their rank structure thrown into discard and even their uniforms tossed out.

And, unkindest cut of all, imagine that fellow Hellyer predicting that one day a General will command the Canadian fleet.

The RCAF has its complaints too. Its rank structure and individual uniforms will go. And there too there will be some subordination of the air force to transport and ground-support of the army.

ARMY GAINS

Indeed of the three services the old army seems to be faring best. It will get the new uniforms which may be a marked improvement in some instances.

The army rank structure will prevail for the unified service.

And the army is coming into its own with more and better equipment and clearly designed roles under NATO and the United Nations.

The army really has little to complain of — but not everything has gone right.

There was one grievous cutback by Mr. Hellyer — he has done away with the rank of lance-corporal.

A lance-corporal, you may recall, was the fellow with the one, lonely stripe. He was sneered at by privates and condescended to by corporals and sergeants.

Nevertheless there was a certain mystique about a lance-corporal. Alas, he is a goner.

Letters to the Editor

State-run Car Insurance Plan

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In answer to Mr. George F. Ward, President, Belleville Fire and Casualty Insurance Agents' Assoc. I would state a few facts about the auto insurance industry and ask Mr. Ward a few questions which I think he will not be so quick to answer.

1. The independent American magazine, Consumer Reports, described the Saskatchewan Insurance Plan as the most economical that it had found in Canada or the U.S.A.

2. Mr. Ward brings fire insurance into the picture as if I don't remember the Ontario NDP being in favor of government - run insurance other than auto.

3. The plan in Saskatchewan, run by the government (the Liberal government), makes available, and compulsory with private companies the additional coverage that Mr. Ward speaks of.

4. While Ontario's best plans only cover death and injury up to $5,000 the Saskatchewan plan covers up to $10,000 per person, plus $300 for funeral expenses and also payments with up to $4,000 for disability due to injury. Also a $25.00 per week check to all those injured and unable to work. All this is without having to hire a lawyer or go to court.

5. Each party involved in an accident gets immediate payment from the Saskatchewan Insurance Plan fund regardless of fault, and without going to court.

6. Leading Canadian newspapers, such as the Toronto Star and the Vancouver Sun, support a government operated car insurance plan.

7. The Financial Post of October 2, 1965 blames "years of over violent competition" as a major factor for high insurance rates in Ontario. After all there are around 300 companies with 4,000 agents trying to get auto insurance business in Ontario.

Mr. Ward could possibly answer these questions:—

1. Since the Saskatchewan Plan has raised its rates and is still losing money yet providing a lower cost service, why is it that the private companies which he represents still claim to be losing money while charging outrageous rates in Ontario, and at the same time, they do not declare investment earnings in profit and loss statements presented to the public?

2. If private companies do such a tremendous job why is one Ontario driver in fifty not insured, but covered by the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund? Could it be that the $25.00 is more within their reach than the hundreds of dollars his companies charge?

3. Why do the companies he represents cancel insurance contracts for a small amount (rate-cost? Could it have anything to do with the rapid increase of those covered, by his companies, on the higher price assigned risk plan?

In closing I would say that a government run plan in Ontario would cost the driving public about 30 per cent less than they are now paying for Auto Insurance.

To Your Good Health

Muscular Spasm Disturbs Sleep

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I go along fine all day until I lie down to sleep. Then just before deep sleep I am brought awake by a surge or jolt within myself. It is not a pain. What causes such a thing? — J. W.

It is rather difficult, as doubtless you realize, for me to try to discuss all the odd symptoms which come up. For exact answers you must depend on your physician.

Keep that qualification in mind when I say that your painless surge or jolt is probably a form of muscle spasm, and is not particularly uncommon as a person falls asleep.

You relax — and then your muscles suddenly tighten briefly. There is no pain. It does not harm but can be somewhat disconcerting.

Various factors may enter into this: The type of work you do; the comfort of your bed; a state of drowsiness; stimulation before retiring, as from excessive smoking or coffee; what you may have on your mind as you fall asleep.

It may be a nuisance, but people usually fall asleep readily enough after one of these brief muscular jolts, and I suspect that the cause is a harmless one.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Should I be worried about germs when I beat and re-beat baby food two or three times? The jars don't state whether it is safe.

Also, when a mother nurses should pills be taken before, during or after she stops nursing? I'm sure I'm going to have trouble "drying up." — Mrs. L. S.

On the baby food: Keep it refrigerated between servings. The heating in addition will destroy germs. Use a clean spoon to keep from introducing germs into the jar. With those few rules you need have no fear.

Your second question may have more than one meaning so I'll answer both. A nursing mother should take as little medication as possible; only what your doctor specifically advises.

If you mean contraceptive pills, do not take them until you stop nursing, as they can have an effect on the baby. When you stop nursing the breasts will begin to dry up, since continued lactation (milk production) depends on continued nursing. If the breasts do not dry readily, medication can be given to hasten the process.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it good or bad for a child of nine, who is knock-kneed and pigeon-toed, to jump rope all the time? It seems to me that jumping rope, holding your knees together and throwing the feet apart, would encourage the knock-knees. She has worn corrective shoes since she was very small but it hasn't seemed to help much. — Mrs. S.

It won't make the knee condition any worse, and the exercise will very likely be beneficial, improving her sense of balance and gracefulness despite her handicap.

• • •

Note to Mrs. C. M.: The International Cancer on Population Problems rates the foam type of contraceptives as fairly well down the list in effectiveness. Their rating: Five stars (perfect) for abstinence; four stars for "the pill;" three stars for the various physical devices (sheaths, diaphragms and IUCD); and the poorest rating for rhythm when used on the basis of a temperature chart; two stars for foam, withdrawal, or rhythm by calendar only; one star for the douche.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Dr. Molner answers readers questions in his column whenever possible.

Political Clubs In the Schools

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

During the past few weeks I have witnessed the arguments for and against partisan political clubs in the schools and as a Belleville high school student, I feel that these clubs would be very beneficial to the schools and to all Canadians in general.

I refer, specifically, to statements made by Lyn Harrington of Frankford, when I say that there seems to be some misunderstanding in the purposes of these clubs in the Belleville schools. Mr. Harrington seems to think that partisan political clubs would cause an influx of interest in one solitary party and that others would be disregarded; by others, he means, I think, the Liberals and the Conservatives.

I must remind Mr. Harrington that in Belleville, unless I have been misinformed, there are other political youth parties in this city, the Liberals and Conservatives. The Quinte New Democratic Youth does not seek to try to tyrannize political clubs by excluding these parties and advancing its own ideas to the "simple - minded youth" of Belleville. As it seems to Mr. Harrington political clubs in the schools would be only a NDP brainwash. If the New Democratic Youth has taken the initiative, still, the other parties should take steps to participate.

Mr. Harrington, as well, has assumed that Quinte New Democratic Youth will have a majority of NDP speakers. It has already been advertised publicly that their speakers will be from all parties including Liberals and Conservatives.

It is also understood that political clubs would educate the youth before voting age. Mr. Harrington again suggests that the youth wait until voting age when from out of the blue he will have the knowledge to vote intelligently. This is ridiculous.

I submit that in partisan political school clubs, secondary students would be encouraged to listen to all sides of the story, all the party platforms, they would learn and understand why and for whom they should vote in Canada, the party of their choice be it Conservative, Liberal or NDP.

Barry Grills,
Belleville.

Lines on Life

Faith Hard to Define

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Y · discuss a problem with your friend and he nods and says, "I see what you mean."

Or you encourage another to reach out for some worthy achievement by telling him to "rise to the occasion."

And when doubt gnaws at your inners, you try to overcome it by exhorting yourself to "stand up to life."

In none of these situations has anyone actually "seen", or "risen" or "stood up".

We are always having problems with language. Words cannot easily communicate deeply felt emotions. That is because we never can see, hear, touch, taste, or smell a powerful insight or a strong sentiment. Still, we must use language to convey certainty and conviction about our deepest feelings. But it has its risks.

That is why there is so much misunderstanding about about what faith means in our lives. Man can only feebly describe to others his deepest feelings.

The language of faith is not the language of words. It is expressed in moods, attitudes, and moments that transcend doubt and despair. It is the feeling of gratitude for the life of each day.

When we straightjacket faith into words, we are apt to be more concerned with what it sounds like, and forget what it feels like. Or when we compress faith into images, we are apt to concentrate on what it looks like.

We tend to think of religion as something that goes on only inside churches and synagogues, instead of knowing it for ourselves as the spiritual power we have within us.

Still others look upon faith as unreal until proven valid in the test tubes of scientific experiment. Faith, like a purple cow, cannot be real, they say. Have you ever seen it?

The man of faith does not need to argue. He knows that for him, seeing is not believing. Believing is seeing.

A Lift for Living

Having 'An Open Mind' Can Be Vice or Virtue

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

In one respect open-mindedness is like faith, hope and love. They are virtues or vices, depending upon their goals and uses.

Some people have too much faith devoted to the wrong things. They have faith that if they flatter the right people, pull the proper strings and wield the right influences they can gain in the world without actually deserving a position of prominence.

Some have too much hope, living in breathless, expectant desire that the fellow on the next rung of the executive ladder above them will blunder, slip and fall so that they can seize his position.

Some love the wrong things, having too great a passion for popularity or money, so that they will do anything and compromise any principle "to have and be held" the object of their affections.

So with open-mindedness: Its true value depends upon what a person is open to, what his mind is ready to receive and entertain. An old Mother Goose rhyme describes a cat's-eye view of London:

"Pussy cat, pussy cat, where have you been?
I've been to London to visit the Queen.
Pussy cat, pussy cat, what did you there?

The cat in London had a splendid opportunity of seeing museums, national monuments, cathedrals, the royal palace and the Queen and her court. But the cat had mice on its mind. Preoccupation with mice means open - mindedness toward rodents and a closed mind toward the splendors of the world.

In December I feel especially sorry for cats, dogs, birds and all other creatures whose minds are open to mice, bones and bird seeds, but are closed to...a certain star, a stable, a manger, and a baby.

Lighting the Way

By Walter S. Crone

NO BRAKES, HEADACHES!

In Sioux City, Iowa, John Johnson, 71, started to back his car out of the garage. His brakes failed, and the car rambled struck down a no-parking sign, through three back-yards, twice criss crossed an alley, crumpled a hedge, toppled a 15-foot tree, shrunk a two-foot high retaining wall, banged into a garage, knocked down a fence, a clothes line and a bird bath, and ground to a halt after smashing into a house.

This was a wild and costly ride for Johnson, for the damage was estimated to be $1,300. All because his brakes had failed.

When the brakes of sound judgment, or self-control fail you, you are headed for trouble, too! When we lack the moral courage to say "no" to some evil temptation, we can be sure that the Devil is going to take us for a ride, and that we will pay the fare in full. It pays to keep our moral brakes in good operating condition.

TEXT FOR THE DAY: "Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." (Ephesians 6:11)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

. . . some years back I tasted the most delicious gelatin dessert mold of large purple grapes and mandarin oranges. Would you have in your files a recipe like this? The mold was purple in color and very tasty. Mrs. J. M.

ANSWER:

No I did not have a recipe in my files but I made a test mould for you and it is pretty and different and tasty.

PURPLE GRAPE AND MANDARIN ORANGE MOULD:

1 package Burgundy grape (or black raspberry) jelly powder
1 cup boiling water
one 10-oz. can Mandarin oranges
1 cup sliced and seeded purple grapes (Ribier not Concord)

Turn jelly powder into a bowl and dissolve in the boiling - water, stirring. Drain Mandarin oranges and measure juice. If half L, cup drained orange sections and ½ cup juice.) Add juice to jelly liquid and chill until it begins to congeal. Cut and remove seeds from grapes and cut into quarters. Add fruits to partially set jelly and turn into 3-cup mould and chill until firm.

QUESTION:

About 2 years ago you gave a recipe for shortbread that called for rice flour. These were nice and crisp. Would you mind repeating it? Also if it is not asking too much I would like you to give the recipe for Genuine Scotch Shortbread without rice flour, too. Mrs. M. B.

ANSWER:

A timely request and I am glad you asked.

RICE FLOUR SHORTBREAD (repeated from May/44) These are ideal for those who are allergic to wheat and wheat flour.

¼ cup butter
¾ cup unsifted icing sugar
2 cups rice flour
½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. cream of tartar (optional)

Cream butter and add gradually, while beating constantly, icing sugar; then work in with your hands the rice flour, baking powder, salt and cream of tartar, if used. Chill. Roll out on lightly riceflavored board to 3/16" thickness. Bake on unbuttered cookie sheet at 325 deg. Fahr. until crisp but not brown at all.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Split Level Pizzas (see Tues.); Tossed Salad of Spinach, Lettuce, Tomatoes and Radishes with Mayonnaise; Mince Tarts; Cheddar Cheese; Coffee.

GENUINE SCOTCH SHORTBREAD:

1 lb. butter
4 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup unsifted icing or fruit sugar

Mix these three ingredients by hand in large bowl until of rolling-out consistency. Roll out to ¼" thickness on lightly floured board. Edges of dough will crack, but patiently coax dough into a smooth round. Cut out with lightly floured cutter or various cutters. (I made fifty-two 2¾" shortbreads from this amount.) Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. on unbuttered baking sheets about 20 to 25 mins. Remove as soon as they are barely tinged with gold. They should not be browned at all.

NOTE:

The Scottish people roll shortbread in circles ½ inch or press into 6 or 7 pans to ½" thickness and bake.

Samuel McIntire, the father, probably made this shield back chair about 1800. The mahogany chair is the type made in Salem, Mass.

Fine Furniture Pieces Are Credited to McIntire Father

By Ralph and Terry Kovel

Like father, like son seems true among some of the now famous manufacturers of early furniture. Samuel McIntire (1750-1811), the famous American woodcarver and architect, had a shop that employed several of his brothers.

He designed his famous houses and his brothers did the actual building. Mr. McIntire did the actual carving on the doorways, mantels, and trim.

Furniture was made at his shop, and he probably carved the decorations after making the design. The furniture was actually made by others at the shop. One of these furniture makers was his son Samuel Field McIntire (1780-1819). Unfortunately, there is so little information available many of the son's pieces have been credited to the father until recently.

Q. Straw seems to have been glued together to form a design on a very old teacaddy that belonged to my English relatives. Was this a popular English idea?

A. Straw work was probably started in the orient. It was known in Europe by the 17th century. Straw was used by English, French, Spanish, and Dutch makers in the 18th century.

It was often used to make miniature pieces of furniture. The straw was colored, cut, and used to form marquetry designs. The straw work teacaddy was a wooden box covered with wax and decorated with small pieces of straw. Other types of straw work were made by braiding, weaving, or tying the straw. Very few pieces of straw work made in Colonial America have survived.

If you own an old porcelain cup or tureen with a butterfly as the handle you may want to try this trick. Count the dots on the edge of the butterfly's wings. If there are 10 dots, four on the lower ends, six on the top sides, then your cup was made by the Spode Company of England. Other firms used a different number of dots, at least to the story goes.

Q. The name "Hopf" is engraved on the top of the back of the violin that has been in our family for 74 years. How old is it?

A. Hopf has been a name associated with violins in Germany for centuries. The first recorded violin maker by that name was Caspar Hopf (1650-1711). Twenty-two of his relatives made violins in Germany. The last recorded maker was Carl August Hopf who died in 1918.

BOOK REVIEW

Steins, that neglected field of antiques, finally have been listed in a book by R. H. Mohr. (2208 Douglas St. Rockford, Illinois $4.50). The paper bound book "Metllach Steins and Their Prices" lists and describes hundreds of the numbered Metlach steins of the past 90 years.

Unintentional Hurt Is Unkindest Cut of All

The sharp intake of breath and the quick agonized gasp of pain as the spike heel ground into her foot, caused the woman ahead to turn and ask: "Oh, did I step on you? Little did the spike-heeled person realise the severity of the pain she had unintentionally inflicted. The slender dime-sized spike, with an approximate 150 pounds pressure behind it, had found its mark on a vulnerable unprotected part of the foot.

The black expert's unconcern about the consequences of her act was in proportion to her lack of knowledge of the hurt that had been inflicted, albeit without forethought or intention.

Are not all of us, perhaps, sometimes guilty of committing a "blind spike" — unintentionally hurting another — by a careless remark (overheard by a person thought to be out of range), or by failing to express a word or acknowledge a gift or a courtesy?

Haven't we under stress or is anger sometimes raised our voice and said things that cut deeply, which we really didn't mean, and yet never had the grace, the courage, the man or womanhood to say we were sorry? We just carry on seemingly unconcerned. It is the unintentional hurts — the blind spikes — of loved ones that are "the most unkindest cut of all."

Ann was shoving her new costume jewellery to a neighbor, "Not bad looking junk. Where did you get it?" was the response. Ann bristled inside. She was hurt, puzzled. The sting of the thoughtless remark remained. It recurred every time she wore the jewellery.

Ann was thin-skinned? Was her neighbor envious? Malicious? Or, just making a stupid joke? Probably none of these. She was just using a form of speech, carelessly and thoughtlessly, but for Ann it carried that nasty little spike.

Do I hear someone say "So what"? Well, our thought is just this — we could all profit by being a little more careful, a little more thoughtful, a little more considerate in our use of flip forms of speech, in the unintentional gibe that may seem a joke to us but isn't so funny to the person on the receiving end — the casual remark that could be for someone "a blind spike".

—Sadie Brooks Bending, Editor, CCB Column.

The second meeting of the Melrose Roaring Roasts was held on November 30, at the home of Mrs. Smeja.

A variety of meats including liver, heart, kidney, tongue, tripe, brains and sweetbreads, which contain no bone and little fat were discussed. Some processing methods such as curing, canning, smoking and freezing. Meat which has been completely thawed should not be refrozen. It should be cooked promptly to prevent spoilage.

Parent Blasts Teachers, One Pupil Disagrees

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am burned up over your taking the side of the teacher against the mother. What do you know about raising a family? I'll bet you've never had any children of your own. You've been too busy handing out advice.

I raised five children so I know what I am talking about. Our kids were just fine until the eggheads from the east came into our school system and ruined it with their evaluation rot. We didn't know what a disturbed child was until the teachers started in with their psychobabbletalk.

ANN LANDERS

Today's so-called enlightened teachers take the side of children against their parents. They make the kids feel inferior and misunderstood. They encourage students to tell everything that goes on in the home — things that should never be discussed with outsiders.

You keep criticizing the spelling of high school students who write to you. The reason our kids can't spell or read or write is because the teachers aren't teaching them. They are too busy protecting amateur psychiatry. Print it if you have the nerve, Ann Landers. I dare you. — VOICE OF TRUTH.

• • •

DEAR VOICE: Thank you for your point of view. And now let us hear what a college sophomore has to say.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for giving teachers the credit they deserve. If it weren't for my English teacher who was also my guidance counselor, I would have ended up in a mental hospital or a suicide.

My father was a handsome, good-for-nothing loafer who lived with at least five women that I know of. Mom had six children to support and she did her best, but it was rough because she was sick in bed a lot. I was the oldest daughter and the responsibilities of the house and the kids fell on me.

I was a good student and very eager to learn. Most of me. I worried about Mom, about paying bills, about my brothers and sisters getting enough to eat and clothes to wear. I began to feel guilty for not quitting school and taking a job. Finally I became exhausted mentally and physically. I wrote to you and you suggested that I see my guidance counselor.

The teacher changed my whole life. She saw to it that Dad supported us and she got my mother to go to a good doctor. She gave me the strength and courage I needed to keep going and through her I gained real understanding of myself and my family. She made me see that I had to continue my education and that nothing should stand in my way.

I am in college now, a place I never dreamed I could be, and if it weren't for that saint of a teacher, I would never have made the grade. Thank God there are such people in the world. I pray for her every night. — SAVED: ONE LOST GIRL.

• • •

DEAR SAVED: What a beautiful letter. I'm intentionally not identifying the city you live in. I would like hundreds of teachers to feel that perhaps this letter was written by one of their students. And it well could have been.

Woman Police Director Wants Male Successor

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — "I would strongly advise replacing me with a man," says the woman who may be the only one in the U.S. to serve as executive head of a police organization.

Mary Freeman Ross, executive director of the Buckeye State Sheriff's Association, who is stepping down from her post next year after 33 years with the organization, said:

"I don't think a man's organization should be headed by a woman."

Mrs. Ross, one of the best known lobbyists in the state legislature, said she joined the organization "at the request of my father to help out a friend.

DEAR DORIS: Poetically speaking, would you or any reader have a copy of a poem which I think of but cannot recall? It is to the effect that October or autumn gave a ball and all the trees came in their various colored gowns. Miss Maple in red, Miss Poplar in green, and so on.

One assumes (from a failing memory) that the wind provided the music and the dancing reached a mad whirl.

Colorful Festive Fashion

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

2. The classic lines of this cardigan make it a go-every-where favorite. Its tailored look is highlighted by double-stitched bands around the neck, cuffs, and hips. Adding their own sparkle touch are gold buttons, brushed with a Florentine finish for a jewel-like effect. Such "controlled" glitter extends sweater's versatility. Leona, of CBS-TV's "The Red Skelton Show," discovered it could be worn as either a car coat, dress jacket, or sportswear topper.

3. A colorful spray of wool knit-on-knit flowers swirls across the front of this tangerine slack ensemble. The relaxed fit of the sweater, with its stand-away neckline and dolman sleeves, ready it for action-wear, so the pull-over skims on easily without disturbing a strand of your freshly set coiffure. Neat, novel and noteworthy, they're the look of this year's Santa helpers.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE

READ — The November meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in St. Mary's School recently.

President Mrs. T. V. Corrigan was in charge and items of business were discussed. Spiritual convener Mrs. M. Herrigan presented an advent wreath she had made and explained the meaning of it which was most interesting.

The December meeting will be in the form of a Christmas party to be held on December 13th and should be of interest to all the members.

The meeting was turned over to Father Hamilton who explained the social action program which followed. There were five group leaders with a number of members taking part in the discussions. The summary brought out many points which showed the effectiveness of group discussions.

Met's National Company Visits O'Keefe Centre

The Metropolitan Opera National Company, now in its second season, co-sponsored by the Metropolitan Opera Association and the John F. Kennedy Centre for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., will be seen at O'Keefe Centre for one week only, beginning Monday, Dec. 12.

The company of 130 includes principal artists, musicians, conductors, ballet and staff, representing some of the finest U.S. and Canadian talent with which this continent abounds. It is the aim of the Metropolitan Opera National Company to "form the flow of young singers to Europe by providing them with an opportunity at home. By utilizing the talents of internationally distinguished directors and designers, the emphasis for the company is on the overall production — not individual stars — but total ensemble.

Under the supervision of Rudolf Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, Rise Stevens and Michael Manuel, co-managers of the Metropolitan Opera National Company, four operas have been chosen for this season's repertoire: Puccini's La Boheme; The Rape of Lucretia by Benjamin Britten; The Marriage of Figaro by Mozart; and Verdi's La Traviata. The Puccini and Verdi operas will be sung in Italian and English. The Britten and Mozart will be sung only in English.

Honor Only Woman MPP Elected by Servicemen

EDMONTON (CP) — Roberta MacAdam, only woman to be elected as an armed services representative in a Canadian provincial legislature, is to be honored by the women of Alberta.

Miss MacAdam was serving overseas as dietitian for Canadian military hospital services when she was elected to the Alberta legislature in August, 1917, after a campaign that consisted of one small printed sheet.

The election was the first after women obtained the vote in Alberta. But Miss MacAdam's support was predominantly male. The eligible voters were 38,000 soldiers and 75 nurses serving overseas at the time.

Miss MacAdam did not take her seat until she returned from overseas duty many months after the election. She did not seek re-election and married Harvey S. Price of Peace River, Alta., in 1920. The couple moved to Calgary, where her husband became a law partner of R. B. Bennett, later prime minister of Canada. She died in 1959.

Co-ed Argues Sex Form of Communication

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) —Co-ed Jan Lienke says she's surprised that most of the reaction to a letter she wrote advocating pre-marital sexual relations has been favorable.

Miss Lienke, 19, a senior in the University of Minnesota school of nursing, said friends, nursing students and others have told her the letter was "well-written and with a lot of good points."

The letter was published in the Nov. 18 issue of the Minnesota Daily, the campus newspaper, as part of a discussion on curfews for women's dormitories.

The slender brunette wrote: "Sexual intercourse is a form of communication between two people which because of available contraceptive pills, should be no more regulated than any other form of communication, such as conversing, dancing and holding hands.

"As long as the feelings of other people are taken into account as much as possible, then sexual intercourse should be spontaneous, guilt-free and a warm human experience."

NOT PROMISCUOUS

The letter added that the philosophy of freedom to communicate sexually "does not mean that all girls automatically become promiscuous and neo-selective."

"Ask any girl if she would care to make love to a guy who didn't appeal to her. She wouldn't have anything to say to him. . . ."

Miss Lienke said she hasn't been plagued by telephone calls since the letter appeared, but there have been a few calls. All were from men

Mini-budget in Few Days Sharp Informs Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Despite flat denials by government spokesmen, opposition parties in the Commons Friday insisted the government is re-imposing the means test on old age pensioners.

Back-bencher Hugh Faulkner (L — Peterborough) said Conservatives and New Democratic MPs were doing a disservice by "raising the spectre of the means test" in connection with the plan to add $30 monthly to incomes of needy old people whose income is confined to the regular $75 old age pension.

"Call it what you like—it is still the same thing—a rose by any other name—it is still a means test," replied Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon).

Indications are the government bill will get Commons' approval well before the Christmas recess. This will allow application forms to go out to all old-age pensioners by early January. The first cheques will be in the mail in March and will be retroactive to Jan. 1.

Finance Minister Sharp assured the Commons he plans to bring in his mini-budget "within a few days." It is expected to contain tax increases to meet the costs of the increased pensions for an estimated 900,000 persons. The government says about 500,000 will get the full $30.

The government also announced sale of 900,000 long tons of wheat to China, estimated to be worth more than $70,000,000.

There'll be more debate Monday on the pensions bill. But first the Commons will be asked to approve labor legislation providing comparable employment benefits to employees working for more than one employer. Labor Minister Nicholson said the legislation is particularly important for longshoremen.

When the supplementary old age pensions came up for second reading earlier this week, Health Minister MacEachen made a plea that opposition members not argue that a means test was part of the plan.

Applicants would be asked merely to fill out a simple form "doing no more than any other person in the country has to do in filling out income tax forms."

Judging from Friday's debate, his plea fell on deaf ears.

Mr. Brand asked the minister to take a second look at the legislation. Perhaps he would discover on actuarial and humanitarian grounds that the increase could be given at all.

Jean-Paul Matte (L—Champlain) argued the government was making do with the resources available. It was not wasting money by putting more in the pockets of millionaires.

Two opposition MPs hammered away at another clause in the bill which says every $2 of income above the regular $75 pension will result in a deduction of $1 from the supplementary payment.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) wondered about old-age pensioners who earn money from baby - sitting or renting rooms. How would they calculate overhead from their extra income?

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) said the bill returned welfare measures to "the charity concept," a backward step from 1951 when the old age pension was made universal.

Medicare's First Test Is MDs

TORONTO (CP)—Now that it is about ready to go to the provinces for a final fitting, the federal medical-care plan faces its first real test, the Canadian Medical Association warned Friday.

Executive CMA members from each province also warned at a news conference that they are not optimistic the plan will work at all or that it will provide a high-quality service if implemented.

"The real test comes when the provinces sit down to see if a workable plan can be evolved within the rigid structure the federal government has laid down," said Executive Secretary B. E. Freame of Toronto.

The executive took time out from a two-day meeting here to reiterate its views in the light of the medical-care bill which received third reading in the Commons Thursday. The bill provides for the federal government to pay half the cost of approved provincial insurance schemes and is due to go into effect July 1, 1968.

A major CMA objection is that the bill isn't flexible enough to meet the different needs of the provinces.

Other executives said British Columbia, Alberta and Ontario had developed medical plans to try to achieve maximum coverage. But these, along with schemes in other provinces had not been in operation long enough to work out the kinks.

"So now we'll never know whether these programs are going to be better than the federal plan," said Mr. Freame.

One-Time Slave, 125, Files Suit to Divorce Absent Wife

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) Sylvester Magee, who began life as a slave and claims to be 125 years old, has filed suit to divorce his wife on grounds she deserted him.

Court records in Forrest County showed Friday that Magee had sued for divorce, claiming that Marie Magee, who now lives in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., left him in 1953.

Magee said he still loves his wife and because of his health and age he needs her companionship but that she steadfastly refuses to return to his bed and board."

Magee does not seek custody of the couple's 16-year-old daughter, Marie, who was born in 1950 when her father was 108.

Although exact proof is hard to come by, it's generally accepted that Magee was born in Carpet, N.C., May 29, 1841, and was sold to a Mississippi plantation owner at 18.

Magee quietly celebrated his 125th birthday at his small Hattiesburg home in May while recuperating from a bout with pneumonia.

Magee says he obtained his freedom after the fall of Vicksburg and serving with Union troopers. He suffered two battle wounds.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Professional hockey will be an "in-and-out" affair come next spring.

There'll be "time-outs" and commercials "in".

The Columbia Broadcasting System which will telecast the games will call spasmodic halts to play so you can send woman nipping Siloka coffee or telling you how that spread tastes as good as the "beep-beep."

Fore some time now the CBS and the NHL have been playing around with the injectious. During 15 games played in United States cities the referees was outfitted with a signaling device that instructed him to delay the face-off for 70 seconds. The official did this three times in each period.

According to NHL president Clarence Campbell apparently not many people noticed the delays. "We are vitally interested in the reaction of the people who buy tickets to our games," he is quoted as saying. "But there has been no reaction so far. Some of the owners were at these games and they didn't notice either."

However we imagine there will be some reaction if and when a man-sized fist-swinging brawl starts and there appears on the idiot box screen a shamble of bangle-jickling gazabos warbling:

"To a bridegroom it's a lifetime job,
To a sailor, it's another gob,
— To a joker it's a fail-size gag,
To his mother it's a fag."

Or when a player breaks into the clear and streaks for the opposing goal, you blink an eye then see a buxom dowager pointing to a sheet on a line and gurgling "That one is the whitest."

And how about that tense moment when the face-off is just outside the other team's goal and the pictures changes to some drape-shaped hipster wiggling like a snake in a barrel of salt until he gets his favorite chocolate bar or those 4,000 cows come a-mooing out of that barn which can scarcely house fifty bovines let alone thousands.

Or a sexy siren one-eyes you through golden tresses and throats huskily, "I'm back again with my swill-cream boy. Are you man enough to try it?"

So brace yourselves. If the CBS-NHL tests prove to be OK there'll be more and more minute commercials during a game broadcast. And as one columnist pulp lit: — "If you are one of those who like to fetch a pint from the ice-box during each commercial, you may never get to see the overtime."

On "Hockey Night in Canada" telecasts, Canadian sponsors need period intervals for commercials or superimposed them over the live action, usually a face-off. This was suggested to the CBS by National League brass, but the network appears to favor the time-out idea.

Bill McPhail the CBS grand vizier in charge of the network sports department, who, as Ted Blackman of Montreal says "is up to his neck in Super Bowls, Colins Bowls and Toilet Bowls" says they have not come to the hockey decision yet.

He did say "we'll probably need room for 14 one-minute pings and we're going to have to find room for them somewhere."

Last year when the NBC telecast Stanley Cup games they used tape and tossed in commercials without missing any of the action. But CBS has rejected the tape idea.

It begins its network telecasting of NHL games when the playoffs arrive but eight regular season games will be seen on a syndicated basis and the time out idea given full swing.

Worsley Out ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Toronto Shy Three

Injury Gremlins Ride Habs, Leafs!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A week ago, Claude Larose was wondering whether he might be sent to the minors and the Montreal Canadiens he plays for were wondering whether they would ever get out of the mire.

Larose pulled up his socks, and so did the Canadiens who head into a weekend of National Hockey League action with three consecutive victories behind them and first place in sight.

But the Canadiens, at last beginning to resemble the high-flying club that won the NHL championship and the Stanley Cup last year, will be without one of the key men in last season's success, goaltender Gump Worsley.

The stodgy netminder suffered cartilage damage in the right knee Wednesday and Gary Bauman has been called up from Quebec Aces to replace him.

Bauman will be a backup to Charlie Hodge in weekend games against Detroit Red Wings at Montreal tonight and at New York against the Rangers Sunday night.

NO SURGERY REQUIRED

Canadiens' team physician, Dr. D. G. Kinnear, said Friday Gump probably will be out of action for 10 days but the injury will not require surgery.

Larose says that before last weekend's games he was "disturbed about our long slump, worried about the team's performance but also worried about my own fate."

"Another defeat Saturday night and I would not have been surprised-if I was on the road to Quebec or Houston," said the 24 - year - old right winger.

But the Canadiens defeated Chicago Black Hawks 3-1, and then beat New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday and Wednesday. Larose scored two goals in each of the last two games.

The Canadiens are still in fourth place, but now they are only five points out of first place, held jointly by New York and Chicago, and four points behind third-place Toronto.

In tonight's only other game, the Black Hawks visit Toronto. Sunday, Toronto plays last-place Detroit and fifth - place Boston is at Chicago.

HAS 6 GOALS

Larose's four-goal week gives him a total of six to go along with two assists for the season. Before last weekend Larose had spent a game at Toronto warming the bench while Leon Rochefort played.

Detroit manager - coach Sid Abel will have Roger Crozier in goal tonight but his big problems is up front in the scoring line.

The Red Wings have earned their place in the cellar with nine games lost out of the last 10 and only 19 goals to show.

Floyd Smith hasn't scored in 13 games, despite his 71-goal streak last season. Rookie Pete Mahovlich got his first NHL goal 13 games ago and didn't score in the following 12.

Also scoreless are team-captain Alex Delvecchio in 10 games, Bruce MacGregor in seven and Paul Henderson in five.

Henderson has been suffering from an inflamed windpipe that kept him out of six of the last 10 games and he is a doubtful starter tonight. In the Wings' first 11 games he was the team's top scorer with nine goals.

Montreal is not the only club with injury problems. The Leafs will play their weekend games without goaltender Terry Sawchuk, winger Eddie Shack and defenceman Allan Stanley.

Sawchuk is out with a recurring back ailment and undergoing examination for a possible slipped disc. Shack has 15 stitches on his eyebrow picked up against the Canadiens Wednesday and Stanley has been out since last Saturday when he suffered bruised ribs.

Bruins are still without rookie defenceman Bobby Orr, in hospital with torn ligaments in his left leg and not expected back for three weeks.

The Rangers will be getting back two of their casualties. Jean Ratelle is returning after recovery from a serious back ailment and Rod Gilbert will resume action after getting over bursitis in the right ankle.

Indians Scalp Aces 12-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aces are high in the American Hockey League, but not worth a deuce in Springfield.

Elsewhere, Hershey Bears defeated Buffalo Bisons 4-1, Pittsburgh Hornets stretched their unbeaten streak to nine games with a 4-1 victory over Rochester Clippers, and Rochester Americans defeated Providence Reds 6-2.

Palmer, Nicklaus Top Team Pack

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Two rounds of 63 and a 66 give Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer a two-stroke edge going into today's final round of the $275,000 Professional Golfers Association team competition.

It was the kind of par-smashing play that has been going on around here continues — and should the leaders falter—any of at least 18 of the 70 teams could take the two-ball, best-ball tournament.

Doug Sanders and Al Besselink are two strokes back at 194 with rounds of 65, 62 and 67.

And the Cupit brothers, Buster and Jacky, trail by four strokes, after smashing the tough, 6,986-yard course Friday with a record 61.

In his own ball, Jacky carded an official 62, knocking four strokes off the individual course record.

The Toronto team of George Knudson and Al Balding had 69-67-68 for a 204 total going into the final round, while Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and Ralph Montoya of Little Falls, Minn., had 67-71-68 for a total of 206.

Palmer and Nicklaus almost needed flashlights by the time they reached the 18th hole Friday. They holed out in the dim, reflected pink light of sunset.

Nationals Switch, Beat Juniors

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's national hockey team switched defences and goaltenders to even the odds, then beat St. James Braves of the Manitoba Junior League 7-5 in an exhibition game Friday night.

The Braves, with national team goaltender Gary Broderick making 31 saves, moved in front 3-1 in the first period but couldn't hold on.

Scoring for the national team were Danny O'Shea and Jean Cusson, with two each, Ray Cadieux, Ted Hargreaves and Billy MacMillan adding the others.

Packers Clash With Colts

Cowboys Wary Of Redskins' Jorgensen

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dallas Cowboys, with their first Eastern-Division title in sight, are wary what Sonny Jurgensen could blot out the picture with a few well-thrown passes.

The Cowboys hold a one-game lead over St. Louis Cardinals with two games remaining in the National Football League and one of them is Sunday against Jurgensen and Washington Redskins in the Cotton Bowl.

A victory for Dallas will give the Cowboys at least a share of the crown and, coupled with a St. Loafs loss against Atlanta Falcons, it will clinch it.

The only other team in contention, defending champion Cleveland Browns, take their slim hopes to Philadelphia, against the Eagles, while Chicago Bears meet San Francisco Forty-Niners. Detroit Lions play Minnesota Vikings and Pittsburgh Steelers play New York Giants in the other Sunday games.

Green Bay Packers meet Baltimore today with a chance to wrap up its second straight Western-Division title. Los Angeles Rams are idle.

In the American Football League Sunday, Boston Patriots take their championship hopes to Houston, where the Patriots can close in on the Oilers.

HOLD SLIM LEAD

The Patriots hold a fractional lead over idle Buffalo Bills. Buffalo closes against Denver Broncos. Boston needs two victories to be sure it stays on top.

Kansas City Chiefs already have the western title wrapped up as it takes the league's leading offence and defence to Miami against the Dolphins. Completing the all - Sunday schedule, New York Jets play host to Denver Broncos — meet Oakland San Diego Chargers, and Den- Raiders.

Leafs Lose Application

Brewer Return Held Up!

KITCHENER (CP) — Lawyer Alan Eagleson of Toronto said Friday Carl Brewer's return to amateur status is temporarily held up because Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League have lost his application for reinstatement.

"It's incredible but apparently true," the legal representative for the former Leafs defenceman. No Leafs spokesmen were immediately available for comment.

Brewer, under terms of a special rule made by NHL governors to cover cases like this, must have the signed approval of Leafs to his reinstatement, to be counter-signed by NHL headquarters.

"We sent the application to Leafs Oct. 13," Eagleson said. "I started to try to get him cleared last Friday. Then they told me they had lost the application although they were able to find the covering letter."

Eagleson said he has sent a special-delivery application to Brewer in Winnipeg for his signature. Brewer wants to play with Canada's national team.

"I'm expecting he'll be cleared in time to play with the Canadians in an exhibition game Sunday," said Eagleson. "If he isn't, I'm going to be extremely unhappy and someone is going to hear about it."

Brewer hopes to be in the lineup when the Nationals play the Soviet Union in a Kitchener charity game Jan. 12.

Teams Act As Agents

REGINA (CP) — Teams in the outlawed Canadian Major Junior Hockey League will act as agents for players wanting to sign professional contracts, commissioner Frank Boucher said Friday.

Asked for this to happen, he said, National Hockey League teams must ignore a suspension placed on all CMJHL clubs and players by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The CAHA suspended the league when it was formed without the permission of the amateur body last summer. The NHL and CAHA boost each other's suspensions.

The CMJHL is made up of Edmonton Oil Kings, Calgary Buffaloes, Regina Pats, Saskatoon Blades, Moose Jaw Canucks, Estevan Bruins and Weyburn Red Wings.

Boucher was commenting on the contracts which players signed this season to play in the league. The contracts were mimeographed by the CAHA in Melville, Sask., home of secretary - manager Gordon Juckes, and distributed with the CAHA bulletin for December.

The CAHA drew attention to clauses in the contract which state that declaration of the fact that CMJHL clubs help develop their abilities, players are to appoint the league's chief agents in negotiating professional contracts.

Boucher explained that each CMJHL club is to help a player wanting to turn pro in his bargaining. The player would get to keep whatever salary and bonuses he can get for signing, but the pro team would have to pay the junior team an additional amount for the player. The two clubs would negotiate this amount, Boucher said.

Late Goals Give Mo-Hawks Win

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Belleville Mo-Hawks broke loose for their largest goal production of the year before about 1,000 fans here last night but it took three late ones to pull out a 9-6 decision over a shorthanded Orillia Pepsi's crew.

The victory brought the Mo-Hawks back up to the .500 level in the OHA Senior "A" standing, with eight wins and as many losses. They visit Toronto Sunday and meet the Varsity Grads back here Tuesday.

To say the game was loose-ly-played would be an understatement.

Belleville appeared ready to pull away from the Pepsi's all night but defensive lapses kept the decision in doubt until the game's final eight minutes.

Gary Darling, who led the Mo-Hawks' 22-point explosion, scored the winning goal, the "prettiest of the night, at 12.22 of the third. Crawford and McAlpine assisted as Darling broke in after taking a clearing pass, deked the Orillia defence perfectly and ripped a shot to the far corner to snap a 6-6 tie.

McConnell provided some breathing room at 15.07. He stole the puck in the centre zone and beat young Kyle Mortimer from close range. Menard put the finishing touch on the win at 17.36, avoiding a check before blasting from six feet out.

Darling scored two goals and assisted on two others for a four-point night. Close behind were Wayne "Wiener" Brown and Wayne McConnell, each with two goals and an assist. Minnie Menard also scored twice, his fourth such performance in the last five games, while Bob Taylor notched the other goal and one assist.

Bob DeAlpine, with two, Eddie Marineau, Lionel Boily, Rick Bradford, Ralph Plane, Floyd Crawford and John "Shaker" Baker also drew assists.

Buddy Horne was tops for Orillia with two goals and an assist. John Hall, Don Gibson and George Vail each had one and one and Phil Nicholas also scored.

Orillia opened the scoring on their first shot of the game, by Hall, but Brown's tieling flapper on a power-play and Menard's conversion of Darling's passout made it 2-1 at the end of one. The Mo-Hawks failed to make the most of numerous rebounds and close-in chances to widen the lead.

The Pepsi's struck quickly again opening the second and by 1.51, Horne and Vail had shoved their club back into the lead, 3-2.

Brown swooped in to drive a bullet through Mortimer before John Chaneweki could get back into play after serving a minor. Darling deflected Bradford's Christine blast under the goaler's pads at 12.45 but Nicholas came right back on the next play to end the period at 4-4.

Brown, Taylor and Marineau missed at least four perfect chances on one shift early in the third before Taylor put it in off Mortimer's pads from the side. Plane did the spade work for McConnell's first-goal, and a 8-4 Mo-Hawk lead, at 4.28.

Again Orillia tied it, Horne stealing the puck for one at 5.18 and Gibson slapping home Ford's passout at 8.41, setting up the final trio.

The Mo-Hawks outshot the visitors, who were minus five regulars, including goalie Ivan Walmsley, 38-32, and both Ludgrey Doucet and his Orillia counterpart made some good saves despite the score.

Mo-Hawk coach Floyd Crawford inserted Brown on the line with Taylor and Marineau and used Lou Sonke, back after a lengthy absence through injury, and Gary Gresdahl, as extra forwards. Offensively, the club could have easily doubled its nine-goal total.

ORILLIA — Goal, Mortimer; defence, Wilson, Forbes. Chaneweki, Watson; forwards, Horne, Gibson, Vail, Hall, Nicholas, Thiboville.

Idaho Fullback Claims 2nd Huge Offer

MOSCOW, Idaho (CP) — For the second time in two weeks, huge bonus offer has been reported made to an American college star by an unidentified team in the Canadian Football League.

B. P. Maker, sports information director at the University of Idaho, said Idaho fullback Ray McDonald was offered $750,000 to sign with a CFL club.

Last week there were reports that quarterback Steve Spurrier of the University of Florida was offered $500,000 by a CFL team.

No Canadian teams confirmed making such an offer to Spurrier.

Maker, speaking at a dinner here, declined to name the team and McDonald would not comment.

Some CFL teams indicated an interest in McDonald but none mentioned the big offer.

EQUALS BUDGET

"That's practically our budget for the year," said coach Ralph Sasio of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, members of the CFL's Eastern conference.

He said he suspects some players are using the CFL to pry more money out of the common draft offers by the National and American leagues.

Coach Jerry Williams of Calgary Stampeders of the Western conference said his team has acquired McDonald and would like to have him, but not at $750,000.

Paul Cotyn, athletic director at Idaho, said Friday he knew nothing about : $750,000 bonus for McDonald.

All-Stars Lose To Poles

SUDBURY (CP) — The Polish national hockey team scored three unanswered goals in the second period and went on to defeat the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A all-stars 3-2 Friday night before 2,700 fans.

The all-stars held the Polish team to a 1-1 standoff in the first period behind the goal-tending of Andre Lalande of North Bay Trappers.

Bill Sutherland of Sudbury Wolves took over the nets for the all-stars in the second period and Lalande returned in the third.

Kangaroo Shoes For KCA's

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Three rare albino kangaroo pelts worth $165 each were delivered Friday to Charles O. Finley, the first of many from Australia needed to make 300 pair of white baseball shoes for Finley's Kansas City Athletics.

"This pelt I'm looking at has two bullet holes in it and is about 3¼ feet by 3¼ feet," Finley said.

"Ordinary kangaroo pelts are worth $15 each compared to $165 for these. That will give you an idea how rare they are. They are hunting them in the mountains about 90 miles northwest of Sydney, where the albino kangaroos hide against a white background. They tell me they are hard to see, but at that price a lot of people are finding they could shoot a lot straighter than they thought."

Why white shoes?

"After all, basketball players, tennis players and pro bowlers are using white does and have for many years.

"The ladies will just love these shoes and they'll bring their husbands to the park."

BOOM BOOM OK

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of New York Rangers, who suffered a chest injury in Thursday night's National Hockey League game at Detroit, has been pronounced fit to play Sunday night against Montreal Canadiens.

Outdoor Tips And Tactics

BY BOB BLAIND

Duck season is fast drawing to a close and we still have not gotten a really good shoot this year, but maybe Monday or Tuesday will be different.

While the second week from last weekend, quite a few rabbit hunters could be seen in the surrounding countryside and most of these hunters had very good luck.

Pickerel have not been hitting yet this week at Trenton but it is mainly because of the condition of the water, filled up with mud and surface runoff. The fish seem to move out of the mouth of the Trent, until the water clears up.

On Monday of this week, the first ice fishermen of the season showed up at the Belleville harbor and one lucky fellow caught 34 perch in a couple of hours. The ice at this time, in the harbor, was about three inches thick, but after the cold spell and rain we have had this week, would not be safe to venture out on.

Northern lakes have a thin coat of ice on most of them but are not safe to venture out on as yet.

This year as a whole, has been a fairly successful one, for most hunters, fishermen and trappers.

Lake trout and speckled trout fishermen had a good long productive year with fairly good weather.

Bass fishermen, in Bay of Quinte, had a disappointing season, but elsewhere fishing for these fighters was very good.

Pickerel fishing, although not as good in some areas, was again a very successful fishing season in all areas but Bay of Quinte.

In other words, fishing has been very good just about every place but Bay of Quinte and the same can be said of the duck hunting here.

The Department of Lands and Forests and the Ontario Water Resources Commission had better take a good survey of the body of water and do something quick or the bay will be dead.

Carp, sunfishes, perch and coarse fish of all kinds are increasing by leaps and bounds.

Our marshes and waters for breeding grounds of pike and largemouth bass, are fast disappearing.

Land filling is in full swing around the bay. New parts are springing up, marshes filled in. Ducks are being forced to change their breeding grounds. Spawning beds are covered up and fish are being forced to change spawning areas.

A whole marsh just across the bay at Rossmore is going to be filled in. This marsh every year has produced broods of blacks, mallards and teal.

At Prinyers Cove another marsh is fast being filled in to make more room for cottage lots.

Our new bay shore drive from George Street to Herchimer is a welcome sight, but going to be filled and made into a park.

All this is fine, we are a growing city, but, we are fast ruining the hunting and fishing that we have for years been noted for.

Tourists do not cruise into the Quinte area to visit parks, they come here to fish and hunt and go boating and within ten years boating will be all we will have left in the bay.

Our kids will not be able to fish for or hunt anywhere near home. They will have to travel miles to have any of this kind of outdoor recreation.

Road Gallery Of Unwanted Car Drivers

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

In any lineup of unwanted drivers, a check of their wheels would be a pet technique for pinpointing accidents. It's an identification which is recognized by motorists should learn to recognize.

One such type is the "Hot Shot" who shows his hand by gunning the engine with a vicious roar and screaming away at insane speeds and taking corners and curves on two wheels.

Then, there's the "Lane Lord". He asserts his rights to most of the road by constant weaving and swerving from lane to lane. At entering roads or merging traffic points, beware of the "Highway Hog". Driving on a superhighway or parkway, he's determined to stop any car trying to merge from the service road—but always bulls his way on to the main artery when he's making the attempt.

Panic braking at lights, stop signs or in traffic slowdowns is the trademark of the "Wool Gatherer" who causes most rear end collisions — many of the chain type.

These are but a few samples of Road Gallery characters. Others will be identified in future columns. If there's one in particular you'd like to warn fellow motorists about, send along his alias and description as last as can expose him.

L.P. asks: "If just one front-wheel brake is relined, this could cause a pull to one side, couldn't it?"

Yes. And it will also promote skidding on snow-packed or icy roads.

W.G. writes: "I have a '62 stick shift model and there's a noise when the clutch pedal is pressed down. A mechanic says it needs only trouble. Can you clarify this?"

Either the clutch release or the throwout bearing is at fault due to wear, damage or inadequate lubrications.

From B.F.: "What causes my engine to vibrate at high speed? The car is a '62 sedan."

It could be due to engine miss, uneven compression, an unbalanced or sprung crankshaft, loose engine supports or loose or poorly adjusted engine mounts.

A loose backing plate or a gummy (oil or fluid-soaked) lining.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians Share Loot

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)— Two Canadians were among the prize winners in the third annual invitational golf tournament which was won here Friday by American Steve Dorsey.

Dorsey, whose two-over-par 74 drove him to the first-place $750 prize money, won the inaugural tourney in 1964.

Employment News

The employment trend during the past week shows a strong demand for the skilled trade and educated worker, with decreased employment opportunities for the unskilled and less educated persons seeking employment.

It is significant to note that during recent months, there has been a constant demand for executive and professional personnel, such as chemical and civil engineers, welfare case supervisor, accountants and technicians. Few employers are finding it easy to obtain these professional personnel. Moreover, the shortages in many fields has increased recruiting costs. If any employer has such a requirement, he should contact the Canada Manpower Centre and request assistance at no expense. The Canada Manpower Centre facilities across Canada and in the United Kingdom may help solve the problem of recruiting this type of a worker.

The Fall Now" phase of the Winter Employment Campaign has in recent weeks been active in publicizing the necessity of promoting additional work during the coming winter months. This autumn, eight winter works projects, involving nearly half a million dollars, have been undertaken in the community. These projects were planned ahead of time and are providing work for a number of men who might otherwise be unemployed. The slogan at this time of the year is — "Wise Birds Are Winter Planning Now," to provide work during the winter months.

In the female division, an efficient experienced typist is required for part-time work during the evenings. An 18 year old is filled is the position for a saleswoman having the aptitude for selling women's clothing. Here a car is necessary. The position carries both a salary and a commission. A man is needed, boring town, there is an excellent opening for's capable and responsible person as a housekeeper - companion for an elderly lady. A qualified woman is required for a part-time position as a short order cook and countergirl. Reliable persons who like children are required as maids. A number of women are required by a janitorial service for evening work. The successful applicants must provide their own transportation. Persons are wanted experienced in preparing and serving buffet dinners for New Year's Eve parties.

In the male division locally, in constant demand are young men for general work. Grade 12 is better education for career openings in the industrial, banking and retail fields. In the selling department of a business machine company, there is an attractive opening for the right person who can demonstrate his ability, aptitude and interest in this type of sales work.

In demand, also, are cost and general clerks, an estimator and a structural steel layout man. Other openings cover a electrical wireman, a machinist helper, shoe repairman, experienced Class 1 automotive repair mechanics and bricklayers. For those persons who would move elsewhere, there are numerous and varied employment opportunities.

Any person interested in any of these positions, seeking other employment or thinking of re-entering the labor market, should contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church Street, Belleville.

Curling Cues By Hec Gervais

The Situation: A common weakness among inexperienced skips is the fact they cannot see anything but shot stone. Sometimes they are trapped into playing the wrong shot.

The Strategy: You should ignore shot stone when there is a chance for a double takeout. If the rocks are too far apart for a double, you are still better to go for front stone in many instances. If shot stone is guarded, you should go for second shot, or remove the guard, as you have another rock to come.

Today's Tip: Don't put too much spin on your rock. It should make only slow to five turns in the length of the ice.

PURCHASE MEYERS

KANSAS CITY (CP)—Kansas City Athletics announced Friday they have purchased pitcher Lee Meyers from Chicago Cubs. Meyers, 20-year-old left-hander who last May married movie actress Mamie Van Doren, will be assigned to a Kansas City farm club in the Southern League.

who has four goals and 13 assists for the Rangers, took a hard body check from Detroit's Leo Boivin and it was feared he had suffered a broken breastbone. X-rays taken Friday were negative.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Questions: We are planning a month's stay in Florida at the beginning of the year.

We are retired, living on a limited income and would like to have home-keeping accommodations while there.

Please state what we should expect to pay per week. Suggest some places that would be available for low income people like ourselves. Also, I would like to know where to write for brochures on places to stay. Thank you, A. Reader.

Answer: Twenty dollars per couple per day would be about par at most hotels but there is cheaper accommodation to be found. How about an efficiency apartment? Home-cooked meals will cut down the expense. Write to Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce for a listing of moderately priced accommodation. If you wait until April, the rates should be considerably.

TRAVEL SEMINAR

How will you celebrate Canada's birthday? Visiting your community's Centennial project or Expo 67? Cities and towns across Ontario have planned well in the festivities. Your only problem is finding out what is going on, so you won't be sure where to stay. Our travel counsellors have all the information you need to make the most carefree and happiest of birthdays.

Counsellors have just returned from the Canadian Automobile Association Travel Counsellors' Seminar in Toronto. The accents were on Expo and Centennial. The week-long seminar included information on Centennial activities, Expo reservatio services, advanced travelling counselling techniques and practices.

The thirty - five counsellors from 25 offices in Ontario across Canada were taken on a tour of the Expo site, and given a thorough briefing by a representative of Expo 67. Other tours covered Montreal, the major route leading to and through the Island and the Laurentians. Counsellors heard lectures by representatives of the Canadian Government Touring Bureau, the Centennial Commission, the Montreal Municipal Touring Bureau and the Canadian Tourist Association.

CLAIMS CLAIMS

On' Jan. 1, 1967 a guest passenger in Ontario will have the right to claim damages from the driver and or owner of the car in which he is riding, if he is injured in an accident caused by the driver's gross negligence. This new right of the court action results from an amendment to the Ontario Highway Traffic Act passed at the last session of the Legislature.

At present, a non-paying passenger has no claim against the driver or owner, although a fare paying passenger does have this right.

Most automobile liability insurance possibilities now in effect include coverage against this new risk. Members, however, are advised to check their policies to make sure, and, if in doubt, call their insurance agent.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Cause for Retired Folks With Tender Hearts

By THOMAS COLLINS

You are coming up once more to Christmas . . . to the season of the tender heart. You are of the retirement age, and you feel more strongly than in your youth a want to do something meaningful for somebody.

Not to cram for your final exams. Not really. But to plow back some talents, some efforts, maybe a little money into the society that has brought you safely into your sixties.

You probably realize, with the hindsight possible to you beyond your years, that your best chance to do humanitarian deeds — and the most rewarding ones — active and important in the community — lie in what they call the service or the "do-gooder" causes. But, as a retired businessman put it this week, "It may have the savvy to live in retirement age these causes don't satisfy. If you give time and money to them you feel you are going to an 'establishment,' not to your fellow man . . ."

If this is your dilemma, and if your heart grows tender, a personnel engineer by the name of W. M. Broadman has come up with an idea that might launch you into the New Year with your banners flying.

CAN BE ORIGINAL

"The first thing I did," said Mr. Broadman, "was to understand two basic peculiarities of the retired man. One is that he gets his pension cheque and thus can afford to be different, original, even eccentric in his actions. The other is that, just maybe, in his sixties he has more sense about his fellowman than the professionals who lay out his charity guidelines . . ."

With these two points firmly in mind, Mr. Broadman began searching for a worthy cause that would be compatible with his 65-year-old intelligence. He found it in the waiting room of a local hospital.

"I had been visiting a sick friend, and passed the waiting room about 9 p.m.," he said, "it was a room of misery. The people there were not sick, even out of town, many of them from farms. They had brought a child, a father, a mother, some loved one — for a dangerous illness or for an operation that would be performed at 8 a.m. tomorrow.

"They were crowded onto what seats and chairs the hospital could afford them. They were ill at ease. All of them looked worried. They were too poor or too unfamiliar with city ways to find a pillow to lay their worries on. They just sat where they could, stared into space, and slept if they could while they waited out the night . . ."

Mr. Broadman checked with the hospital staff. He found that picture was about the same every night. Then he went to the manager of a local motel — second class but adequate. Would the manager be willing to take in — say at 11 o'clock every night when customers who were coming had come and there were still vacant rooms — a few of these pitiful people in the hospital waiting room? And would he do it for cost?

There followed a couple of weeks of discussions, with Mr. Broadman finding mutual friends to appeal to the manager's good heart. The manager decided he'd do it, 36 cents cost, which included laundry of linens, a bit of electricity, and a bit of overhead, at $5 per night for a double room. With a cot for a child.

"I just have to pay for two rooms per night for a period of three months, for just under $200," Mr. Broadman said. "I told the hospital staff to pick the two most deserving families in need that night and send them to the hotel. Then I turned the whole thing over to my pastor in order to make it a part of the church project. I wasn't really looking for personal glory . . ."

The Broadmans never paid even $100 on his commitment. The congregation became so interested in the uniqueness of the charity that it started funds to take over four rooms at the hotel on a permanent basis. With Mr. Broadman as director.

This story is not necessarily a suggestion that you go looking into hospital waiting rooms. But rather, if you have the tender heart, to go looking somewhere off the beaten welfare path, using your own imagination to find a cause and your own gumption to decide if it's worthy.

Bonus for Youngsters: The Grinch Is Coming

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Grinch is coming to television, and he may well be followed by Yertle the Turtle and The Cat in the Hat.

All of the shows are characters from the books of Dr. Seuss, the prolific, immensely successful author of stories for tots. His How the Grinch Stole Christmas will be a CBS holiday special Sunday, Dec. 18.

Dr. Seuss, a former magazine cartoonist, who discovered the gold to be mined in children's books, goes under the name of Ted Geisel in real life. During the last year he has been negotiating his literary duties to commute from his "La Jolla, Calif., home to Culver City, where Grinch was being drawn by MGM cartoonists.

"I usually average a book a year," he said, "but I dropped out this year, and my wife has been editing the book for beginning readers. I've been going up to the studio two or three times a week and also to New York to work on the lyrics of the songs with Albert Hague.

"The cartoon work has taken an immense amount of time. The film is in full animation, not the usual kind of stop-action you see on television. It took 25,000 individual drawings to create the half-hour cartoon."

Until now, Geisel has declined to release his multifarious characters to television, although he did perform on a live show for the long-ago Omnibus. Only twice before has he allowed his stories to be filmed; George Pal produced a couple in his Puppetoon process, and Warner Brothers filmed Horton Hatches the Egg.

"I've enjoyed working with MGM, and I might do more in films," he said.

But first he must get back into book production. Even though he brings forth only a thin volume, the gestation process requires the better part of a year.

Most authors think they can knock out a 40-page juvenile in a weekend," he said. "I time mine up, plotting up storyboards and working over every word. Each paragraph is comparable to the chapter of a normal book."

Increased Cheddar Exports Dim Due to Johnson's Delay

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian hopes of a larger U.S. market for cheddar cheese are dimming somewhat as President Johnson continues to withhold action on a special U.S. tariff commission report.

Democratic political losses in the farm belt in the Nov. 8 elections are regarded as a factor in the delay.

Quotas on Canadian cheddar cheese, and particularly on the Canadian specialty, aged cheddar, have been a perennial Canadian sore point. Last March Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman agreed to have still another look at the situation.

The tariff commission subsequently was asked to consider whether the cheddar quotas should be increased by as much as 3,500,000 pounds—triple the existing quota—with a separate increase of 1,225,000 pounds for aged cheddar.

This would have raised the cheddar quota for this current dairy year to 9,565,000 pounds. Canada supplies the bulk of the aged cheddar imported by the U.S.

So far, it is understood, Canada has made only informal soundings about the situation and any official communication will depend on the political climate.

Declining Birth Rate 'Worry to Quebec'

QUEBEC (CP)— French Canada survives today as a nation because of the high birth rate Quebec has maintained until recent years, says Abbe Gerard Dion of Laval University.

Abbe Dion, professor of industrial relations at Laval, says in the current issue of Perspectives Sociales—a review published under his direction—that he is worried about the future when he considers Quebec's declining birth rate, which now has dropped below Canada's national average.

"Whatever people say, numbers have a decisive importance in the survival and development of an ethnic group. Numbers alone are not enough, but without them you can do nothing.

"Right or wrong, and whether we like it or not, it is because of this high birth rate that we exist today—perhaps as individuals and without any doubt as a nation."

The Laval professor said he does not oppose birth control, but feels the government should make certain that parents have sufficient economic means to bear children, and to feed and educate them.

Map Publisher, 65, Sails Alone From England to Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Tired and shaky, Francis Chichester stepped ashore today for the first time in 107 days, ending a record-breaking 13,750-mile solo voyage from England.

"The first thing I want is sleep, lots of sleep," Chichester told reporters, adding: "The same next week after week and month after month — I never thought I'd make it."

He said he hurt his leg in a fall shortly after leaving Plymouth and ruptured an artery.

"I have completely no sense of balance in my legs. Anything I had to do on the yacht, I had to do with my arms or sitting on my bottom."

Thousands of people crowded the harbor's shores to watch his storm-battered ketch, Gypsy Moth IV, glide into port accompanied by an armada of tugs, yachts, and ships all blowing their sirens in welcome.

When the 65-year-old London map publisher left Plymouth, he aimed to reach Sydney in 100 days, the average time taken by the 19th century clippers.

But the sea did not let him. He was delayed by storms which smashed his ketch's self-steering gear and almost forced him to abandon the venture, 2,000 miles from Sydney.

Even today's sailing was not easy. For hours he battled against a strong northeast wind and fierce currents. In the last 48 hours of the journey, he covered only 70 miles.

His wife, Sheila, and his son, Giles, in Sydney to await his arrival, went aboard the Gypsy Moth to greet him.

In 1929, as soon as he learned to fly, he piloted a Gypsy Moth aircraft from England to Australia alone and followed that with a record-breaking flight from Australia to Japan.

Soon after that he crash-dived his plane into a harbor wall but survived the extensive injuries he received.

In 1960, at an age when most men would have been turning to less adventurous pursuits, he took up a new sport—sailing the Atlantic single-handed. In that year he won the first single-handed Atlantic yacht race. He has made six solo crossings in all.

After a month's rest, Chichester plans to sail back to England around the treacherous Cape Horn of South America. He hopes to complete his round-voyage in 200 days' sailing.

Gypsy Moth IV is a 54-foot ketch which weighs 15½ tons and cost £25,000 ($75,000). It carries 854 square feet of sail, compared with the three-quarters of an acre of canvas spread by the great clippers.

Mail to Go Through Despite Private Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote said Sunday night his department will seek a court injunction against picketing of post offices if pickets in Montreal make any attempt to block vehicles hired to carry the city's strike-harassed mail.

Mr. Cote, here to deal with postal paralysis resulting from a strike against Rod Service Ltd., said he expects the hiring of other trucks to carry the mail should get the mail flow back to normal.

Mr. Cote ordered the hiring program Sunday after efforts to settle the strike of 350 Rod employees failed. The men walked out Saturday night. Negotiations are expected to resume today.

Rod Service has been under contract to pick up and truck mail in Montreal. But Mr. Cote ordered the contract suspended as the strike went on.

"This is an emergency and the public is fed up with mail troubles," he said in putting out a call for other truckers to offer their vehicles for hire by the post office at the same rental paid to Rod.

"We're taking over, the mails are going through," said the postmaster-general after doing up the havoc wreaked on Christmas-time postal deliveries in this key mail-center.

Later, he reported that postal officials were receiving "hundreds and hundreds of calls" in response to the appeal for delivery vehicles.

The strikers, members of the Canadian Federation of Service Employees, want higher wages and a reduced number of working hours. Their union is affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Mr. Cote told reporters Sunday his department is not directly involved in the strike action. It was strictly a matter between a private contractor and its employees.

The delivery contract was suspended pending settlement of the labor dispute.

Mr. Cote did not participate actively in the strike negotiations after his arrival Saturday night from Ottawa.

The union's original demands involved a 21-cent increase in the drivers' hourly wage rate, from what has been $1.97.

Also demanded as part of a two-year contract was a reduction in the work week to 40 hours from 60.

The company had offered a 63-cent increase in the hourly wage rate and a gradual reduction in the work week as part of a three-year pact.

Cuban Refugees Report 45,000 Labor in Concentration Camps

They say that more than 30 have been established and more are being built.

A consensus of accounts by the exiles, who fly here at the rate of 200 a day five days a week, place the number in each camp at 300 to 1,500. That would indicate between 15,000 and 45,000 Cubans are behind barbed wire.

The camps, officially called military units in aid production, are No. 1 topic of conversation with every new group of refugees.

The new emigres report that among those sent to the camps are unemployed persons, including those dismissed from jobs because they applied to leave by airlift for the United States. In addition, said Francisco Ortega Velarde, a recent airlift arrival, "anyone suspected of harboring the slightest anti-Castro feeling is subject to shipment to the camps without the semblance of a trial."

A 19-year-old youth, Gerardo Zequeiro, who said he escaped from a camp installation, described life there:

"The two months I spent there were the worst of my life. We were awakened at 4:30 in the morning, and at five we were on our way, heavily guarded, by truck to work in the fields. At 11, they gave us lunch consisting of sancocho (vegetable soup) and boiled peas. After working until six, we got another sancocho. Then, after receiving Communist indoctrination, we went to our bunks."

Eisenhower Undergoes Gall Bladder Removal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former president Dwight D. Eisenhower's condition was reported "good" by Walter Reed Army Hospital today following removal of his gall bladder.

The report on Eisenhower's condition was made to reporters at 11 a.m. EST, about an hour after the surgery had been completed.

The hospital said further details would be forthcoming soon on the general's condition.

Barring any unexpected complications the retired general apparently has weathered still another major physical crisis in a medical-surgical history that has included two major heart attacks; a minor cerebral stroke, and abdominal surgery conducted 10 years ago.

Maj. James Sonneborn of the hospital's public information staff had said earlier:

"The operation has been completed and Gen. Eisenhower was back in his room at ward 8 of the hospital at 10:05 a.m. EST. Further information will be forthcoming momentarily."

There was no immediate word on how long the surgery itself was to have lasted. But it had previously been reported that it began promptly at 8 a.m.

A team of surgeons headed by Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the army's surgeon - general, was at the operating table.

Target for the surgery was the pear-shaped gall bladder which Eisenhower's doctors have said contained "multiple" gall stones —or, as the general himself quipped before the operation, "many, many rocks."

It was Eisenhower's fifth stay in hospital for major illness—including two heart attacks—in 11 years.

Eisenhower, 76, said last Thursday that doctors didn't want the faulty gall bladder in his body when he already has a bad heart.

Rhodesia Denies Tale Smith May Be Ousted

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—The Rhodesian diplomatic mission here has categorically denied a Johannesburg Sunday newspaper report that Ian Smith, Rhodesian prime minister, might resign because of differences with his cabinet over his country's independence issue.

The unsourced report from Salisbury was published by the pro-government Afrikaans newspaper Die Beeld.

It said Smith had not wanted to reject a working document drawn up between himself and British Prime Minister Wilson on the cruiser Tiger, and that he might be succeeded by Internal Affairs Minister William Harper.

The spokesman at the Rhodesian mission said in a statement issued Sunday night there was no foundation to the report.

"I strongly deny that there was any division or difference of opinion in the cabinet.

"I also strongly deny that there is any question of the prime minister wanting to resign or being asked to resign," Mr. Smith has the full confidence of the cabinet and is in complete control."

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesian leaders today were reliably reported to be annoyed over a report that Premier Ian Smith was likely to be ousted by hard-line right-wing members of his cabinet.

Government officials also today emphatically denied weekend reports that a split in the cabinet might lead to Smith's resignation as prime minister.

One report, in a South African newspaper, said Smith was likely to be succeeded by Internal Affairs Minister William Harper, a hard - line right-winger.

African Lands to Seek Broader Trade Boycott

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—African members of the UN Security Council plan to propose today that it order an oil embargo and a broadened trade boycott against Rhodesia's white-minority government.

Mali, Nigeria and Uganda are working to get in the formal proposal before the council continues its Rhodesian debate this afternoon.

The Africans drew up amendments to a pending British resolution calling for a mandatory boycott of 12 Rhodesian exports and a mandatory embargo on military supplies for Rhodesia.

Self-scrutiny Not Treason Cardinal Cushing Declares

BOSTON (AP) — Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston, has urged Americans to "realize that self-scrutiny is not treason, self-examination is not disloyalty."

"Patriotism is not a cloak for the blankest and blind acceptance of all decisions made by the United States," the cardinal said Sunday in an Advent pastoral letter to the Boston archdiocese.

"This is not patriotism," he warned. "It can be, instead, the road to national disintegration.

"All must admit . . . that critical thinkers and thinking critics constitute the lifeblood of society."

Cardinal Cushing said U.S. response to communism must never be "only a policy of sterile anti-communism, or one characterized by witch-hunts . . ."

His letter also was critical of Catholic "apathy and fear of involvement, the easy characteristics of a highly organized religious structure which is too often comfortable, self - contained and generally affluent."

He criticized the war on poverty, declaring the size of the program was "mere tokenism."

He urged all Christians to help the American Negro in his civil rights struggle.

"The fundamental problem here," he said, "is the refusal on the part of many to accept the Negro as a person, as a unique individual who has a right to full freedom of movement, to full economic, a right simply to be a member of society with no special privileges and no special handicaps."

For Reds, Peace Is Out of This World

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

What the Soviet Union says it is willing to do about outer space somehow fails to square with what Moscow repeatedly says it intends to do on earth.

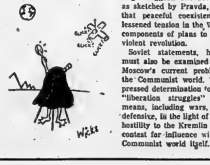
Moscow has agreed on terms of a treaty barring mass-destruction weapons from outer space, but Soviet propaganda pursues the theme of "liberation struggles," aimed at world domination by the "working class," by which the Communists mean themselves.

Even as the space agreement was being hammered out, Pravda was carrying instructive articles for Communists, harking back to the "historic significance" of the 1957 and 1960 Moscow declarations.

Those two world Communist conferences laid down a blueprint for Communist expansion by use of the "liberation struggle" device.

Last week, Pravda's editorial noted that the Soviet line was aimed at "ensuring a peaceful international atmosphere."

This, it said, would increase the opportunities for the "victorious development of the class struggle by the proletariat and the struggle of oppressed peoples for their social and national liberation in any form, including through wars of liberation."



If that is the real aim, then the agreement on the use of outer space has less meaning than elation from Washington might suggest. The treaty line, as sketched by Pravda, implies that peaceful coexistence and lessened tension in the West are components of plans to quicken violent revolution.

Soviet statements, however, must also be examined against Moscow's current problems in the Communist world. The expressed determination to pursue "liberation struggles" by all means, including wars, can be defensive, in the light of Chinese hostility to the Kremlin and the contest for influence within the Communist world itself.

Shriners Entertain Children

Santa paid an early visit to Belleville Sunday afternoon when he attended the annual Shrine Christmas Party for crippled and retarded children.

The jolly old fellow brought gifts for all the boys and girls and capped off the gala affair with the singing of Jingle Bells.

About 70 children from the Belleville district attended the party. Besides the gifts from Santa, they were treated to ice cream, cakes and candies.

CJBQ's Dave Charles acted as master of ceremonies. He was given a big assist by Bozo the Clown, who stole the show until Santa arrived and upstaged him.

While waiting for Santa, the children were entertained by Doug Aselstine and his pantomime act; Dennis Ruttan, playing accordion solos; the Quinte Secondary School Majorettes; and Walter Aselstine's baby doll act.

Chiropractor Says Doctors Blocking Medicare Scope

TRENTON — A leading chiropractor claimed here that the Canadian Medical Association is trying to keep all professions but doctors from practising under medicare.

Donald C. Sutherland, executive secretary of the Canadian Chiropractic Association levelled the charge in an interview Saturday.

But, he said, "in view of the federal government's decision Dec. 6 to include chiropractic benefits in medicare, it is evident that medicine is fighting a losing battle."

Last week the federal government broadened the scope of its forthcoming medicare plan to include — if any province requires them — services of dentists, chiropractors, optometrists, osteopaths and naturopaths.

In Toronto Friday the CMA indicated provincial medical associations will oppose such broadening of the medical care plan. The bill, if passed, is effective Jan. 1, 1968.

Mr. Sutherland earlier spoke at a Kingston meeting of the Quinte Chiropractic Council, which draws a membership from Cobourg to Kingston.

In the interview here, before returning to Toronto, Mr. Sutherland said the sincerity of the CMA's position "is open to question, when they attempt to exclude the qualified licensed chiropractor with four years of training — while they hold crash programs over a weekend to train physicians in chiropractic manipulation."

OPP Moving To New Home

PICTON (STAFF) — This is a red letter day for the local detachment of the O.P.P. which is moving into its new modern quarters just west of the town limits on highway 33. For years the detachment has occupied cramped space in the County Buildings on Main St. and the new facilities will allow the force to function more efficiently. The new building, a one - storey bungalow style structure, is being leased from Picton merchant Sam Gentile, who has had the building erected in record time. Official opening of the building is planned in the near future.

Pupils Leave Schools Quickly

PICTON (Staff) — Over the years children have not changed much — so far as school is concerned anyway. They can always leave a building faster than they can enter. Of the three public schools in Picton, the largest Queen Elizabeth, was vacated in fire drill in one minute and one second.

The figures came to light at last week's school board meeting when Fire Chief Duane Foshay gave his report on safety conditions at Picton's Public Schools. Queen Elizabeth School is in good shape, with York Street School having a not so high fire safety standing but emptying its total of 30 students in only 60 seconds. Of the three, Mary Street School was in the worst condition, from the point of fire safety, although evacuation time was good, it took one minute and thirty seconds for the student population of over 300 to get out.

Opening of Harmony's New Wing Ends One-room Schools in Thurlow

Thurlow township bade goodbye to its one room schools Saturday afternoon with the official opening of the new wing of the Harmony Public School.

The auditorium of the 12 - room school was crowded almost to capacity for the opening which saw G. W. C. Nelson of Cobourg, former inspector in Centre Hastings as the guest speaker.

Mr. Nelson, who played a part in planning for the first phases of the Harmony school construction, recalled earlier days in education and looking into the future, forecast possible education trends of tomorrow.

The first three rooms of the Harmony school were constructed in 1960, another two rooms were added two years ago, and the "new" wing of seven rooms and auditorium was completed in September of this year.

Harmony school is one of the five public schools in the Bay of Quinte district which has the rotary class system of the pupils changing classes instead of the teachers.

The new addition, constructed by Miron-Wiggers of Trenton, cost $196,000.

With the opening of the new wing, all self-contained schools in the township were closed. There are now only five schools in Thurlow, the new Harmony school; Cannifton, Douglas Atkins, and three-room schools at Foxboro and Point Anne.

School board chairman Lorne Jarrell presided over Saturday's opening ceremonies which included greetings from Clarke T. Bollins, MPP, Thurlow Reeve and county warden Clayton Hall, and Lee Grills, M.P.

Keys for the new school were presented by architects Watson and Wiegand while a plaque was presented by the contractors. R. A. Dunsmore, school inspector, introduced the guest speaker. Appreciation was expressed by board vice-chairman Earl Ross, Floyd E. Jenkin is principal of the new school.

Two Veterans Start Centre For Peace

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Lundberg of Belleville, chairman of the Canadian Council of the World Veterans Federation, said Saturday that the Paris headquarters of the federation has announced the establishment of an international centre on world peace-keeping operations.

Addressing a meeting of the Canadian council, Mr. Lundberg said the centre will assemble the existing documentation on peace-keeping operations. It will promote co-operation between groups engaged in research on peace-keeping, and study how solutions might be obtained.

The world federation, which has more than 20,000,000 members in 52 countries, has announced that the French government will be responsible for the maintenance of the Polish cemetery at Bretteville-sur-Laize, The government of Poland has refused to maintain the cemetery, Mr. Lundberg said.

Fleming and Mrs. Deviseer's husband Christian were uninjured.

Picton Gain by Court Ruling Means Tax Boost for Others

PICTON (STAFF) — One of the major items on the agenda for Prince Edward County Council tonight, will be the review of last week's special county court session when Judge Wilfred Lane allowed an appeal by the Town of Picton against a county equalized assessment report.

The results of the decision in Picton's favor, according to Prince Edward assessment commissioner Sidney Manley, will mean Picton's share of the county assessment for next year's taxes will be two or three per cent lower than this year's. The loss in taxes must be covered somehow and will be reflected in increases in other municipalities in the county.

Picton asked the court to rule that the town's county assessment proportion be returned to the county assessment commissioner's original report. His honor ruled that the town's share would be based entirely on the present assessment rolls as they have been finally revised by the court of revision. One of the town officials said the decision could mean a saving of up to 4 mills in Picton's 1967 tax rate.

Reeve Bernard Hepburn and Deputy - Reeve Donald Thompson said they are very pleased with the decision. But both hinted they will have to wait for the reaction of county council tonight.

Quinte Conservatives Face Moment of Decision Tonight

By CLAIRE HOY
Staff Reporter

A strong three-way race for leadership of the Quinte Conservatives was assured today when Belleville businessman Macdonald (Mac) Smith announced he will definitely be a candidate.

Mr. Smith joins Belleville mayor Jack Ellis and Dr. Richard Potter, president of the now-defunct West Hastings PC Association, in contesting the nomination tonight in Trenton at the high school.

The nomination meeting became necessary when long-time member Elmer Sandercock, deputy speaker of the Ontario legislature and MPP for Hastings West since 1943, announced his retirement from politics.

Ted Parker, president of the riding's Conservative Association announced today Hon. William Davis, Ontario minister of education, will be guest speaker.

Mr. Sandercock held the riding leadership uncontested since 1948.

The auditorium seats about 700 people and at least 330 seats will be held for local party delegates. Mr. Parker said that calls were coming into his office early last week from people concerned about seating accommodation, an indication of the interest being shown in the event.

Mr. Parker said today delegates are asked to register and pick up their ballots between 7 and 8 p.m. and be in their seats by 8 p.m.

Dr. Potter was first to announce he would stand as a candidate. He told The Intelligencer soon after Mr. Sandercock's retirement was made public he was "definitely prepared to accept the nomination after considering it for more than a year."

He said many factors, including his family and his practice, had to be considered but he had arranged for a partner to take over his medical responsibilities as required.

Mayor Ellis said from city hall: "I've definitely got my hat aiderwilon," he said, "I've definitely decided to let my name stand for nomination."

Mr. Parker announced he would be surprised if anyone is nominated from Trenton in the ring. I'm going to make a strong attempt to gain the nomination."

He said it was the logical next step after 10 years municipal experience.

Mr. Smith had previously declined to affirm he would contest the nomination until noon today when he told The Intelligencer he definitely is a candidate.

Fireplace Fire Backfires

Lighting a fireplace because of a power blackout could have resulted in serious consequences for a Cloverleaf Drive family Friday.

A fire apparently originated in the basement recreation room of the Gaius Donaldson residence when the family fireplace was ignited after a power failure.

Chief Ted Foote of the city fire department said the fire had been extinguished when firemen arrived on the scene, and that minor smoke and water damage had been caused.

Christmas Lights on Tonight

TRENTON — Downtown Trenton today will witness the official turning on of the Christmas lights at 5:30 p.m. The members of the Rotary Club plan to attend the event in a body before their regular Monday night meeting in the Gilbert Hotel.

Lights will be switched on in sequence at the Chamber of Commerce office (by chamber president, Harold Clark); the Santa Shop, (by John Saylor, president of the Retail Merchants' committee); the Christmas tree in front of the old post office (by Charles Hilton, PUC chairman) and the overhead lights and Centennial modules by Robert Carleton, (chairman of the centennial planning committee).

Santa's sleigh has been put in front of the old federal building and citizens have been asked to place canned goods here, for needy families at Christmas. This project is sponsored by the Brownies and Guides of East Trenton.

Just A 'Walkin' in the Rain

Despite Drizzling Rain 5,000 See Trenton Parade

TRENTON — Santa Claus wouldn't have received a more enthusiastic welcome had there been lots of snow and sunny skies for his annual visit here on Saturday.

A fine drizzle which turned into a moderate downpour by the time the last float reached the four corners downtown failed to dampen the spirits of 5,000 people who lined the streets for the colorful parade.

It was the first time the event had been scheduled for an afternoon showing and from comments heard afterwards, everyone was pleased the management decided to make the change.

When the rain was really pelting down in the morning, Jack Wilson, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce received several hundred enquiries from callers interested to learn whether the parade was going to be cancelled.

Mayor R. James MacDonald who rode in the lead car with MP Lee Grills and MPP Elmer Sandercock was also kept busy most of the morning giving out meteorological information.

As it turned out either the duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, timed his prediction late or "the parade started early" as one of the judges put it, when the rain stopped a half hour after the various entries and crowd dispersed.

Judged the best entries in the parade according to categories: majorettes — Gail Chapman, Dorothy Dickey and Lynn Bailey; bands — 6 RD, Trenton Citizens Band and Quinte Highland Pipe Band; floats: Trenton Public Utilities — Three Little Pigs — Trenton Kiwanis Club — Toyland Choo Choo Train, and Trenton Centennial Queen — Susan Brown. Honors to mention went to Brenda Pearsall (majorettes), Don Evans' Five Piece Band and the Lunenburg Saints float on a religious theme.

The judges were Group Captain E. P. Bridgland, Wing Commander T. R. N. Duff and Douglas Whitlow. They gave special mention to parade marshal Jack Radcliffe for keeping the long procession moving in spite of the difficulties posed by the weather.

Elsewhere in the Quinte district, Santa braved the fall-out in Tweed on Saturday and Tweed to prove beyond doubt he was no wet blanket at his job of spreading Christmas joy.

Councils to Be Briefed

Hospital Board to Explain Stand

Belleville General Hospital's board of governors still feels the Ontario Hospital Service Commission report on hospital administration should not be made public in detail.

The stand is confirmed by the OHSC and Ontario Health Minister Matthew B. Dymond, board chairman A. McLean Haig reiterated today.

The reaffirmation came as the board prepares to discuss the report with both Belleville city and Hastings County councils at a closed meeting tonight.

Mr. Haig said the OHSC had informed him the situation had been discussed with the minister of health.

"We prefer it not be publicized and they approve of what we are trying to do now," said Mr. Haig, who as chairman, has acted as board spokesman on the issue.

Tonight's meeting, he said, would give both councils "a synopsis" of the report.

However, he added, "if the two councils are not satisfied then I suppose the board will have to take another look at it."

Mr. Haig said the OHSC was not anxious to perpetuate the situation since it was the first time the commission had ever directly injected itself into the administration of a hospital in the province.

The OHSC entered the dispute over hospital administration when BGH nurses formed an association and called for redress of alleged grievances.

The report of a four-man team was followed by appointment of a temporary administrator and director of nursing for a "caretaking" period of adjustment in hospital affairs.

Tonight's meeting is scheduled for 6 p.m.

The time element makes it possible for members of both councils to attend the Conservative Quinte riding nomination convention at Trenton at 8 p.m.

Among them will be Mayor Jack Ellis who already has signified his intentions of bidding for nomination as party candidate to contest the next provincial election in the riding.

Meantime, Alderman Jack Allin who, Nov. 24 called for the complete report to be aired before city council, today repeated his stand.

Ald. Allin said he would not be satisfied unless "the whole report is read."

Any subsequent action would hinge on tonight's meeting, he indicated.

"I'm going to wait until I hear what they say," he added.

Workworth Walkout Ends Today

WARKWORTH (Special) — Workers returned to the job at the nearly - completed federal penitentiary project near here today — pending a grievance meeting with company and union officials.

So far no comment has been made on the cause of the stoppage — which saw 30 men hold off sick Thursday and walk off the $8 million project 25 miles northwest of Belleville.

He said the men returned to work at 8 a.m. today and a meeting was scheduled two hours later to discuss the situation with the men.

All trades working at the site were affected although, claimed Mr. Atherton, this did "not necessarily" mean there was a complete work stoppage.

One report said the men's grievances were tied to the scheduling of the work and procedures.

Union officials convinced the men to return on the job to day pending discussions with the contractors.

At first, the men apparently wanted to talk with the company themselves. However, Mitchell refused to deal directly with the workers and asked for the union officials.

Mr. Atherton indicated there would be no comment on the situation "until the meeting is called."

"Sandy" Sandercock

One of the true measures of a man, in or out of politics, is that he does his job the best he knows how — without fanfare, and with no other thought than that he is accomplishing something of value for his fellow man.

Such a man is Elmer "Sandy" Sandercock, who is retiring from politics after nearly 20 years as a member of the Ontario legislature. Only three others have served as long at Queen's Park.

However, the Conservative member for Hastings West did allow himself some well-deserved self-recognition (albeit with a touch of jest) when he made a testimonial dinner in Belleville he said: "If I had known I was such a good man, I would never have quit."

Also typical of Mr. Sandercock's self-effacing ways was his remark that he had heard a lot about politicians over the years but had never learned to be one himself.

"When election time rolled around I would drive up and down the road but would become so busy visiting that I would forget all about politics."

Of course Mr. Sandercock learned more than he would give himself credit for. More particularly he learned about people. And behind it all was the ideal of service. No one knows this as well as Premier Robarts, and it was the Ontario leader who recalled the highlights of the Hastings West member's career.

There was, for instance, his service on special and select committees where much of the spade work of politics is performed, and his practical concern for the elderly members of the riding.

This latter knowledge stemmed from Mr. Sandercock's special knowledge in this field. When he first entered the legislature he was Superintendent of Hastings County Home. The succeeding years were fruitful ones, and as the Premier noted, the people of Ontario would never be able to repay Sandy Sandercock for his part in developing the Homes for the Aged program.'

But social service was not Mr. Sandercock's only interest in politics or in private life. Livestock and farming and the welfare of the deaf have also been his concern, while the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan also claimed his attention.

At 72 Mr. Sandercock has earned his retirement, although it is good to know, of course, that he continues as a member and as Deputy Speaker until the next provincial election. When he finally steps down his counsel and personal worth will be missed in the Legislature, as the presence of Mr. Roberts and many others of varying political opinion testified last week.

This is a legacy that will not easily be forgotten, and it only remains for this newspaper to join with his many friends in wishing Sandy Sandercock and his wife, Ethel, many more years of happiness.

Pacific Paradise

Though it has detractors among those who think that it is unsuitable fare for adults, that its visual delights undermine their morals if not their morale, the December issue of you-know-what has a pictorial section on the women of Tahiti which can scarcely fail to win due praise.

For anyone who has been to this exotic hub of French Polynesia the pictures revive memories not only of its handsome citizens but also its dramatic landscapes. To view Tahiti as the ship approaches in the early dawn is to see one of the most majestic sights of this universe.

And Moorea — its sister island — is even more stirring, for in its contours are the tiered splendors of some early volcanic cataclysm. More recently it came to be the Bali Ha'i of South Pacific.

In Papeete (Pa-pay-eh-tay), Tahiti's pint-sized capital, people stir early in the day, go to work amid a riot of auto and motor-scooter traffic, then in the afternoon retire to the shade of the banyan at Siesta.

Chang Hsueh - liang, the "young marshal," refused to release Chiang until he agreed to end the civil war against the Communists and fight with them against the Japanese, who had occupied much of the north of China unopposed. The Simple Life

What does a man need really need? A few pounds of food each day, heat and shelter, all fed to him by others — and some form of working activity that will yield a sense of accomplishment. That's all as the material sense. And we know it. But we are brainwashed by our economic system until we end up in a tomb beneath a pyramid of lime payments, mortgages, presentation gadgetry, playthings that divert our attention . . . The years thunder by, before we know it the hero is seated — Hollywood actor Sterling Hayden in his book "Wanderer."

Baby Is Smart But His Crib Scares Him

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 7-month-old son seems very smart but cannot sit up by himself. He seems to be afraid he will fall, because he stiffens every time I sit him up alone.

Is there some way I can give him courage in himself? Or some way to help his back become stronger?—MRS. P. B.

Age varies in all the things infants learn, including sitting up. Some are early, some late. Seven months is about average for a baby to sit alone — and tend to lean forward.

Therefore you are rushing things. Wait a bit. The fact that he stiffens does not mean he is afraid. That is just your interpretation. He'll try to sit up by himself when he is ready.

Don't force him. Merely see that whatever he is sitting on is comfortable and that he is strapped so he cannot fall out.

Chances are that he is trying, or soon will be trying to sit up in his crib, and he won't hurt himself if he falls over.

Give him more time. Don't make a fuss about it. His back muscles will take care of themselves when they are ready to do so.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes emphysema? Does it weaken the lungs? What can be done for it?—D.D.

No exact cause of emphysema has been identified but in general it is safe to say that various factors combine to cause it—smoking and other irritants which accumulate and strain the lungs, and the like.

Weaken may not be the right word but it certainly impairs lung function. The tiny air sacs gradually break down and the lungs no longer are able to absorb oxygen, just as a worn-out sponge, with the little cells torn, will not hold as much water.

Why don't you read my booklet, "How to Control Emphysema", which I wrote to answer just the kind of questions you ask? To receive a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Chicago-Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have recently had a bladder infection three times. My doctor said if I have it again he will send me to a specialist.

Please tell me the cause of this and why it occurs so often. I am 28 and the mother of one child.—Mrs. B.

Infection merely means that germs have settled in an area and are multiplying.

Bladder, kidney and related infections are particularly stubborn because germs, once they get there, find an environment in which they multiply readily. Once an infected finger, you can apply an antiseptic of such strength as may be needed. With internal infections, you cannot attack with such directness.

The probability is that you have not had three infections; instead it is a chronic thing. You get it partly under control but not totally subdued — so in time it flares up again.

Your doctor is wise to refer you to a specialist who often can correct some basic underlying fault which has been contributing to your trouble.

Note to Dr. Molner: Defective vascular disease means that blood vessels (the vascular system) are at one or more places occluded, or closed off or clogged.

Women have denied for years that they choose clothes with an eye to man appeal. I think — and I am sure all switched on girls will agree with me — that sex appeal has absolutely Number One priority. Personality counts later. So, of course does an intelligent brain. — British designer Mary Quant.

Strictly Personal

Mischief or Delinquency

By Sidney J. Harris

Around Hallowe'en we were telling the children at dinner one night about some of the pranks we used to play as children. They were fascinated at our daring and our imagination in those long-lost days.

"We couldn't do any of those now," said my oldest boy. "On the first place, we don't have the opportunities. And in the second place, if we tried them, we'd be booked as juvenile delinquents."

That is perfectly true. The opportunities for mischief have shrunk narrowly in the modern world, and much of it is no longer considered mischief, but delinquency. This, I am convinced, is a great loss to children.

Once a year, we could get rid of our rebellious and resentful feelings toward the adult world, and this annual discharge of hostility made us feel better, gave us a curious sense of self-respect and self-assertion. It relieved away a lot of "anti-adult" sentiment that had built up during the rest of the year.

What can children do these days, particularly in our dense and mechanized society? Some of my son's friends wanted to go around sticking pennies in nickel parking-meters to jam them, but this is a city violation and would certainly bring them to the police station, if caught. So do I doubt a good deal of what is called "juvenile delinquency" these days has some pathological roots, but not all of it. There no longer seems to be a dividing-line between what is mischief and what is nastily destructive. It used to be clear to us exactly what the limits were: today there is nothing but confusion and prohibition.

Moreover, the idea of "juvenile delinquency" was scarcely recognized a generation ago. Some kids got into trouble more than others, and if they got into trouble often enough, they were severely treated, but the category "juvenile deliquent" was as foreign to us as the modern category "teen-ager."

You were a child, and you remained a child until you crossed the threshold of adulthood; there was no officially recognized in-between period, where you stood with one foot uneasily placed in each world. And because you were considered a child — and so considered yourself — the mischief you played was not mistaken for delinquency.

Our urbanized technological society robs children of their youth too soon; they grow too fast out of childish pleasures, and stand cramping at the bit, waiting to begin adult pleasures. In this social and psychological limbo, it is little wonder that what used to be high-spirited mischief turns rancid and degenerates into ill-spirited aggression.

The Wild West by Train

By Margaret Cheney in the Christian Science Monitor

To a retired New England school teacher who had never ventured west of the Hudson a cross-country train ride to the Southwest sounded like a thrilling vacation — and it was.

We looked at great stretches of America through a clean window, enjoying green seas of wheat by day and jewel-like cities by night. The monotony, rhythm of the wheels, the pastoral sameness of the landscape induced a feeling of comfortable relaxation.

Then pretzel We were surrounded by red, wind-carved buttes, jagged canyons, banquoise mesas. The brazen grandeur was relieved by sweeps of dust-green sage, and the splash of greenery at stations in this was the wild, wild West.

During our vacation we spent a weekend in old-new Santa Fe, explored Colorado's breathless Rocky Moutain drives with their snowbank mining towns and Red Rocks Amphitheatre.

My friend had lived on the Navajo Reservation and had planned this vacation as a visit to former students and fellow-workers.

We stayed 10 days at Ganado Mission in Arizona, taking access drives, shopping at trading posts, and snapping pictures of hogans planned with wisps of smoke rising from tranquil pinon smoke.

We ate with Mission High School students in their squeaky-clean dining room. We visited their modern dormitories and worshipped with them Sunday morning.

One day a well-educated Navajo, whose parents were one of the seven judges of the Tribal Council, drove us to Window Rock, their seat of government.

That evening we insisted them to be our guests at supper. To our surprise we found ourselves hosts to their entire family — a total of seventeen at once of the eldest girl, the pastoral sameness of the landscape induced a feeling of comfortable relaxation.

Vancouver's Skid Road

Vancouver Sun

It is always unpleasant to be reminded of a problem everyone would sooner ignore, but the reminder has been given by a team of city doctors dissatisfied with the treatment of drunks at the city jail.

Vancouver police make about 22,500 arrests for drunkenness each year. Half the total involves a repeating hard core of some 2,700 cases. At present two-thirds of the city jail inmates are drunks.

One doctor on the team termed the brimming drunk tank appalling. His conclusion was that police should not be handling drunks, who suffer from a disease rather than a crime. The same conclusion was reached by medical and social agencies who reported in a recent brief to Victoria's police commission. Said the Vancouver report: "Drunks are sick and they should receive treatment, not fines."

Why can't Vancouver shall they receive such treatment?

A special report presented to city Council yesterday declared the lack of facilities but the Salvation Army's Harbor Light which emphasized community treatment centres and hostels, particularly on Skid Road.

Council has not yet responded with action, merely stalled on plans for a hostel and having refused assistance to a private establishment as a pilot scheme on Skid Road.

The provincial government, which derives an annual profit of more than $41 million from the sale of liquor, can boast of little more accomplishment. Although the legislature last spring approved a measure allowing magistrates to remand to treatment rather than jail, it has yet to be proclaimed law and the cabinet has not said time the scant facilities at Riverview Hospital have been increased to cope with the added failure to recruit staff.

Meanwhile Vancouver has been warned that its Skid Road will "overflow" this winter. Unfortunately when the drunk tank will overflow, too, among other serious repercussions. Both city and provincial governments have received copious advice on problems of alcoholism. It is time they took it.

A Suspicious Lot !

Canadian women are a funny lot. . . They have this suspicion of men which you don't find in European countries. The Continental woman seems to be scared at, admired, complimented in so many words, pinched if necessary. The Canadian woman, if you give her a direct compliment — just to say how nice she looks — may look as likely to get not exactly a crack across the face but a very suspicious reaction. This is the fault of Canadian men, of course, who spend three, months wooing their wife even with flowers and things like that, and then once woo seem never to bother about her again in terms of raising her morale or paying her compliments or being the kind of lover they were before they were married. — Author Nicholas Mansarrat in an interview with Eileen Turcotte of Maclean's.

Unordered Merchandise

Toronto Telegram

With Christmas only three weeks away, many Canadian homes have already become — and will soon be — the targets for what is come to be known as the unordered/merchandise racket.

It operates this way:

The postman delivers to your home, or perhaps your office, a parcel or package which was not ordered by you, but for which you will be expected to send a remittance. One of the favorite gimmicks is a box of Christmas cards, which contains a bill for $2, but which can actually be purchased in most gift stores for 75 cents or $1.

The housewife who receives the package is often placed in the embarrassing position because the merchandise can possibly comes from some charitable organization of whose antecedents she is unaware. Thus the victim is left with the feeling that if she fails to make the suggested remittance, she is depriving some worthy organization of needed support.

The legal position is that a householder isn't...required to acknowledge the receipt of the parcel, nor for the merchandise unless it is used, or kept beyond a reasonable length of time.

In some cases unordered merchandise promotions are just a subtle racket, but more often they are a calculated swindle. The housewife who finds herself saddled with such packages need feel no compunction over returning them without the suggested remittance that is supposedly to go to some charity or sympathy appeal.

In many cases, charity receives only a small percentage of the money sent in.

It should be pointed out that there are certain worthy organizations which send out decorative seals or similar items. Their bona fides have been established over the years, and donations sent to them are for worthy causes.

But it is the unknown distributor that a householder should view with suspicion.

Heretical View Of Tourism

Christian Science Monitor

Tourists are a mixed blessing. As wave upon wave of tourists hit the beaches, the natives instinctively brace themselves. They feel as the Romans must have felt when the barbarians repeatedly swept down from the north. The tourist spoils the land. His very presence breaks the spell, and the charm is lost.

What stirs us to such profound and unwonted wrath was a speech given in Boston to a conference on the development and growth of tourism. Dr. Walter Muir Whitehill, director of the venerable Boston Athenaeum, said that unspoilable. He suggested to his appropriately named audience of promoters of tourism that Massachusetts should discourage tourists.

The Commonwealth's deputy director of education found Dr. Whitehill's remarks "heretical." Said he: "Everybody benefits from the tourist. He is a very important buck. His money he spends is velved. The only cost, maybe, is an extra traffic cop." While the state official may have missed the entire point implication of tourism, he obviously grasped its pragmatic import.

Along with the Swiss, we have a certain sympathy for Dr. Whitehill's cry of protest. Yet, since we are here, we can't bring ourselves to part with the tourist. It is not only a matter of business to part with his cash. We are convinced that, for the most part, he somehow manages to learn something from the experience which he could not learn at home. We believe the benevolence to the natives is a price worth paying. .

Owners-or Governments-Reduce Efficiency When They Try to Run Industrial Giants

LONDON (AP) — Economist John Kenneth Galbraith asserted Sunday night that owners of modern industrial giants, whether shareholders or the state, should beware of trying to run the business.

Intervention by owners said Galbraith of Harvard University, tends to reduce a corporation's efficiency. This, he said, is equally true of owners or shareholders in capitalist systems and governments or political parties under socialism.

Galbraith, a native of Iona Station, Ont., was delivering the fourth of five talks in the BBC's annual series of Reith lectures.

His argument was that in the highly - developed technically-specialized world of today, the giant industrial corporations rely for all decisions of their planning on skilled group leadership. Outside interference, he said, is in many cases made in ignorance of the highly-complicated processes which owners or politicians want to control.

"In the non-socialist economies, as the firm develops, it becomes necessary to exclude misinformed authority," said Galbraith.

"This, we have seen, includes the owners. In the late 1920s and the 1930s and on into the war years, the late Henry Ford insisted on exercising his authority as the sole owner of the Ford company. It was disastrous. The firm very nearly failed.

"In the same period, Montgomery Ward, the great American merchandising house . . . suffered only a little less severely from the similar authority of its chairman, Sewell Avery.

"And creditors of TWA (Transworld Airlines) . . . once made it a condition of their loans that Howard Hughes, the owner, not exercise the prerogatives of ownership.

"Ford, Avery and Hughes were not stupid men; it was rather that all of these firms had reached the technical size and complexity where group decision-making had to be protected from such interference. . . ."

In a socialist economy, Galbraith said, socialist control tends to keep prices lower and wages higher than they should be and thus eliminates the net earnings to which a modern corporation is aiming.

Japanese Won't Cut Zinc Output

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese zinc smelters have no intention at present either to curb their zinc production or to reduce the volume of their zinc exports, the Mitsui Metal and Mining Co. said today.

The company said Canadian, British, West German and Australian zinc smelters have unofficially asked Japanese smelters for co-operation in their reduction programs.

Major zinc smelters of these countries are generally carrying out about 10-per-cent reductions in zinc production to maintain their producers' price of zinc at £102 ($306) a ton, the company said.

At present, only Japanese and American zinc smelters are operating at full capacity.

Artificial Evergreens Booming

NEW YORK (AP)—A spokesman for a leading U.S. manufacturer of artificial Christmas trees says more fake trees must be sold than the real thing in 10 years' time.

This season artificial trees abound in U.S. stores. They include fake Scotch pine, blue spruces, hemlock, cedars and balsam, in a choice of green, snow-tipped or white.

About $40,000,000 worth of artificial Christmas trees were sold last season, Krain estimates the total will be up 15 per cent this year.

"In about 10 years, there may be more artificial trees than live ones," Krain said. "I believe the quality of the artificial trees and their aesthetic realism are getting to the point where more people have accepted them."

The fake trees cost from $2.50 to $30, generally $15 and up for the most popular seven - foot models.

Manufacturers of artificial trees claim three advantages for them: They are flameproof, their needles don't fall off and they can be kept year after year.

"How can I write about these things if I don't know them?" he asked.

"I'll poke around and write what I see and feel . . . no deadlines," he said.

North American General Can't Meet Obligations

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 30,000 insurance policy - holders with claims against the insolvent North American General Insurance Co. will receive only part of the money owed them, the company's liquidator said Saturday.

R. Victor Barnett said North American General's policies will be terminated within 30 days. Claims against the company will be admitted during that period and paid on a proportional basis.

Mr. Barnett said preliminary figures indicate the insurance company's assets totalled about $1,600,000, while its liabilities were about $2,000,000, for a difference of $400,000.

However, securities worth $329,682 and listed on the company's books as assets "cannot be located." The missing securities include Government of Canada and Province of Ontario bonds and shares in Dominion Glass Ltd., and Noranda Mines Ltd.

Quebec Superior Court issued a winding - up order against North American General 12 days ago.

Earlier, Prudential Finance Corp. of Toronto, North American General's sole owner, went bankrupt, affecting 8,500 small investors.

Joseph Brico, president of Prudential Finance and a director of North American General, is to face six charges of theft, uttering forged documents and making false statements.

In Ottawa, Richard Humphreys, director of the federal insurance department, said his examiners have not yet completed their investigation of the company. He could not make a statement at this time.

He said the missing securities had been accounted for earlier this year when federal examiners went through the company books. It was these missing securities "which should have been in the company's possession and were not" that caused the company to become insolvent.

North American General is not associated with North American Life Insurance.

Take Extra Safety Measures For Safe Holiday Travel

Hi There: Heading somewhere via the highways for the holidays? East or West to your home? North to the ski hills? South to the beaches?

Take along an extra measure of safety and comfort by checking over our list of optimum rules selected from information provided by a prominent automobile safety association:

He is not functioning at peak efficiency if he is emotionally upset, so head over backwards to keep him pleased and purring.

Ward off drowsiness by engaging him (be reasonable) in conversation or singing. Supply him now and then with a good cup of tea or coffee or light refreshment. Try an occasional lively radio program. Encourage him to rest and unwind by walking about in the fresh air whenever you stop for gas or refreshment.

At the first sign of fatigue insist that he pull off the road and switch drivers or have a nap — don't let him depend on stimulants to keep going!

Eye fatigue can result from prolonged staring at the road, so it is helpful to change focus frequently, from far to near and side to side.

Exhaust fumes can be lethal:

Carbon monoxide is colorless, tasteless and odorless, and even small amounts can be deadly. Have exhaust system thoroughly checked before you leave. Never leave the motor running in an enclosed area. Always have plenty of fresh air in the car while idling — even while driving. Close front ventilation in a lineup of cars.

If you are ever stopped in a snow bank and motor is idling clear a 4 foot area of snow away from around the tail pipe, as the snow could trap the fumes and allow them to seep into the car—make sure the exhaust is not plugged with snow.

Such symptoms as dizziness, nausea, headache, drowsiness (or the odor of exhaust gas) may be a warning that carbon monoxide fumes are present.

Night driving:

Glare is the villian. Slow down while your eyes are adjusting from glaring lights to darkness and vice versa. Try to avoid looking directly at the oncoming car headlights. Avert your eyes slightly so that you can still see the other car, but so that you are actually watching the right side of your lane.

The unpredictable:

If a tire blows out, concentrate on steering, not braking. Watch for sudden changes in road conditions such as frozen surfaces on bridges and under overpasses. Slow down, but not suddenly, and try to keep the engine pulling.

Keep a safe distance from car in front by allowing a ratio of one car length for each 10 miles per hour of speed. E.g. five car lengths at 50 m.p.h.

General good sense:

Keep valuables out of sight in your parked car so that vandals won't be tempted to break in.

Never throw loose hard objects on the ledge behind the back seat — they can so easily be thrust forward and impose a real safety hazard.

If traveling with school age children, introduce them to the thrills and wonders of map reading. Supply each of them with a set, if necessary, and designate them as official navigators. Whenever tension is mounting in the back seat, ask for a reading. It's the greatest show-stopper in the car, and well worth the price of admission!

Finally, pack an ample supply of permissiveness and sense-of-humor, so you won't become harassed and harried by all those other crazy galoots of drivers you are bound to encounter on your trip! — SUSANNA.

Yuletide Spiced Lamb

Since this meat preparation requires between 10 and 11 days my timing is about right for you to serve this at a party between Christmas and New Years.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Macaroni and Cheese with Hamburg - Tomato Topping, Brussels Sprouts, Individual Tossed Salads, Cherry Cottage Pudding, Tea.

HOLIDAY SPICED LAMB

Note: In advance ask your butcher to thaw and bone out a frozen leg of New Zealand lamb.

5½ to 5¾ pound leg of lamb boned out
2-3 oz. salt petre (ask your druggist to weigh this for you)
2 tbsp. brown sugar
1¼ tsps. ground cloves
1¼ tsps. nutmeg
1 tsp. allspice
¼ cup non-iodized salt (use fine pickling salt)
1 finely crumbled bay leaf

Ask your butcher not to roll the boned-out lamb leg and to give you some strong cord to tie it with and the leftover bones for soup. Trim off almost all excess fat. Peel off the thin outer skin but leave a thin layer of fat on the outside surface.

In a small bowl mix together the salt petre, sugar, spices, salt and bay leaf. Place boned-out lamb leg, outside up, on two cotton towels that you do not care about. (The spices and meat juices stain the towels.) Make ½" deep gashes at 11" intervals in cut surface of meat and rub all of the dry ingredients into meat. Be patient and really rub them in.

Roll up tightly and neatly and tie snugly with strong cord. Used it five times around the roll and twice from end to end. Roll up snugly in double cotton tea towels. Place on oblong porcelain or glass dish and refrigerate 10 or 11 days but every day roll and knead it for about 2 min. to work salt and spices into meat. Return it to refrigerator but be sure to give it a quarter turn on the dish to change bottom side each time.

When curing time is up, still wrapped in towels, place in kettle large enough to accommodate it without crowding. Cover with boiling water, put on lid, and simmer 2 hrs. Cool in water in which it was cooked. Lift from water, drain well, place on plate and chill in refrigerator. When serving time arrives, unwrap and slice as thinly as possible.

Many Brides, Grooms Sing at Own Weddings

DEAR READERS: Recently I printed a letter from an engaged girl who is making plans for her wedding. Her fiance, she said, has a beautiful voice and would like to sing a solo at their wedding. She asked if it would be proper.

I told the girl that the groom is on hand to be married and not to entertain the guests and in my opinion they had better get someone else to sing.

Here is a sample of this week's mail:

ANN LANDERS

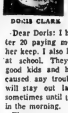
DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter has been crying all day on account of you. Just last month we gave her a lovely wedding and everyone said it was perfect down to the last detail. When Mother came down the aisle on her father's arm, her husband-to-be walked toward her singing "I Love You Truly." This added such a romantic touch to the ceremony that later we received several letters about it from the guests. Now we see in your column that you feel it is in poor taste. Who appointed you judge and jury of the whole world? — SHORT HILLS, N.J.

DEAR KNOW-IT-ALL ANN LANDERS: When my husband and I were married 18 years ago, he took my arm from my father who had walked me down the aisle, we both faced the guests in the church and he sang "Because." This was not planned, in fact it was a surprise to me and I was thrilled. When our daughter is married, I hope her husband does the same thing. A spontaneous song from the groom is much more meaningful than a professional singer who gets paid. — BURLINGTON, VT.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are so arrogant you make me sick. Why do you feel that your way is the only right way? I refer to your statement that it is in poor taste for a groom to sing at his own wedding.

Our son married a lovely girl who had been married previously and was divorced. When the bride and groom met at the altar, she turned to him and sang, "The Second Time Around." She is not a professional singer, Ann; in fact her voice is just fair, but everyone was so moved by her singing that song it was the talk of the town for weeks. I think you owe our family an apology. — BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was very disappointed when you said it was in poor taste for the groom to sing at his own wedding. My fiance and I are going to be married in April and we have been rehearsing a duet. We had planned to sing "Each For The Other." At first Elwood was not very keen on the idea but my mother and I talked him into it. Now, after what you said in your column, Elwood is getting balky again and if he refuses to sing it will be your fault. I wish you would mind your own business. —HUTCHINSON, KANS.



DEAR ANN: Our son is a fine organist. Eugene has played the organ at dozens of weddings, including his own. The ceremony was beautiful, and our son's exquisite music provided a fitting background. When the clergyman came to the portion of the service where Eugene's presence was required he got up from the organ and all the guests applauded. Then he and his bride were married. Everyone said it was the most unusual wedding they had ever attended. — GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA.

DEAR READERS: Well, we have just heard from New Jersey, Vermont, Alabama and California . . . a good cross section of the country. It seems that people have been performing at their own weddings for quite some time and from the tone of the mail, they are going to continue to do so.

If it gives the bride and groom a feeling of satisfaction and they are not concerned about the theatrical aspects, who am I to crab the act?

Teen-agers' Late Dates Cause Family Quarrels

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have a daughter 20 paying me weekly for her keep. I also have a son 18 at school. They are both good kids and have never caused any trouble, but they will stay out late at night, sometimes until two and three in the morning.

They assure me they are doing no harm, and are usually at friends' homes watching T.V., but it is causing trouble between my husband and myself.

He has been a good husband and a good provider. But he never wanted children, has had no time for them and has given them no love or understanding. Consequently they have none for him.

Now, because of this late business, he threatens to turn them out. Doris, I think he is using this as an excuse to get them out of our lives. It is making me sick. I feel on the verge of suicide or a complete breakdown. — Frustrated.

Dear Frustrated: I suppose he has been jealous of their demands on your time all these years. He senses their scorn of him, and hates their defiance. He can get at them through you.

I don't for one moment believe he is thinking of their welfare in demanding an early curfew. But I am, if they give a hoot for you, they won't want that. You may find your boy and girl would be happier away from home; that I was a —. Doris, do you think I should have told them or do you think I was right in not telling them? — Teeny.

Dear Teeny: Right the first time. This is no way to get acquainted with people. Do you want boys for friends who call you rude names?

(Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.)

Dear Doris: The other night I was walking down the street and two guys said "Hi!!" so I said "Hi!!" back and they asked what my name was. I asked why they wanted to know. They said that they just wanted to know.

I didn't tell them and I heard one of the guys say

Jackie Tries to Delete Parts of New Book

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Daily News says "highly personal and poignant recollections" by Mrs. John F. Kennedy are the crux of a struggle over contents of a book on the assassination of President Kennedy to be published in March.

A story by Peter Lisagor, Daily News Washington bureau chief, says the family of the late president "is engaged in a strange and bitter struggle to delete" the recollections from The Death of A President written by William Manchester.

Lisagor's story quotes one person who read the manuscript as saying, "Jackie now regrets having poured out her soul to Manchester as if he were a psychiatrist." The newspaper story says:

"The manuscript is understood to contain hitherto unpublished material involving President Johnson and the Kennedys in the immediate aftermath of the assassination in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

"These details are likely to increase existing tension between Mr. Johnson and the Kennedy clan according to those familiar with the Manchester work."

The author and the editors, Lisagor says, "have been mainly caught up in the anguish of Mrs. Kennedy over some of the disclosures in the 320,000-word manuscript. They are said to include some of her innermost thoughts and emotional attitudes at the time of the tragedy, which she doesn't want published."

The book is to be published by Harper and Row. It is to be serialized in four instalments in Look magazine starting Jan. 10.

Duplicate Bridge Session

The rule of X plus one is a time-saver, invented by Ell Culbertsoon, to assist in determining the possibility of bringing in a suit. With the number of losers in a suit being X, then the number of entries required to set up the suit is X plus one.

Suppose the north hand holds: spades: 9, 3; hearts: A, K; diamonds: J, 8, 4, 2; and clubs: Q, J, 10, 9, 4; and the south hand holds: spades: A, K, Q, J; hearts: 6, 7, 2; diamonds: A, 10, 6, 3; and clubs: 8, 2. Should south, playing a three no trump contract, try to set up the club suit? Since he must lose two club tricks (to the ace and king), by the rule of X plus one, he'll need 2 plus 1 or 3 entries to the north hand. As the north hand has only two certain entries, the ace and king of hearts, south should avoid the club suit, and work on diamonds instead. Just add one to the number of losers in a suit, and that is the number of entries needed to it.

Players who wish to join the American Contract Bridge League are asked to take note that the year now runs from Jan. to Jan., and that the fees are $3 each or $5 for two in one family. The fees include the cost of the monthly bulletin.

The next Duplicate Bridge session will be on Tuesday, Dec. 13, at 7.30 p.m., at 210 Pinnacle St. Everyone is welcome.

Identify Teaching Problems Davis Asks Pediatricians

TORONTO (CP)—Doctors and educationists must increase research programs into the treatment of children with perceptual handicaps and learning disabilities, a United States pediatrician warned Sunday.

Dr. Homer Reed, associate professor of pediatrics at Tufts University Medical School, Boston, told a two-day conference on perceptual problems in children that the best place for research programs is an educational setting where there is a broad sample of behavior to survey.

Research is slow and expensive, but necessary, he said. If parents and legislators want results, they should be willing to pay for them.

He called on the 200 doctors attending the conference at the Hospital for Sick Children to pressure training program directors so students can study the problems of perceptual handicaps.

Later, Education Minister William Davis asked the specialists to identify their teaching problems for the Ontario department of education.

He said the department is concerned with perceptual handicaps and is ready to assist in this area of special education.

Children with learning difficulties require the facilities of more than one Ontario service, Mr. Davis said, adding that the department of health will be working with his department to develop a new program.

Earlier, Dr. William Hawke, chief of psychiatry at the hospital, told the conference the story of a boy from Peterborough who had dysgraphia—the inability to co-ordinate writing activities.

The boy could not get his work done, no matter how hard he tried, Dr. Hawke said. And, when he did write quickly, the work was not well done.

This year, the boy has a teacher who likes him. She doesn't make him finish his work, if he can't. The pressure is off and he finished first in his class.

There was no medication given and Dr. Hawke said the hospital can't take the credit for the boy's improvement. The quality of teaching and the methods used are important in learning, but the maturity of the teacher is of equal importance.

Dr. Charles Netley, chief of psychology at the hospital, suggested that children might profit more from a diversified system of education patterned for children with various problems than from a single system patterned for all children.

'King Bees' Make Record

TRENTON—A Quinte group known as the "King Bees" has a chance to cash in on hit-parade fame and fortune, according to the group's manager, Ted Kinsella of Trenton.

Late last week the RCA Victor Company based at Montreal contracted to press and distribute one of the "Bees" original numbers. The disc will feature "Little Girl," written by the group's leader, Billy Manning, and vocalist, Gary Knight. On the flip side is their rendition of "What's Your Name" created by drummer Gene Latimer, corroborating with Gary Knight. The record should appear on local stands the middle of this month.

Edward's Abdication A UK Crisis

LONDON (AP) — It was a gloomy winter's day, Dec. 11, 1936, when over the radio came the sad voice of King Edward VII, now the Duke of Windsor:

"I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as king, as I would wish to do, without the help and support of the woman I love."

The woman was American-born, twice - divorced Wallis Simpson.

Now, 30 years later, the British monarchy still stands, with Edward's niece, Elizabeth, as queen and the abdication merely another page in England's long and often turbulent history.

But to the British of his and other generations the duke will always remain the boyish romantic figure—the king who gave up his throne for the woman he loved.

Even since abdication the controversy has continued—did he go willingly or was he pushed? The duke has said himself that abdication was the only source open to him. He told an interviewer last July:

"But if I had permitted the politicians or encouraged the public to stand with me as Churchill and Beaverbrook wanted I would have been forming—don't you see?—a king's party, a political party to serve my own private interests.

Winston Churchill then in the political shadows, and Canadian - born Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the powerful Express group of newspapers, were the leaders of a save-the-king movement. Ranged against them was the Conservative party prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, and almost the entire British Establishment, including the Church of England.

But as the storm gathered, no mention of their relationship appeared in British newspapers. Then the Bishop of Bradford, in a talk to his diocesan conference Dec. 1, 1936, let the cat out of the bag. The Yorkshire Post, a provincial newspaper published in northern England, carried an editorial headed The King and his People. The national newspapers took it up the next day and Baldwin felt he had to act.

Windsors Hold Tea in Tent

PARIS (AP)—The Duchess of Windsor received friends and strangers in a tent in the Bois de Boulogne Park Saturday evening. Anyone willing to pay 20 francs ($4) for the privilege could say hello.

The occasion was the "Christmas for Abandoned Animals." This is an annual affair designed to find homes for stray pets.

The 72-year-old duke and 70-year-old duchess refused to see reporters, or make any comment on the anniversary.

They spent Sunday quietly in their home on the edge of the Bois de Boulogne, on the western side of Paris, receiving a few friends for lunch.

LONDON (AP)—British newspapers ignored Sunday the 30th anniversary of the abdication of King Edward VII—now the Duke of Windsor.

There was no mention in the papers of the royal crisis of 1936 when the king gave up his throne for "the woman I love"—American divorcee Wallis Simpson.

When we take wings, our big, swift jets whisk you to 14 countries around the world. Height: above the clouds. Speed: 600 miles per hour.

At the speed of light, to be precise: 186,000 miles per second. That's how quickly the microwave telecommunications network we helped to build can link this country from coast to coast. You probably can't begin to count the number of times you've used this network in your business or personal life.

So take a spin with us. Whether you want to move along smartly above the clouds, or take it easier below them, we can get you places in a hurry.

"A New Holy Alliance"

Chinese Vice-premier Predicts U.S.-Russia Liaison

The following interview with Peking's foreign minister, is by a Brazilian lawyer just back from China. The writer, 37, won Peking's respect when he defended nine Chinese accused in 1964 of spying in Brazil, after they went there to organize a trade show. He wrote his account of the Peking interview for the Rio de Janeiro newspaper Jornal do Brasil, which supplied it to The Associated Press. U.S. reporters are barred from China.

By DANILO J. DOS SANTOS
RIO de JANEIRO (AP) —

"The Soviets have 15 divisions on the Chinese frontier, moved there from eastern Europe. We do not fear a Soviet-American attack. The Chinese people are prepared for the war and confident of final victory."

The speaker was Chen Yi, vice-premier and foreign minister of mainland China, and he said Peking considers the Soviet Union a potential ally of the United States.

In a Peking interview he reminded me that the atom bomb now has been developed by the Chinese, who also have rockets, and "do not fear any nuclear or conventional war or use of special type which the North Americans may create."

Chen Yi is a marshal of the army and a long-time friend of Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung. He is described as a frank man, the kind who feels no compunction in stating flatly that the Soviet Union will invade China from the north in an operation that will bring American forces from the south.

For Chen Yi a war with the United States is inevitable. He believes in the possibility of the U.S. government forming what he calls "a new holy alliance" with Soviet support to destroy the Chinese people.

Moscow's policies, he asserts, envision unity with the United States, and the Chinese are sure this objective will be attained in practical terms within a short period of time. Because of this, he told me, China is preparing for war. Nuclear bombs that may reach China, he said, will be returned with interest.

Bald, fire-feet six-inches in height, with hollow reddened eyes, Chen Yi is invariably dressed in the green uniform of the Chinese Army.

Chen Yi points to the war in Vietnam as proof of military failure of the United States, "since 300,000 super - equipped men with the support of powerful land, sea and air forces, have failed to defeat the guerrillas of a poor country."

Chen Yi's counsellors try to soften his words about "Soviet betrayal," but he prefers to pursue his viewpoint:

"The Soviet Union plots world domination with the United States. Politically the Soviets and the North Americans are already united. The Red Guard is attacked in the same terms in the New York Times and Pravda, often with the same lying adjectives. It is impossible to deny the abundant evidence which proves the anti-Chinese union between the United States and the U.S.S.R.

"Today's Soviet Union is still run by Khrushchev's ca pi ta. Nothing changed with the fall of the former premier, and the oligarchy which runs the country lives in luxury forgetting the people. The entire world knows Soviet revisionism, and the ills it has caused the Communist movement."

Regarding Vietnam, he said the procedure of the Soviets is well known throughout the world.

"They want to sell peace negotiations because they know that the Vietnamese and Chinese are united side by side against the imperialists, who join forces to halt the march of nations toward Communism."

Evidence of Narrow Escape

The father of an East German family of five lost his suspenders on the weekend as he led his two daughters, 10 and 7, his wife, 37, and son, 18, to West Berlin by crossing a border "death strip" and three barbed wire fences. East German border guards fired at them but no one was hit. The father, 37, was a Potsdam butcher. (AP Photo by cable)

Moscow Revives Anti-sovietism Charges

MOSCOW (CP)—Old charges of anti - Sovietism in Canada have been revived by the government newspaper Izvestia, which warns that it can't help but harm Soviet-Canadian relations.

In a bitter blast during the weekend, Izvestia charged that "malevolents" in Canada have been trying to thwart development of friendly bonds between the two countries.

It claimed that prominent Canadians—whom it did not identify— were taking part in an "anti-Soviet campaign."

Theme of the Campaign was "any Soviet person on Canadian soil is a potential spy. Be on guard."

Its starting point was cited as the "notorious" commission on internal security appointed by the Canadian government following the Victor Spencer spy case.

Freight Kills Scouts

BRIGHTON, Mich. (AP) — "Grab the boy and jump . . . grab the boy and jump," engineer Lawrence Green shouted to the fleeing figures as his train bore down on them on a snowy trestle.

Despite braking power fully applied, the Chesapeake and Ohio freight glided on down the tracks and brought tragedy to a boy scout hike Saturday.

Howard Lovell, 50, leader of Detroit Troop 566, and John Gresham, 11, a member of the troop, were killed. Both were from Detroit.

Lovell died while apparently trying to throw Gresham to safety when the train, going 55 miles an hour caught the scouts by surprise on the Huron River trestle in Island Lake State Park.

Another scout, 14-year-old Kevin Connors of Detroit, broke a leg when he jumped 30 feet to the ground.

State police said Connors is deaf and did not hear the train's warning whistle. He jumped because he saw the others scrambling to safety, officers said.

Gypsies Form Labor Union

ST. PAUL'S CRAY, England (AP) — A labor union was formed Sunday for Britain's 50,000 gypsies.

Gypsy representatives from the combined, who feel age Romanies have a rough time in Britain, helped organize a new association to fight for camping sites and equal rights of education, work and housing.

Chairman of the meeting was Vanko Rouda, general secretary of the International Gypsy Committee.

LUNCH SATELLITES

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Two U.S. satellites carrying a total of 12 radiation-measuring experiments were launched from Vandenburg Air Force Base Sunday by an Atlas D booster rocket. One of the 220-pound craft, called OVI-IX (ninth of the current series of orbiting vehicles), went into a 256-by-2,600-mile orbit. The other, OVI-X, entered a 350-mile circular orbit.

Oxygen in Ambulance Not Needed: Doctor

KINGSTON (CP)—There is no need for today's ambulances to carry mechanical respirators, a Kingston doctor said Saturday.

Dr. V. A. Nekus, chief anesthetist at Hotel Dieu Hospital, was one of several doctors and specialists speaking at a course sponsored by the Ontario Committee on Trauma.

The course was attended by 35 ambulance drivers and attendants from eastern Ontario.

"I am not condemning the use of oxygen," Dr. Nekus said. "I use it in the hospital myself, but there is absolutely no room for oxygen in an ambulance."

He said most respirators used in ambulances are about 30 years old and don't have the wide range of controls found on newer hospital models.

"People are under the impression that bottled oxygen is the magic thing. But just waving it in front of a patient's nose is not enough because the air much reach the lungs."

Noisy respiration was a top priority with an accident victim, Dr. Nekus said that if attendants need to restore proper breathing they should use either mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration or lung-operated self-expanding bags.

Sopha Declines Nomination

SUDBURY (CP)—Elgert Sopha, Liberal member of the legislature for Sudbury since 1959, Saturday declined a nomination for the party's Ontario leadership.

Mr. Sopha was nominated at an executive meeting of the Nickel Belt Liberal Association to seek the leadership at a party's convention in Toronto next month.

Mr. Sopha, who was not present at the meeting, said he was gratified "but I am going to support Robert Nixon."

Four-year Graduates Defended

TORONTO (CP) — Graduates of the four-year arts and science high school program have the same opportunities for employment as Grade 12 graduates of the regular five-year program, the Ontario Educational Research Board was told Saturday.

D. W. Jackson, guidance coordinator of the Niagara Falls district board of education, denied claims that the special four-year course was a dead end for students.

Mr. Jackson said a survey he conducted showed job opportunities similar for both groups of students. He said transportation, finance, communications, construction, public utilities and public administration are areas where employers are receptive to the course.

He said several avenues of higher education, including American universities, some Maritime universities, agricultural colleges and technological institutes, were open to arts and science course graduates.

He recommended a stepped-up public relations program to combat negative public attitude towards the course initiated in 1962.

FLOODS KILL FIVE

CARACAS (AP)—At least five persons were reported dead and thousands homeless in northern Venezuela Sunday in floods caused by heavy rains. Carabobo state was the worst hit and Red Cross officials estimated more than 5,000 lost their homes.

Saturation Bombing Ends Lull in Fighting

By MICHAEL NEALE

SAIGON (Reuters)—A saturation raid by B-52 bombers and increased ground action in the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam prompted speculation today that a new Communist offensive may be under way on the northern battlefront.

A raid Sunday by the B-52s, their first since mid-October in the zone area, appeared to mark an end to a relative lull in fighting along the southern edge of the zone dividing North and South.

Between July and October the B-52s hit 22 targets in the zone in an attempt to halt infiltration of North Vietnamese troops and supplies.

A U.S. spokesman said today that in Sunday's raid the big bombers from Guam rained tons of explosive on a North Vietnamese staging and storage area straddling the demarcation line.

The target of the raid was seven miles northwest of the Rockpile, a hill commanding the six-mile wide buffer strip and three main valley approaches to South Vietnam from the north.

BOMBED OWN MEN

Saturday, U.S. marine aircraft accidentally bombed a company of marines, killing 17 and wounding 11, just north of the Rockpile.

On the same day North Vietnamese troops launched a heavy mortar attack on an American base camp in the area.

In October, American marines ended a host of heavy fighting with North Vietnamese troops in the mountainous terrain just south of the zone.

In the monsoon-swept mountains of Quang Tri province, south of the zone, American marines and South Vietnamese troops continued the prolonged Operation Prairie, now in its fourth month.

Near Saigon, in the battle-scarred forests of Tay Ninh province, an American platoon was badly mauled by Viet Cong but managed to kill 26 of their attackers, the spokesman said.

The 1st Infantry Division platoon was attacked by a force of unknown size about 19 miles northeast of Tay Ninh city, some 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

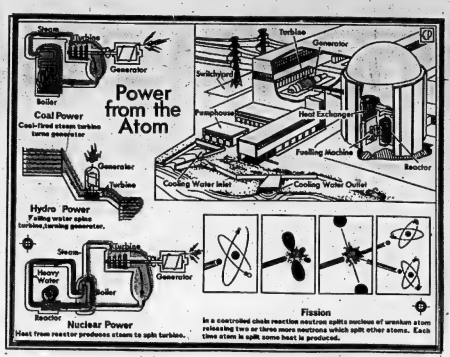
In an intense battle on a canal in the Mekong Delta Sunday, American patrol boats and armed helicopters sank 28 Viet Cong sampans.

The Americans caught the Viet Cong waiting to be ferried across in a flotilla of more than 40 sampans and used their firepower to take a heavy toll, killing 15 guerrillas, an American spokesman said.

Should Be Free to Marry RC Priests Say in Survey

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Sixty-two per cent of Roman Catholic priests replying to a questionnaire from the National Catholic Reporter think they should be free to marry.



Thirty-one per cent said they probably would marry if permitted.

The weekly newspaper, edited by laymen, reports results of the survey in a copyrighted story to appear in the Dec. 14 issue.

The results are based on the first 3,000 replies to a questionnaire sent to 5,963 priests in the United States who are not pastors, monsignors or members of religious orders.

The information came from Rev. Joseph Fichter, a Jesuit sociologist who is Stillman professor of Roman Catholic studies at Harvard University.

He said half of the 3,000 priests in the study are more than 35 years old and 750 are past 40. All regions and states were represented.

Nuclear Energy for Peaceful Use

Nuclear energy, still primarily associated in most people's minds with "the bomb," is also being applied to peaceful purposes, notably the generation of electricity.

The main component of a nuclear power station is the reactor, which produces the heat to make steam which turns the electricity-producing turbines. A coal-fired steam generating plant works the same way, except that the heat is produced by burning coal. In a hydro-electric plant, falling water turns the turbines.

Splitting atoms are the basis of the reactor. A free neutron bumps into an atom, breaking it apart and releasing the atom's neutrons to bump into other atoms. Each time an atom is split, heat is produced.

The chain starts with natural uranium, an element in which atom-splitting is always going on at a relatively slow pace. Heavy water is added to speed the splitting process. It also transfers the heat produced to surrounding normal water, which turns into steam to run the turbines.

The nuclear power station pictured in the illustration is a simplified version of the Douglas Point, Ont., plant now under construction. (CP Newsmap)

Minister Resigns Pulpit

Rev. E. Marshall Bevins, 48, rector of two small churches north of here, said he was resigning because of the wishes of most of his parishioners.

Father Bevins said his decision to leave St. Mark's Church, near Honeybrook, and St. Mary's Church, in Warwick, came after months of anonymous phone calls and crank letters and being run off the road three times in his automobile.

"Some of our parishioners have been direct in letting me know how they feel," Father Bevins told his congregation Sunday morning. "One parishioner stated he would run me out of church in spite of our 'nigger-loving' bishop."

The reference was to Right Rev. Bishop L. Dewitt, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, who also has played an active part in the civil rights movement.

Father Bevins said that since his participation in civil rights demonstrations, both participation and attendance have declined at his churches.

SPORTSLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Few Toronto Maple Leaf players will tell you they like Punch Imlach. They say they "respect him" or "understand him" or "get used to him." Some have even said they disliked him and thought he was hurting the club — but the ones who said these things in public are no longer with the club.

The above is an excerpt from a story appearing in the current issue of Sports Illustrated written by Pete Axthelm.

"Those who remain have learned to keep quiet and concentrate on hockey. And in the seven years since the energetic intense Imlach took over a last-place team in mid-season and drove it into the Stanley Cup finals, his players have done well enough to make him one of the most successful men in the game."

According to the story that is all Imlach demands. "I don't give a damn if each player likes me personally as long as he is loyal to the club and does his best. In fact, I avoid getting too close to the players. After all, I'm the general manager so I've got to talk salary to them."

What is more important is Imlach's almost religious concept of the epic current way to run a hockey club, writes Axthelm, "I decide what fight for each man and I stick to it. Sure, I could be on the spot if we lose while a guy like Markovich is a holdout. But once I start giving in to players, I run all kinds of risks," he quotes Imlach as saying.

The cold tough mariner, says Axthelm, who sometimes alienates his players can also be friendly, entertaining and surprisingly sensitive. He can cajole his men as well as intimidate them. He praises players as often as he criticizes them. "I never knock a man than leave him down. I may tell a guy he's a bum during salary talks or when he plays badly. But I've got to come back and convince him he's the best bum in all of hockey."

Known as one of the best tcaders in the circuit Imlach permits himself to gloat a little about his best deals. "Nobody second-guesses me around here," he is quoted, "I make the decisions myself and I take all the responsibility. The owners of this club know that as soon as they want to make the decisions all they have to do is fire me. I always remember Conn Smythe once told me; be sure to make your own mistakes."

Smythe once told Imlach that he would be happy to offer advice between periods. "Let's do it my way," Imlach is quoted as saying. "I run the whole show, you watch it. As soon as you don't like it, just tell me to get the hell out."

"If Imlach, writes Axthelm, cannot force a man to become an effective part of the club, he simply gets rid of him. Andy Bathgate, the ninth leading scorer in hockey history, helped Toronto to its most recent Stanley Cup in 1964 with several crucial goals.

After one more year, Axthelm says, Bathgate told a reporter Imlach was too hard on the team, that the brutal practice sessions hurt them. "Bathgate is a lazy hockey player," Imlach said. "He doesn't fit in on my club." He traded him to Detroit for the scarred veteran Prosevcut.

The other major cause celebre of the Imlach regime, Carl Brewer, was far more important to the team than Bathgate. Brewer, one of the best defencemen in hockey when the 1964-65 season was ended, and, at 27 he was still at the peak of his career.

"But," writes Axthelm, "this tough sometimes vicious player also happened to be an extremely sensitive introspective individual — so sensitive that even the astute Imlach may have made some serious mistakes with him."

"Brewer was confused and sullen when he reported to practice for the 1965-66 campaign. His friend Bunn was a holdout and he himself was unhappy that Imlach was not treating him like the star he had become.

Later after exhibition games, Brewer and Bower got into an argument about the former's play. They had a loud set-to in the dressing room.

"I blew my top," Imlach said. "When I saw what was happening because of Brewer's sulking I knew I had to do something." Imlach backed Bower. He assailed Brewer, according to Si story, with one of the most colorful oath-filled tirades for which he is famous — and Brewer broke down. He left the training camp and announced his retirement.

NORTH YORK — "It was a 2-0 hockey game as far as I'm concerned. We threw everything we had at them hoping to get that first goal, missed by inches, and they got the break."

That was Mo-Hawks' coach Floyd Crawford's version of a heart-breaking 3-0 loss to Toronto's Varsity Grads in the fabulous new North York Centennial Centre here last night.

The Grads snapped a scoreless tie at 18.03 of the third period to open the door to their OHA Senior "A" victory.

The same two clubs go back at it in Belleville tomorrow (Tuesday) night, at 9.00, and Crawford expressed confidence that the Mo-Hawks can even the score.

Goalies Jerry MacNamara and Ludger Doucet appeared headed for the loop's first double shutout of the campaign until the Grads struck suddenly.

A veteran line of Bob Beckett, Moe Galand and Grant Moore combined for the winning goal and two more quickies were just icing on the cake.

Beckett checked the puck loose in the centre zone and fed to Galand. His pass put Moore into the clear on the right side and he blasted a 15-footer over Doucet's left shoulder to end over 56 minutes of scoreless hockey.

The Mo-Hawks continued to press with four attackers and Billy Crawford made it 2-0 at 17.28. Bob Avery drew the defence to one side and Crawford was left open to drive home the clincher.

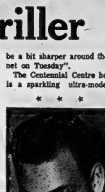
Belleville appeared to get that back seconds later but referee Lou Marchie ruled the puck did not cross the line and Larry Babcock's marker at 19.45, sent some 900 fans home happy.

One Mo-Hawk line is still trying to figure out how they missed the lead goal seconds before Moore's counter. Ralph Plane and Bob McAlpine blasted point blank drives, Wayne McConnell and defencemen Rick Bradford missed by inches of tipping home rebounds, on one concentrated attack.

The shots-on-goal totals indicate the play, 28-26, as the clubs took turns driving in over the distance.

Moore was beaten at least three times by Doucet prior to his winner. Ludger made other sharp saves against Crawford, Duncan, Babcock, Awrey and several others.

MacNamara was as steady as a rock in blocking dangerous plays by Gary Gresdahl, who played one of his better games, Wayne Brown on a couple of powerplays, and the Plane - McAlpine - McConnell combo.



The third period provided the more wide-open hockey. Plane and McConnell broke in on a two-on-one rush early in the period and McAlpine drilled the rebound from his trailing position — no avail. Bob Taylor had just to tip the rubber over the goal line once but a defenceman's stick beat him by a whisker.

That's the way it went at both ends. Doucet had likely a few more dangerous stops in the overall picture. Toronto drew four of seven minor penalties.

Floyd Crawford said after the game that he was pleased with the Mo-Hawks' overall play, "But we'll just have to be a bit sharper around their net on Tuesday".

Wins PGA With Nicklaus

"Midas" Palmer Sets Loot Mark

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Arnold Palmer has won more money in one season than any golfer in history.

Palmer cracked the dollar mark Saturday after pairing with Jack Nicklaus to win the $50,000 first prize in the U.S. Professional Golfers' Association team championship.

Palmer's share boosted his earnings to $154,682 on the U.S. tour this year enabling him to steal the one-year money crown from Nicklaus by $346. Nicklaus won $154,346 two years ago and this year has amassed a total of $140,000.

And so far as official earnings go—money won in PGA-sanctioned tournaments only — the 36-year-old Nicklaus still is king with $140,732.

The Palmer-Nicklaus combination clipped three strokes off the team championship record with a 72-hole best-ball total of 256—32 under par. In rounds of 65-66-3-64, they shattered the tournament which set a record itself as the richest ever with a total purse of $275,000.

The Palmer-Nicklaus combination clipped three strokes off the team championship record with a 72-hole best-ball total of 256—32 under par. In rounds of 65-66-3-64, they shattered the 1965 mark of defending champion Gay Brewer Jr. and Butch Baird, who came in 28 under with 259.

While they have teamed to win three Canada Cup competitions, it was their first U.S. win as a team, and they now stand a respectable 4-1 as partners. And they plan to stay together in team play.

"I'm not going to let him (Palmer) get away," said Nicklaus. Palmer agreed. "I'm getting older and I might need a younger horse some day," he said. Palmer is 37.

Doug Sanders and Al Besselink collected $13,500 each for second place, three strokes back at 258.

Ray Floyd and Billy Maxwell were third, sharing $9,500, with a score of 67-66-66-63—262.

Junior Macs Defeat Winless Apple Kings 5-1

The Quinte McFarlands moved back into a first-place tie in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" standing yesterday with a victory over the pointless Trenton Apple Kings.

Quinte defeated a stubborn Trenton club 5-1. It was the King's 13th defeat in as many games.

The Macs' win gives them an 8-4 record for 16 points. Cobourg also has 16 points but with an 8-2 won-lost record. Quinte visits Peterborough Don Byers, in Port Hope, Friday.

A pair of goals 11 seconds apart mid-way through the third period wrapped up the Macs' triumph yesterday.

The clubs played a scoreless first period; Belleville jumped ahead 2-0 in the second but the Apple Kings cut that in half at 9.19 of the second.

Doug Potts closed the scoring in the final minute of play.

Back in the second, Riley's first goal broke a scoreless tie after just 31 seconds of the period.

Ernie Sharpe made it 2-0 before the period was a minute old but some great saves by young Gary Hunt in the Trenton nets held it there despite Quinte's healthy margin in play.

Quinte fired 47 pucks at Hunt while Forrester was called on for 23 saves.

Ernie Sharpe hit for one goal and two assists while Doug Potts, who took a turn on a forward line, as did Al Calver, had one goal and one assist. Ted Winterfield's goal, two assists by Ted Schwager and loners by Billy Hopkins, Larry Stewart and Pete Fleming, completed the attack.

Winterfield, a hunky 200-pounder plus, has been transferred to this area by his firm, from the Toronto area. Manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews says, "He's a welcome asset and perhaps Plott (coach Goegan) can now convert one of our other defencemen into a forward and give us a little more scoring punch."

Referee Keith MacDonald dished out 20 penalties in the rugged game yesterday. All were minors with each club drawing ten.

Lone Rangers Lead National Pack

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"We're number one!"

The chant began to drift out of the balcony, growing in intensity midway through the third period of New York Rangers' 4-2 National Hockey League victory over Montreal Canadiens Sunday night.

"I've been saying that since September," said manager-coach Emile Francis. "Sure we're No. 1 and I just hope we're still No. 1 on April 2."

ROD GILBERT

The Rangers have lost only two games in the last 15.

Claude Larose had helped Montreal stretch its winning streak to four games Saturday night with three goals, including the winner, in the Canadiens 5-3 victory over Detroit. Claude Provost and Jean Beliveau also scored for Montreal. Bruce MacGregor replied for Detroit.

In Saturday's only other game, right winger Ron Ellis turned in a sterling performance as he scored three goals and assisted on another by Larry Jeffrey to pace the Maple Leafs to a 5-3 victory over Chicago Black Hawks. Dave Keon scored the other Toronto goal and Ken Wharram, Ken Hodge and Phil Esposito replied for the Hawks.

But Larose was unable to help the Canadiens Sunday night when they met the high-flying Rangers, who moved into first place in the standings with a 4-2 victory over Montreal. Rod Gilbert led the New York attack with two gals and picked up an assist on Orland Sutherbach's goal. Don Marshall got he other Ranger goal. Beliveau and Rousseau scored for Montreal.

The Black Hawks didn't have it much easier either Sunday night as Boston Bruins spotted Chicago a 2-0 lead and then rallied to earn a 2-2 deadlock. Ron Murphy's goal at 16:51 of the third period gave the Bruins the tie. Gilles Marotte got the other Boston goal while Pat Stapleton and Dennis Hull scored for Chicago.

In the other Sunday game, the Red Wings came up with only their second victory in the last 13 games to down the Maple Leafs 4-1. Gordie Howe led the Detroit attack with two goals and Norm Ullman and Parker MacDonald had one each. Jeffrey scored for Toronto.

Larose, who went 29 games without a goal last season, moved up as Montreal's top goal-getter with nine.

The Canadiens kept rookie netminder George Gardner of Detroit hopping Saturday as they blasted him with 43 shots. Gardner replaced Roger Crozier, suffering from the flu.

HAD QUIET NIGHT

Goalie Charlie Hodge had a relatively quiet night, stopping 27 of the 28 shots Detroit managed at him.

However, the Canadiens came up against tougher opposition Sunday night as the Rangers fired 37 shots at Hodge, scoring four goals and moving into first place with 28 points, one more than Chicago and Toronto.

The victory was New York's third in succession. The club has lost just two of its last 15 games.

The 15,825 fans on hand for the game at Madison Square Garden gave the Rangers a vote of confidence when they began singing "we're No. 1" after Marshall put the Rangers ahead by two goals late in the third period.

The Canadiens, who hold down fourth place in the league standings, had 33 shots at New York netminder Ed Giacomin.

Victoria Moves Out Of Cellar

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victoria Maple Leafs, last season's Western Hockey League champions, moved out of the league cellar Saturday night—but they are still a long way from first place.

The Leafs defeated Seattle Totems 3-0 in Victoria to pass San Diego, who was idle, and move into sixth place in the seven-team league.

Portland Buckaroos, who gained a 4-4 tie Sunday in Portland with California Seals, lead the league with 38 points, 20 more than Victoria.

Portland also holds an eight-point lead over second - place Vancouver Canucks, who snapped a two - game losing streak Saturday with a 2-0 victory over Los Angeles Blades in Los Angeles.

Manchester U, Liverpool

Stage Rugged 2-2 Clash

LONDON (Reuters) — Manchester United maintained its lead at the top of the First Division in English League soccer Saturday after tying Liverpool 2-2 in a clash at Manchester.

The two great Lancastrian clubs, which have monopolized the First Division for the last three years, fought a rugged game before a crowd of 62,500.

A player on each team was penalized by the referee. George Best, brilliant Manchester winger who scored both goals, one from a penalty, was cautioned in the first half after apparently striking the Liverpool centre half, Ron Yeats, and Willie Stevenson was penalized for a foul in the second half.

The win brought United's points to 28—one point ahead of Chelsea which continued its unbeaten run away from home this season with a 2-2 draw at Newcastle.

CELTIC ON TOP

In the Scottish League, Celtic —with a 4-2 win over Motherwell—kept their lead at the top of the First Division with 26 points.

Rangers, who defeated Stirling Albion 4-0, have 22 points and Aberdeen, defeated 1-0 by Falkirk, have 20 points.

Manchester United was without star forward Denis Law who had an injured knee, and England wing-half Nobby Stiles, ill with influenza.

Chelsea and Newcastle enjoyed near - perfect conditions, but most teams had to struggle on wet grounds.

Taking advantage of the ground, Chelsea and Newcastle played some thrilling soccer. Tommy Baldwin and Bobby Tambling scored for Chelsea, with Gwyn Davies and Bryan Robson scoring for Newcastle.

Burke Takes Over TV News

TORONTO (CP) — Stanley Burke slipped into Earl Cameron's old slot Sunday night as the CBC broadened its new national television news, complete with a new musical theme and setting.

Mr. Cameron has been shifted to the CBC's early-evening news program.

Bill Cunningham, executive producer of the new program, said the new look is intended to cut out all gimmicks and unnecessary frills on the screen.

The fanfare, which replaces a theme familiar to Canadians for many years, was composed by Louis Applebaum and the set was designed by Edgar Krumminz.

Mr. Burke was formerly the CBC's European correspondent.

Jason Robards Finds Himself Of Two Minds About Theatre

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In which realm do actors prefer working — movies, television or way's best actor. "Your whole theatre? Most say theatre, but Jason Robards Jr., is of two minds about it.

"It's very limiting," said the trophy - winning, $5,000-a-week stage star, often called Broadwayest living actor. There.

"Doing eight shows a week is barbaric. You have Sunday off and sleep half the day."

Then ask Robards his preference among the performing arts and a gleam comes into the shadowed eyes in the long face.

"The theatre, for its live audience and sustained performance."

Robards, 44, can just about write his own ticket on either coast. He came here last March for one film and stayed for a second. After a month at home with wife Lauren Bacall, he's self starring on Broadway, he was back for a TV film.

Now, with two plastic scars spirit - gummed to his left cheek, he was gangster Al Capone in The St. Valentine's Day Massacre. In a tense scene he went into an arm-waving, roaring rage upon learning a friend has been murdered. Afterward the crew applauded — a rare tribute.

His father was a matinee idol of the 1920s who settled in Hollywood and starred in silent pictures before his career faded. Robards Jr. was a navy radioman who survived Pearl Harbor and a cruiser sinking. Reading Eugene O'Neill's Strange Interlude aboard another ship, he decided to become an actor.

At home are six children — Miss Bacall's two by her marriage to the late Humphrey Bogart, Robards' three from a previous marriage and the couple's son, Sam, 4.

Danny Tries Once Too Often

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Thomas had great success for two seasons with his annual Wonderful World of Burlesque specials, but nobody can win them all. The third edition Sunday night on NBC, never got off the ground.

The show had lots of stars— Carol Channing, Mickey Rooney and singer Wayne Newton, and a number of luminaries from NBC's stable of stars who walked on for one-line gags.

An expected-father sketch was more tasteless than funny. Thomas put on an Italian accent for horrendous sketch and a production number seemed to be a broad spoof of First World War songs, including Over There.

Miss Channing sang a couple of songs and went through a tiresome ballet satire. The studio audience at least twice laughed before they heard the punch line, as familiar were most of the jokes.

NBC's Frank McGee Report Sunday afternoon beat CBS to the screen with a half-hour report on the competition to get there first with a supersonic passenger jet plane. CBS will treat the subject in "the supersonic race" Tuesday night.

The big promise to be a big week for planes in connection with dreams. Sunday night's FBI for ABC was a murder story that began with a planted bomb on a plane, and Tuesday night's Doomsday Flight, the second of the two-hour "movies made for TV" on NBC is entirely concerned with a bomb, this one planted on a passenger plane by a madman.

Recommended tonight: To Tell the Truth, CBS, 10-10:30 EST, a return of the 10-year-old panel show to an evening spot.

Ken Murray Hollywood Film Historian

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Because he hates to write letters, Ken Murray became—without planning it—a Hollywood film historian.

On a vaudeville tour in 1937 the comedian reported his travels with a 16-millimetre movie camera in lieu of letters to his grandparents in Kingston, N.Y., who had reared him.

In Los Angeles he met Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and soon was photographing — and being photographed with — Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Harold Lloyd, Laurel and Hardy and other stars of the day.

Murray has continued the hobby and now has "hundreds of thousands of miles" of film of stars from Clara Bow to Liz Taylor.

Fish Prices Remain Stable

TRENTON — Local housewives concerned about rising food costs may be interested to learn prices for most food fish have remained stable for the last 15 years. The exceptions are the varieties whose stocks have been almost depleted due to increasing pollution of the fresh water lakes.

In the late 40's and early 50's according to veteran fish buyer Grant Quick of Compert south of Brighton, mudcats (bullheads) brought 35c a pound. They sell for the same price today. And the market for perch shows little change.

Fish prices are controlled solely by supply and demand which is the reason dwindling supplies of whitefish have brought prices almost triple those 20 years ago.

Red China Trade Up With West

The annual edition in the encyclopedia said almost half of China's $3,500,000,000 in foreign trade last year was with capitalist countries.

Trade with capitalist countries was described as up 30 per cent compared with 1964.

The encyclopedia said the share of Communist countries in trade with China declined to 1 tries was described as up 30 China does not publish statistics on its economy.

The encyclopedia named Japan, West Germany, England and France as major capitalist trade partners with China.

Half Century Ago Welshman Wrecked Party, Saved Britain

LONDON (CP) — He won power in a palace revolution, toppling his own party chief 50 years ago when British Labor was in the midst of the First World War.

Although a superb politician, he wrecked his own Liberal party and condemned it to the political wilderness where it wanders to this day.

A thunderbolt radical, he shook English society until aristocratic teeth rattled and coronets tilted. "The peerage is like cheese—the older, the higher," he once said. But on the threshold of death he joined the noblemen by accepting an earldom.

He became known and greatly loved as "the man who won the war." But in a few years he was rudely flung from power in the full vigor of life and never held public office again—although remaining in Parliament a total of 54 years.

That is the bare-bones story of David Lloyd George, the Welsh wizard who dared all, conquered all and lost all within six years at a period when to rule Britain was to rule the greatest empire the world had seen.

Any political old-timer can fill out the portrait with years of the quicksilver brilliance, inspiring oratory, dynamic drive, devious manoeuring and beguiling charm of the only Welshman ever to become British prime minister.

OUSTED BY BONAR LAW

On the personal plane, the statesman's home life, his second Earl Lloyd George, described his amorous exploits' as "a mixture like Byron's." The 53 years of marriage with my mother, was involved with a series of affairs with women, some innocent, some romantic, some deeply obsessive, some cynical and coldly, and most of them fruitful."

Today, two Canadians acted parts in the intrigue - filled charm that was the twilight fall of Lloyd George. Lord Beaverbrook, the flamboyant publisher with the impish humor, and Andrew Bonar Law, the sobersides politician who became a British premier, helped the Welshman—up and down. Law shunied him from power in 1922, after deferring to him in wartime.

Lloyd George could command the submission of a young Winston Churchill, his one - time cabinet colleague, and was known to intimates as "the great beast"—a wartime tag, comparing him with a lion in the jungle, master of all situations.

Churchill, in his war memoirs, wrote sadly of Lloyd George's failure to join in sounding a warning during the "locust years" between the Second World War. But elsewhere Churchill said of the first conflict:

"No man who did not witness the fortitude of Lloyd George during the German broke through in March 1918 has any right to say one word of criticism."

TIME FOR CHANGE

It was just 50 years ago Dec. 7 that Lloyd George was called by King George V to form a government after bestowed on Liberal prime minister for more than eight years, in a cabinet struggle.

The immediate issue was the membership of the "ablest war committee but it followed prolonged intrigue and there was considerable discontent in the country and at the front over Asquith's handling of the war.

The King first called Bonar Law, Conservative leader, on the advice of Asquith. But Law declined the monarch's commission and Lloyd George formed a coalition government mostly comprising Tory members.

"People predicted the coalition would last six weeks—it lasted six years," wrote Beaverbrook, when he reviewed events many years later.

Historian A. J. P. Taylor summed up the December episode this way:

"It was the nearest thing we have had to a revolution in modern times, a revolution certainly carried out within the framework of Parliament. MORE 06c,,ttts

"But instead of an organized movement of parties, or les that matter of any-apsa decision or division, the House of Commons itself, this was carried on behind the scenes by manoeuvres and private pressures."

ORIGINS HUMBLE

Politicians never tire of comparing the two great war leaders — Churchill, born in Blenheim Palace, and Lloyd George, son of a schoolmaster, the first cottage-born Briton ever to make it to 10 Downing Street.

Lloyd George entered the House of Commons at 27 in 1890 and held the same Welsh seat for 54 years before resigning and accepting an earldom in 1945, the year of his death. He never suffered personal defeat at the polls, as Churchill did.

Each in his era became "master of the House" but Churchill served it a total of 62 years. In the early 1900s Lloyd George became known as a scorching radical when, as chancellor of the exchequer, he introduced old age pensions and laid several other planks of what eventually became the welfare state.

When the House of Lords balked, Lloyd George threatened to pack it with 300 new lords. The hereditary peers had horrific visions of themselves being swamped by tide of dockers, bricklayers, Irish terrorists and anarchists.

The fiery Welshman made many powerful enemies as he rose, which no doubt skids finally got under him, his descent was swift and final.

Lloyd George and Churchill were the last of the great orators," says the Earl of Swinton, "for the conditions under both men.

TAUGHT WAR'S MEANING

Old-timers say Lloyd George had almost child-like pride in his own powers. On a Canadian tour in 1923 he threw a virtual tantrum when informed that his speech at the Montreal Arena would be carried over an amplifying system—the voice was ranging the device which he deeply mistrusted.

"What I want to know is, can everybody hear me?" the little Celt shouted into the microphone.

Critics accused Lloyd George of stabbing Asquith in the back but other authorities maintain that Britain at the end of 1916 was uneasy about its war leadership and wanted a change.

Lloyd George, who had been munitions minister and war minister as well as chancellor of the exchequer, was able to bring new life into the war effort at a grim hour. He taught the people the meaning of total war. His relations with leadership warmed those around him when their hearts were heavy and feet cold. He was the only man who could compare to the mass of the people that it was their war.

Far - off events now may seem pale in the shadow of the years, but Lloyd George faced as great a trial as any man in history until then He was able to hold a tighter rein on the generals than Asquith managed to do. For many reasons his era is certain was great.

Why did he fall?

Some political students say the people twigged that Lloyd George, once the crusader for social justice and then crusader for national survival, had become a crusader for self.

Beaverbrook, in his The Decline and Fall of Lloyd George, notes that Lloyd George was a prime minister without the sense to be born wiser. He had lost many friends—he had shed them "like the snake sheds its winter coat." He caused a scandal by contemptuously peddling honors for money—sometimes on the instalment plan—to feed a personal political fund.

He tried to be all things to all men at a time when great moral and political issues, such as the future of Ireland, were at stake. He suffered from the general disenchantment and bitter industrial unrest that followed the war.

Beaverbrook wrote:

"The brilliant schemes and stratagems which he resorted to in war, outwitting generals and politicians, peers, prelates and the king, and all to save Britain, he could not deal with daring and skill to save himself. . . He took up each position in turn during those tragic years of 1921 and 1922."

A story of intrigue, chicanery, flattery and vanity culminated in a famous Tory party meeting held at the Carlton Club Oct. 19, 1922. That meeting smashed the Liberal-Tory coalition built by Lloyd George to put — and keep—himself to power. Election defeat followed. He was only 59 with many inglorious years ahead, but his great days were all behind.

Lloyd George and his first wife lived separate for years before her death in 1941. They had two sons, one of whom became a Tory minister, and three daughters, one a Liberal and then Labor member. At 80 Lloyd George married his secretary, Frances.

Friends sometimes say he never recovered from the death of his wife and eldest daughter, the beautiful and sweet-natured Mair Edlmed.

He once wrote his brother William, describing he kindly welcome he received from King Edward VII after being appointed chancellor of the exchequer in 1908.

"But I walked home through the rain crying," Lloyd George confided to his brother. "I knew that my little Mair would not be there to receive me."

Lover of Power

Jordan Plans to Accept 'Aid' Only if UN Troops Withdraw

AMMAN (AP) — Jordan has agreed to let in Iraqi and Saudi Arabian troops within two months but only if UN peacekeeping forces are withdrawn from the frontier between Israel and the United Arab Republic, a Jordanian government spokesman said Sunday night.

The Jordanian stipulation appeared to block the plans of the other Arab leaders to extend their troops further along the Israeli frontier where it was unlikely that the United Nations would remove its forces and risk a further increase in Middle East tensions.

Jordan has expressed fear that foreign troops admitted to its territory would be used to overthrow King Hussein.

But was U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser, with 55,000 of his troops fully occupied in Yemen, thought to want the UN forces withdrawn. He has long sought to curb the militancy of other Arab leaders, warning that they are unable to wage war successfully on Israel because of their lack of unity.

Reports from Cairo said the Arab League Defence Council had forced Jordan into a unanimous decision to let in Iraqi and Saudi troops as part of an overall Arab military plan agreed on at previous conferences.

He said the plan included as "basic conditions" the UN withdrawal and removal of the U.A.R. forces from Yemen.

21 DIE IN BUS CRASH

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Twenty-one passengers were killed and 51 others injured Sunday when a bus fell off a 200-foot cliff near Samchok on the east coast, 140 miles east of Seoul, reports reaching here said. The reports said the accident was caused by mechanical failure of the bus.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Medical specialists start examining cancer-stricken Jack Ruby today to seek the source of the illness spreading through his body.

Upswing in NDP Vote Alarms Rivals

OTTAWA (CP)—A recent upswing in New Democratic support in provincial and by-city elections has set many politicians here wondering whether the NDP is on the verge of a national breakthrough.

Walter Gordon, Liberal campaign chairman in the 1965 federal election, has warned his party that the NDP will pick up a flock of seats at the next election unless the Liberals adopt more progressive policies.

Progressive Conservatives privately express worry about the NDP gains. This was one of the factors leading Conservative MPs and senators to hold an unusual policy seminar here Saturday and Sunday.

New Democratic candidates polled a record 18-per-cent of the popular vote in the federal election a year ago and this share of support has climbed in provincial and local elections in the last few months.

The big test will come in the Ontario election expected next spring. The NDP's provincial organization is going all out, armed with paid full-time organizers and steady financial support from labor unions.

Rival parties attack the NDP's close ties with the labor movement, charging that the left-wing party is a tool of "union bosses." Liberals accuse the New Democratic MPs of being irresponsible "big spenders" and delaying artists in the Commons.

NDP leaders deny these charges and say recent opinion surveys in Ontario indicate their following ranges from 26 to 36 per cent.

They point with pride to the election of NDP sympathizers in recent weeks as mayors of Toronto and Halifax.

The party is girding for possible other provincial elections next year in Saskatchewan, Alberta, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

New Democrats in the Maritimes are virtually starting from scratch, while their Saskatchewan cousins hope to regain the power they lost to the Liberals in 1964.

In September, New Democrats doubled their votes to 30 per cent in the Ontario byelection in Kenora.

Some discount the importance of NDP gains in byelections because of the party technique of flooding a riding with outside NDP workers and union organizers to drum up almost overnight support.

Kenora riding wasn't flooded, but there were outside organizers in there for long periods. There were similar reports about the Alberta byelection.

NDP morale got another boost with the Dec. 5 election of party supporter William Dennison as mayor of Toronto. The technique had a familiar ring, with door-to-door knocking by labor supporters playing a key role in the victory.

Some of the union money and collections from membership drives go to professional organizers, who spend all their time in the field prodding riding organizations. The party has at least six in Ontario and more will be hired.

PCs So Enthusiastic at Policy Talks They Must Meet Again to Finish Work

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs and senators ended two days of closed policy talks Sunday which they say eventually "will represent an effective contribution to the party and the national dialogue."

A press statement after the meetings at the party's national headquarters said there was so much enthusiasm during the deliberations that the planned agenda could not be completed.

A further meeting was set for January after which final suggestions will be made to the resolutions committee of the party's national association.

The talks were attended by 67 members of the Commons and Senate. Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker was not present.

J. Waldo Monteith, the member for Perth and spokesman for the meeting, said the party's leadership was not discussed but present were members who supported as well as those who opposed a review of Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership as not down by the party's national convention.

The talks were described as harmonious both by Alvin Hamilton (Qu'Appelle), a strong supporter of Mr. Diefenbaker, and Gerald Baldwin (Peace River), who supported the leadership review.

The talks were called by members of the Conservative caucus because the leadership question dominated the annual meeting with little time left for policy.

The statement said three main themes resulted from the meeting:

1. A strong demand for a coherent statement of party philosophy and principles based on present and future needs of Canadians.

2. A strong desire to express a positive means of saving and extending Canadian independence as distinguished from those who would drift into continental union with the United States.

3. A new concept of building a better life for all Canadians, especially those meeting new problems in built-up areas.

Viet Cong Booby Trap Victim

Soldier of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division bends over a seriously wounded and blinded comrade who fell victim to a Viet Cong booby trap during a search and destroy action at Minh Tan village 30 miles northeast of Saigon in South Vietnam. The mishap occurred as the soldier was searching a hut over a Viet Cong tunnel entrance. The mine was hidden shoulder high in the roof of the hut. The infantryman touched a wire as he entered the hut and the mine blew up in his face.

THREE-CAR ACCIDENT

NAPANEE — Charges have been laid as a result of a three-vehicle accident which occurred on Dundas St. last Friday. A car driven by Mrs. Audrey McDonald of Queen Mary Road, Kingston, was in collision with one driven by Mrs. Bonnie Reynolds of 79 Mill St. The impact caused the second car to veer and drove it under the unloading section of a car transport delivering cars at the Pringle Service Station. The only passenger in the second car, Mrs. Agnes Laffman, is in the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital with chest injuries. She is the grandmother of the driver. There were no passengers in the first car. Both drivers escaped injury.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

An 18-year-old youth, Reginald Elwood Babcock, was sentenced to five months in the Ontario Reformatory last Thursday by Magistrate P. E. D. Baker.

Babcock was paroled from the Salvation Army home for boys, the House of Concord, only November 1, and was convicted of stealing a license plate November 18. Girard Sexsmith, provincial probation officer, asked that he be returned to The House of Concord to learn a trade, but Magistrate Pringle said he considered that the youth had not made any effort to rehabilitate himself and so sentenced him to reformatory. He warned him that at the rate he was going, he was heading for the penitentiary.

Even though the damage inflicted amounted to only $1.60, Magistrate Baker imposed a fine of $100 and costs on Percy Benbke of the Denbigh district. The 29-year-old construction worker scraped a decal from an Ontario Provincial Police cruiser, which is a serious offence. Benbke could give no reason for his act.

Charged with pointing a firearm at Gwendolyn Jackson, Vernon Jackson was remanded to the Ontario Hospital, Kingston for not more than 30 days for a mental examination. The incident occurred in the northern part of the County of Lennox and Addington.

Canadian In Auckland After Lone Trip

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) — A Canadian yachtsman arrived in Auckland, today after an 8,000-mile voyage in the 20-foot cutter Thumbelina, most of the distance alone.

Kenneth Wels, 39, of Vancouver left his home port four months ago in the Thumbelina which he designed and built himself.

He had never gone ocean voyaging before the New Zealand trip.

He plans to spend the next few years in Auckland.

Wels' wife flew from Vancouver to the Society Islands from where she sailed with him to Rarotonga.

From there she travelled in the liner Mariposa, arriving in Auckland last week.

Ladies' Aid Holds Tea

DESERONTO — Although the Church of the Redeemer has only a handful of members, its Ladies' Aid is a most active one, with a warm fellowship.

Because they are so few in number, the ladies sometimes did double duty. Welcoming the guests at the recent bazaar were Mrs. Garry Morton, lay Ministers' wife, and Mrs. Charles Griffith, filling in for the president, Mrs. Kay Wood, who was busy in various other places.

There were only three sale tables. The good things on the cooked food table were sold to eager buyers by Mrs. Charles Reid and Mrs. Dorothy McCullough.

A Christmas arrangement and red candles on the tea table set the Christmas theme. A representative from each church poured tea: Mrs. Vivian Boston, from the Presbyterian Church; Mrs. A. F. Dowdell, St. Mark's Anglican Church; Mrs. Stafford CLaus, the Salvation Army and Mrs. Edmund Dowling, St. Vincent de Paul Roman Catholic Church.

The CGIT girls served the guests and Mrs. Don McMillan, Mrs. Blake Moore and Miss Lulu Moore performed the kitchen duties.

Association For Retarded Lists Officers

NAPANEE — Harold Todd of Newburgh was re-elected president of the Lennox and Addington Association for the Mentally Retarded at the annual meeting last week. Fritz Juliennsen is first vice-president, and Mrs. James Miller and Mrs. Roy Hunt are second and third vice-presidents respectively. Mrs. Clifford Pringle, former first vice-president, was elected treasurer. Recording secretary is Mrs. Gerald Benn and Mrs. Gerald McCracken is corresponding secretary.

The meeting was held in the one-room school leased from the Richmond Township School Authority which will open in January with ten pupils, at least. Mrs. Fermen Martin will be the teacher, and the Association is calling for volunteers to help her for the first month until the children become accustomed to school life.

The Association is also seeking children to attend the day nursery which opens every Tuesday morning in Trinity United Church in the room fitted for the Sunday school nursery class. When the school on the Slash Road opens January 3, the nursery will lose not only one of its teachers, Mrs. Martin, but also all but one of its pupils. The Association is now willing to accept physically handicapped children for the nursery school.

Mad Axeman of Dartmoor Prison On Run With 200 Police in Pursuit

DARTMOOR, England (AP) —Britain's most violent criminal, a powerful man dubbed The Mad Axeman, was on the run from Dartmoor prison today with more than 200 police in pursuit through a blinding hailstorm.

Parents throughout the barren Devon moorland were warned that 27-year-old Frank Mitchell might be out to seize a child as hostage.

Mitchell, serving a life sentence for robbery with violence, escaped from a work party eight miles from Britain's toughest jail Monday and set off frantic warnings to the public.

"He is No. 1 of all prisoners, a man so dangerous he will stop at nothing," police told residents of villages huddling in the wind that constantly whistles over the treeless moors.

Mitchell is a powerful six-footer who weighs 230 pounds, "but without an ounce of fat on him," officials said.

He recently showed off his strength to other Dartmoor prisoners by lifting the front end of a car containing two astonished warders.

Wearing green waterproof clothes and rubber boots, Mitchell slipped away from the working party at dusk.

Throughout a night of stinging hail and bitter cold, police with bloodhounds searched the heather familiar to Sherlock Holmes devotees who remember The Hound of the Baskervilles.

In two previous escapes from criminal asylums, Mitchell terrorized families with a hatchet. That got him the name of The Mad Axeman.

Mitchell, judged sane by an English court, has been constantly in trouble behind bars. Twelve years ago he was thrashed with the dreaded but not outlawed cat o' nine tails for attacking prison officers.

To the judge who ordered him jailed for life, Mitchell said: "There is not a lock I cannot undo. I promise you I will escape, and I am prepared to die."

Sharp's Baby Budget Coming Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians can expect the price tag next week for planned increases in pension payment to the needy.

Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons Monday he will introduce a baby budget in the House next Monday or Tuesday.

He declined to say what measures it would contain. But he has made it clear the taxpayer will be tapped for at least some of the additional $270,000,000 the federal treasury expects to hand out in 1967 under pension increases now before the Commons.

However, Mr. Sharp also is expected to take into consideration recent economic opinions that possible signs of slack are showing up in the economy and that no "big stick" measures are needed against inflation at this point."

The minister gave the baby budget dates in answer to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who also asked about Mr. Sharp's statement on television Sunday that the measures included would be different from those he had in mind earlier in the year.

Mr. Sharp said his television remarks were in line with recent replies he has made in the Commons.

He has linked the baby budget and the pension increases in his statements to the House, making it clear he wants to see the increases covered on a pay-as-you-go basis.

He also said the government is keeping a close eye on the economy and would fit policies to the country's needs.

The indication is that the baby budget will include enough tax-boost measures to cover the increased pensions but will not include any radical fiscal changes.

The government proposes to add $30 a month to the current old age pension of $75 for needy pensioners. This supplementary benefit would be reduced by $1 for every $2 of income received by a pensioner above the $75 payment.

In his budget speech last March 29, Mr. Sharp forecast a budget deficit of $150,000,000 for the 1966-67 fiscal year ending next March 31.

Strike Vote Is Being Taken By Air Traffic Controllers

OTTAWA (CP)—The country will know early Wednesday whether a union will snuff out the beacons of Canada's major airports.

The Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association began polling its 650 members Monday night on whether they want to go on strike. No tentative strike date has yet been proposed.

A transport department official said a walkout would halt airline operations. The men involved handle all radar and radio control procedures for landing and takeoffs.

The move followed a breakdown of negotiations with the federal government that have lasted some 28 months. In a final effort to come to terms, association representatives and officials of the treasury board, a cabinet committee, met for six hours Monday.

"We've so far removed from a settlement that there seems no point in continuing," said Jim Conway of Winnipeg, association vice-president.

"No conclusions were arrived at," said Revenue Minister Benson.

"We now have to wait for them to seek another meeting or proceed with their strike vote."

As he spoke, the association already had begun its strike vote.

Mr. Conway said the Monday marathon meeting decided nothing.

The association had negotiated with the government for 18 months, then carried on for seven more under the mediation of Judge J. B. Robinson and "the government has had plenty — revamped pay structure. Increases would average about seven per cent a year and controllers would get immediate increases, retroactive to July 1, 1966, of between $1,000 and $2,200.

Mr. Conway said the association had hoped the government would implement the recommendations in Judge Robinson's report or "give-me" a counter-proposal." The government did neither, he said.

"We are still prepared to hear a realistic counter-proposal from the government at any time."

Hospital Board Failings Detailed

Indications of disagreement among its members and some failure to work closely with its medical staff were noted against Belleville General Hospital's board of governors in a recent report by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

A synopsis of the complete report — on an administrative controversy at the hospital — was read to members of Belleville city and Hastings County councils at a board meeting last night.

The section pertaining to the board was read in detail to the councillors by chairman A. McLean Haig "to avoid any possibility of misunderstanding."

The entire statement delivered by Mr. Haig was released to the press this morning. Due to the time The Intelligencer received the synopsis given by the chairman, it was impossible to publish it verbatim today, but it will appear in tomorrow's issue.

This Poor Butcher Has Real Beef, Folks Think Prize Heifer Too Pretty to Eat

LONDON (CP) — Jack Evans is a butcher who promised his customers the best beef in the world for Christmas.

Instead, his good intentions have led him into deep soul-searching and even brought hostility from the housewives he was trying to please.

Jack paid £1,300 ($3,900) for the supreme champion of the Royal Smithfield Cattle Show last week—a 20-month-old Aberdeen Angus heifer named Frida Moreta of Thorn.

The rules of the show—sponsored by London's famed Smithfield Meat Market—state that the champion must be sold and slaughtered within 28 days.

"So much pressure is being put on me," said the butcher. "Customers who saw the heifer on television say she is too pretty to be killed and on no account do they want joints from the champion."

He said it had always been his ambition to buy the champion:

"To a butcher, it's like Everest to a mountaineer. I wanted to offer my customers the best beef in the country for Christmas, but I had no idea it would cause all this feeling.

"The money I get back for the meat—about £100—is no small that I would certainly give the heifer away if I knew it would save her life. But the rules say the beast must be slaughtered."

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals stepped in with an offer to "provide this beautiful animal with a home for the rest of its natural life."

Africans Members Demand Complete Embargo on Oil

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Three African members of the United Nations Security Council today demanded a complete embargo on the shipment of oil to Rhodesia.

The proposal was one of a series of amendments offered by the Africans to a British resolution calling for mandatory economic sanctions in an effort to topple the white - minority Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith.

The amendments, which would expand the scope of the British proposals, were submitted by Mali, Uganda and Nigeria as the 15-nation council assembled to resume its debate on the Rhodesian problem.

In addition to the oil embargo, the Africans proposed that coal and manufactured goods be added to the list of 12 products selected by Britain for a trade ban.

The African amendments also would have the council deplore the refusal of Britain to use force to overthrow the Smith regime and the support given the Rhodesian government by Portugal and South Africa.

THE United States threw its weight behind the British resolution Monday and made no mention of an oil embargo or wider application of sanctions.

In an address before the council, chief U.S. delegate Arthur J. Goldberg also opposed the demand for use of British force against Rhodesia. Goldberg ruled out violent measures which might produce a showdown with South Africa, Portugal and the other white regimes in southern Africa.

Change in Policy

Germany Wants Diplomatic Ties With Red Lands

BONN (Reuters) — West Germany's new coalition government announced today it wants to establish diplomatic relations with all its eastern neighbors wherever circumstances make it possible.

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger told the Bundestag.

"Germany, was for centuries the bridge between West and Eastern Europe. We want to carry out these tasks in our time as well."

Kiesinger added: "We are determined to maintain relations with all nations, which are based on understanding, on mutual trust and on the will for co-operation."

He was making the first policy statement of the new coalition government which for the first time brings the Social Democratic party into the government of post-war Germany with the chancellor's Christian Democrats.

It was not immediately clear whether the chancellor's statement that West Germany would establish diplomatic relations with Communist countries wherever possible meant a reversal of West Germany's previous policy.

Under the so called Hallstein Doctrine, West Germany has refused to open diplomatic relations with countries which recognize East Germany, except in the case of the Soviet Union.

Kiesinger's statement included a gesture toward neighboring Czechoslovakia when he said the contentious 1938 Munich agreement ceding Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland to Nazi Germany was no longer valid.

It was the first time an official West German representative has formally acknowledged that the Munich pact has no validity.

Hastings Possibility

Hastings County Welfare System Considered

Hastings county council will consider the advisability of adopting the county welfare system as an alternative to welfare being a municipal responsibility as at present.

Members yesterday listened to what the province will do to assist in setting up such a system and at the same time were told of the experiences in neighboring Prince Edward where county welfare has been in effect for the past two years.

Arna Neilson, supervisor for the Ontario department of welfare, said the province would pay 50 per cent of the salaries for county welfare personnel and at the same time would contribute toward travelling costs.

He said that nine counties in Ontario now had the county welfare system. By April of 1967 another four counties will have adopted the central system.

The extended north and south distance peculiar to Hastings was not thought to be a disadvantage for a successful county welfare unit, although a sub-office might be necessary in the north.

Grant Harvey, welfare administrator for Prince Edward, told of experience in that county and answered questions relating to welfare operation.

He said that for the month of November welfare assistance had averaged about $95 per family, Always, he said, his department endeavored to treat welfare applicants with respect and human dignity.

Warden Clayton Hall said that councillors would further discuss the matter and decide whether the county welfare system should be adopted in Hastings.

Trenton Chamber of Commerce switched on for Christmas with lights in front of old federal building yesterday. Town representatives joined carollers and handsmen to send off project which sees Santa and helpers ensconced in booth for Yuletide.

His memory is our keepsake,
With which we will never part,
God took him in his loving arms,
We have him in our heart.

DOOLITTLE — In loving memory of our dear son, Bruce, who was called away December 13th, 1961.

CYDE — In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, John Edward Cyde, who passed away Dec. 13, 1963.
You left the one you loved the most,
Without a last goodbye,
And in our sad and lonely hearts,
We keep asking why?
There is nothing left to sowell,
But your picture on the wall,
But memories are always somewhere,
To the pattern God has planned,
We must believe and trust Him,
For someday we will understand.
—Lovingly remembered by son, Stan, daughters Mrs. Lorna Bateman, Mrs. Maxine and their families.

GRAY — In loving memory of Cpl. Ronald Gray, R.C.A.F., who passed away Dec. 13, 1962.

Justice Costs Up Slightly

Hearing of committee reports took up much of the time during yesterday's first day meeting of the December session of Hastings county council.

Among those heard were the finance and public property committee report and the administration of justice report.

The last named report showed administration of justice costs for the first nine months of the year at $104,333 were up slightly over the same period, although the cost to the county was down.

This is the result of a new administration of justice agreement having been signed with Belleville and Trenton. Because of increased population these two municipalities are paying a greater share of justice costs.

Belleville's share for the first nine months was $30,464 compared with $30,841 for the same period last year, and Trenton's share was $15,089, up from $13,712 from last year. The county share dropped from $47,728 to $30,172.

The Public Schools Consultative Committee report was given by Chairman Don Rodors of Stirling. Marmora Reeve William Shannon reported for the Secondary Schools Consultative Committee.

Clare T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings East, told council that the Ontario Municipal Board had given advance approval for the construction of the new central school in Tyendinaga.

Total cost of the nine-room school is about $260,000, including site, building and furnishings.

Hugh Murray Construction of Belleville was the low bidder at $228,000.

ARDA Committee Set Up by Hastings

Hastings county next year will set up a committee to deal with special development projects in the area which might be carried out with government financial assistance.

The recommendation for setting up the committee was made at Monday's meeting of county council by a special committee headed by Marmora township reeve John Wilkes.

A standing committee to be known as the county Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act committee will be composed of four county council members of the 1967 council.

Also a 20-member advisory committee composed of representatives from various county organizations, will be named, the duty of the committee being to suggest and correlate development programs for the county.

Projects coming under an ARDA program could be agricultural redevelopment, including alternate land use, industrial development, soil and water conservation, wild life development, educational development or any other project which might help to increase income opportunities.

The advisory committee would explore all details of a development project before it is presented to the county council ARDA committee but no recommendation would be binding on county council or its representatives.

Councillors were told that already farmers in North Hastings had received ARDA assistance through a maple syrup cooperative, initiated in Renfrew, Lennox and Addington and Hastings counties.

Financial assistance for the Eldorado cheese factory addition had been secured, while farmers were seeking ARDA grants for fence removal and drainage projects.

Last year ARDA assistance had been secured for strengthening a bridge on the boundary of Hungerford and Elzevir township to allow development of a marble quarry.

The roads and bridges report submitted by Elzevir Reeve Clayton McMurray showed that as of Nov. 30, $994,352 had been spent on the county roads system. The total roads and bridges bylaw for this year was $743,412 of which $80,000 was allotted to the suburban roads commission.

In addition there had been $280,282 spent on development roads.

Construction projects completed during the year include a new bridge over Parks Creek built at a cost of $55,000, and reconstruction of a portion of the Springbrook road (now nearly completed).

A contract for the supply and erection of precast pre-stressed concrete girders for Fairfield's Bridge in Thurlow township has been awarded to Wilson Concrete at a price of $32,717. The girders are now under production and are scheduled for erection in 1967.

A development road project completed during the year was the hot mix paving on the Glen Miller road south of Frankford. Total cost of the project, including engineering, construction and land purchases, was about $449,000.

Construction is under way on reconstruction of a portion of the county road 12 north of Madoc and the general contract of Moffat Construction of Oshawa will continue through the winter months with rock excavation.

President for New College Likely to Be Hired in Month

TRENTON — Councillor Donald R. (Nick) Fraser, recently appointed to the board of governors of the proposed new college of applied arts and technology for this area, asked members of the Trenton Rotary Club last night that he would do everything in his power to see that the college was located in the immediate Trenton - Belleville area.

Councillor Fraser said the board hoped to convince ministers of education Davis Davis that the far flung "area" assigned as a site for one of the colleges, should be "split" into two parts.

A temporary name, "Area No. Three College of Applied Arts and Technology," had already been assigned for government grant purposes, Councillor Fraser said. He added he hoped the area would be divided into two parts and suggested Quinte Loyalist College as a fitting name for the institution.

Board members are considering sites, and hope to have one chosen by early February. They are also looking for an interim president and hope to come up with a man within a month. The person picked will then start to hire staff, as the college is scheduled to open by September 1967.

Man is standing on the threshold of startling developments, the councillor told his audience. Ontario has taken note of this tremendous knowledge explosion, and has taken steps to breach the gap between high school and university education.

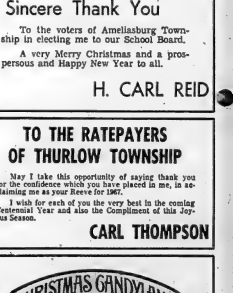
"More and more we need 'brain' workers. We can't ignore the work force that exists. Hundreds of thousands of adults must upgrade themselves. We can't ignore them . . . we can't do without them. Hence, the colleges of applied arts and technology."

The faculties will be comprised of technology courses; technician courses; business administration; faculty of applied arts and extension courses where university courses may be taken towards a degree. Three years in the college will equal one year in University.)

Councillor Fraser said the board had had only two meetings since it was formed, but hopes to meet with the minister of education this Friday or deal with suggested sites.

"The college will upgrade whatever area in which it is located. It will attract industry in search of persons with sophisticated skills. Initially, 25 or so teachers would be employed to teach approximately 250 students. Eventually, we would see 350 teachers instructing 4,000 students. The college would in itself be a fantastic contribution to the area in an economic and social sense. It would be designed to meet with local requirements."

Following Councillor Fraser's address, T. J. C. Ward, general manager of Pyramax, said it was his hope that the college would be located in this immediate area.



"Otherwise, this area will continue to be a 'dormitory' between Toronto and Montreal."

Councillor Fraser was introduced by Councillor C. V. Graham and thanked by Rotarian Ian Darling.

Dr. Richard Potter Wins PC Nomination on First Ballot

DR. POTTER AWAITS VOTE
Chats With Ted Schwab

A Belleville doctor defeated two other candidates at Trenton High School last night to win the nomination to represent the Conservatives in the Quinte Riding at the next provincial election.

Dr. Richard T. Potter, 51, defeated Belleville mayor Jack Ellis and school board chairman Macdonald Smith on the first ballot.

Over 800 people crowded into the auditorium. Of the 335 delegates invited to the meeting, all but one attended and cast their vote.

After hearing of his nomination, Dr. Potter said he felt humble because of the confidence the meeting had placed in him.

"I appreciate the sacrifices which will have to be made," he said. "These have all been discussed carefully with my wife and family before my decision was made.

"This is just a beginning. Now we must get out and work and work hard for the party to put the Progressive Conservatives in Queen's Park to represent this new Quinte Riding."

Mayor Ellis and Mr. Smith both pledged their loyalty and called for the meeting to offer Dr. Potter its full support.

There was little hoopla at the meeting last night, but intensity was high. Delegates started showing up almost two hours before the meeting.

Dr. Potter and Mayor Ellis both passed out campaign literature before the vote was taken and moments before the meeting opened, Mayor Ellis paraded around the auditorium led by a piper and followed by two standard - bearers carrying a banner reading "Ellis is Proven by the Polls."

A total of six persons were nominated, but three declined. Trenton councillor Paul Tripp, Quinte Riding president Ted Parker Jr. and association secretary Doug Whitley all acquiesced to the three serious contenders.

Bill VanTassel acted as chief returning officer.

Before the vote, Dr. Potter cautioned the delegates to consider what they expect of a candidate.

"He must have the ability, training and experience to give this riding the type of representation they have become accustomed to," he said.

"He must be one who you are sure can be elected and retain this seat for the Progressive Conservative Party."

Dr. Potter said he has been working closely with the government over the past 12 months because of the illness of Elmer Sandercock, retiring member of the old West Hastings riding.

"I've learned of the necessity of co-operation and good liaison with local authorities and above all, I have learned of the sacrifices one must be prepared to make if he is going to serve you well."

Mayor Ellis stressed the combination of youth and experience in his platform.

"We must realize we're going to meet a Liberal candidate who will stress youth and energy," he said. "And the Prime Minister of this province has sought to fill out his cabinet with youth."

He said 30 per cent of the voters are under 40 years of age and a third under 25.

The mayor said he is a proven vote getter, having won seven times in the past 10 years.

Smith said he has worked for the party since 1946 and is still prepared to work for it in any capacity including parliamentary representative.

"There is something more at stake tonight than just winning an election," he said. "Surely we owe the party and the riding something more.

"It is your duty to elect a man who first will be elected and secondly, when elected, will represent the riding well."

In declining to stand for nomination, Mr. Whitley said he had planned to run at one time until he found that Dr. Potter planned to contest the nomination.

"He's a grass roots Conservative," he said of Dr. Potter. "He's a worker and I offer him my support."

Mr. Sandercock told the meeting that once they had their man, they should go to work now and get the man in the field. He thanked the party for the support it has given him in his five elections.

Dr. Potter was nominated by P. C. McGuire and seconded by Carl Wesse. Douglas Burr nominated Mayor Ellis, seconded by Ridley E. Wallbridge. Raymond Zufelt and G. E. Thompson supported Mr. Smith.

Education Minister Lacks Crystal Ball But He Expects Provincial Vote Soon

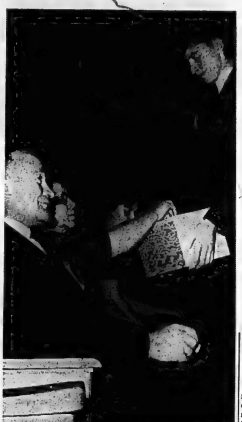
Minister of Education William Davis, though offering no dates, told Conservatives at their Quinte nomination meeting in Trenton to start working now for an election.

"I think we are going to have an election," he said, "but I don't have a crystal ball and can't say when. Only the Prime Minister knows that.

"Nevertheless, we have to be careful not to be complacent. We must get out now and work for an election.

"As Conservatives, you have something positive to sell. You have a positive position to put before the people."

He said the Government has good leadership and a good record and must be sold on that basis.



Mr. Davis said his department will spend some $837,000,000 this year on education. "I do not go before groups like this and make any apologies for the funds being invested in education," he said, "because it is one of the most important investments that can and must be made on behalf of all the people of this province."

Referring to the modern Trenton High School, he said, "It is highly desirable these plants be used for more than just the average school day."

He said he was pleased to see it being used for meetings and night school.

Mr. Davis said he is often asked about the need for area colleges of applied arts and sciences.

"Between 12 to 13 per cent of all young people in Ontario in the 19-24 age bracket are students in university," he said. "What about the others? Employers are demanding more now than high school education."

Trenton Ignored -Mayor

Mayor James Macdonald of Trenton charged last night his town has been ignored by the provincial government.

Addressing the Quinte Riding Progressive Conservative nomination meeting at Trenton High School, Mayor Macdonald expressed concern over the lack of recognition of Trenton by Queen's Park.

"With the help of the current treasurer," he said, "Trenton will soon be declared a city. With this new status, I think Trenton should be recognized."

He said there is only one small provincial building in the town and the Ontario government should build more.

He said the new riding is more compact "and points out the government realizes this area is due for expansion."

Mayor Macdonald said he wants Trenton to be in on that expansion.

Dance to Provide Funds For Underprivileged Flops

Only about 25 couples attended the buffet dance. Jim Cathcart of the Belleville Federation of Musicians, said: "Surely the public can take one night out, even if it is the busy season, to support a cause of this nature."

He said Club Canara donated the hall and supplied food for 100 couples at cost. Firemen helped with the organization and sold tickets. The 13-piece orchestra, organized by the local musicians, held many rehearsals and donated their services. Vocalist Arthur Duby also chipped in his services free.

This is the second consecutive year the effort has met with little success. "If we do it again next year," Mr. Cathcart said, "We'll have to do it earlier, say November, and get a better night.

"It's impossible to get a better night at this time of year because all the halls are booked up and can't be expected to be offered free, and the musicians are in the same boat."

Welfare Needs

As Christmas approaches it is disquieting to be reminded of the hardship which exists among some families in this community.

A recent letter to The Intelligencer and a survey of the welfare situation in Belleville conducted by the newspaper are pointers in this regard.

The letter writer claimed that while recent figures indicated the city welfare department had effected a saving of $11,464 over the previous half year's operation, there were just as many hardship cases in the city as ever. Furthermore, he said the assistance some families on welfare are receiving is being supplemented by agencies like the Children's Aid Society, the Red Cross and church groups.

There is a suggestion, too, that applicants for welfare are being received at city hall with rather less than open arms, and consequently they have felt discouraged about returning. One official — Children's Aid Society chairman Bernard Hurley — goes so far as to say people seeking welfare at city hall "are not being treated decently or with dignity."

In a sense it is encouraging to note at least one department which has been saving money. However, this is of little consequence when it is effected at the expense of needy people. Indeed, we have to agree with Mr. Hurley when he says "if there has to be a choice between generosity and welfare recipients being given too little, I think generosity is the answer." He points out, moreover, that only 20 per cent of welfare costs are a direct charge on the city taxpayers, the remaining 80 per cent being paid by the government.

One couple with nine children has received cheques of $25 in each of the last two weeks, not much considering the father is under doctor's care and unable to accept full-time work. He has been receiving about $29 a week take-home pay and is three months behind with the $30 a month rent for a house without water.

In a report on the welfare department following complaints last winter the city manager said its affairs had been administered "in a very capable manner." This may well be the case if economy is the department's only goal. However, there seems to be clear evidence that people in need are not being helped in a manner that their need justifies. This is a situation that ought to be remedied.

Medicare Closer

Medicare has won its final approval in the Commons. The nation-wide medical care program — due to come into being on July 1, 1968 — now comes to the Senate for ratification.

After such a tortuous passage Canadians may receive passage of the bill with mixed feelings. As with any plan of such magnitude, many are still uncertain what its provisions and benefits are. But very briefly and broadly it is simply a contributory compulsory plan, like those already in operation in a number of other countries, will ease the burden of payments that accrues from illness.

Just what will it cost? Well, the Government estimates that if all 10 provinces participated, the federal cost in a full year would be about $340 million. The provinces would have to pay another $340 million as their share. This $680 million estimate is based on a total medicare plan cost of $34 a year for 20 million Canadians.

And on a per capita basis that is surely not too great a sum to pay for the security the plan would ensure.

What is causing concern, though, is the possibility of existing hospital facilities and staffs being strained beyond their limits, by reason of the tremendous demands Medicare inevitably will impose on them.

Jackie Steps Out

Always a leader of fashion, she has perhaps been more reluctant than usual of late to embrace the swinging fashions of the moment.

But now she has taken the plunge as it were by appearing in New York in a dress with the hemline a few inches above her knees.

British designer Mary Quant, who started it all, doubtless will be pleased to hear of Mrs. Kennedy's conversion, however belated, to the "Mod" look.

"To me," says Miss Quant in her new book Quant by Quant, "a fashionable woman is one who is aware of the current style. She must have a personal style, be aware of it and wear those clothes that emphasize it. A fashionable woman wear clothes; the clothes don't wear her. Clothes are tremendously important. A woman knows instinctively if she is wearing the right thing. If she is, she immediately becomes more poised, more confident, more in control of any situation."

And that is the way (if a little shyly) Mrs. Kennedy looked when photographed in New York last week.

De Gaulle Puts End to Popular Paris Playground

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Shed a tear for those parliamentarians in Ottawa who may never see Paris again.

President de Gaulle is the villain of the piece with his hostile attitude toward the NATO alliance.

First of all he ordered Canadian and American troops and military installations out of France. Next thing, he placed the other allies in a position where they had no choice but to move the NATO council from Paris to Brussels.

And what that means is that those regular visits to Paris by Canadian Senators and members of Parliament will be a thing of the past.

From now on, it will have to be Brussels. And while the Belgian capital has its charms, it certainly is not Paris.

Just about every year, usually in November, a planeload of parliamentarians would fly to Europe aboard an RCAF transport, enroute to a meeting of the NATO Parliamentary Association.

They would usually stop off at Marville RCAF Base in France and then fly on to Germany to spend several days visiting the army brigade and the RCAF squadrons in Germany.

These were pleasant occasions. The Senators and MPs saw what the servicemen were doing, were briefed by commanders and heard background complaints about shortages of equipment, etc.

And of course there were those jolly evenings in the mess.

Then, the custom had been for the brave band of parliamentarians to fly on to Berlin for a few days. There they would inspect the notorious wall erected by the East Germans, get briefings from the West Germans and dine heavily and often on rich viands and who knows — maybe go to the opera.

But all this had been but a preliminary to the NATO parliamentarians meeting and a whole week in Paris.

The NATO sessions were held daily and they were useful and usually well attended by the Canadian delegates.

But they didn't take up all that much time. And there were many leisure hours to inspect the Louvre, Versailles, Napoleon's Tomb and the many other historical settings in Paris.

And there were those other points of interest — Place Pigalle, the Folies Bergere, the Lido Club, the Moulin Rouge — complete with ladies of pretty girls whose charms were displayed in a generous manner.

The visit of the Canadian MPs saw a good deal of formal entertainment too. There were dinners, luncheons, receptions and cocktail parties.

Our homespun MPs and Senators were led into glittering palaces through honor guards in brilliant uniforms. They lasted food that only the French can produce — and champagne too.

A few years ago a correspondent wrote some glowing about a visit to Paris by the Canadian parliamentarians. He was not flattering. He said some of the Members had not gone to the NATO meetings at all.

Most shocking of all, he claimed that a number of these elected representatives caroused all night and slept all day.

When this delegation got back to Ottawa and the sensation all articles appeared, there was bob to pay. The MPs concerned wanted to struggle the reporter, have him drawn and quartered and his head mounted on a pike on Parliament Hill.

Nothing happened of course but the MPs and Senators felt the writer could not have known about their Paris schedule because he himself had disappeared during that sojourn in the world's most beautiful city.

But, whatever their delegations were clean-living and hard-working or naughty and lazy, it appears that these marvellous visits to Paris are over.

Cleanliness Vital in Preventing Infection

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: This letter concerns a young man of 18 with hepatitis. Is it catching, and how? Does it recur later in life? Is it completely curable? What effect will it have on sex life? Does it resemble venereal disease in any way?

His mother is careful about his prescription and maintaining absolute cleanliness and great stress has been placed on rest, but no other comment by the doctor. There is additional distress because his complexion is bad — S. E.

You goddess mean infectious hepatitis. Hepatitis is inflammation of the liver. The infectious type has become very common — more than 33,600 cases were reported last year. But some experts estimate that there may be 30 cases unreported or undetected for every reported case.

Only a few infectious diseases exceed it in number — that is, diseases important enough to be reportable to public health authorities. Hence it is of utmost importance for people to be aware of it and know how to avoid it.

The virus of infectious hepatitis, as the name implies, can be passed from person to person. This does not mean that one is particularly likely to catch it from a fellow employee or from casual contact with someone on the street or in a bus.

Rather, the virus exists in waste matter from the body, or in contaminated water or food. Probably one of the prime methods of prevention is to wash the hands carefully after going to the bathroom, and before eating. Tests in clinics have shown that cross-infection by one person catching it from another by either direct or indirect contact — was reduced virtually to zero with the use of germicidal soap.

Cleanliness is the prime preventive, and since the disease strikes most frequently at children and young adults, it is one more sound reason for children being taught to wash carefully and keep dirty objects out of their mouths.

Seafood, especially shellfish, from polluted waters has been traced as a source, and that is why contaminated clam or oyster beds are closed by authorities as soon as discovered.

Certainly one should avoid swimming or wading in polluted water, but the most important preventive remains: Wash your hands.

As I said, infectious hepatitis is only one type, but others are of considerably different nature. Serum hepatitis is transmitted by a virus entering the blood stream, and toxic hepatitis, by which poison of some sort (sometimes alcohol!) damages the liver.

I'll answer the other questions tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are sickle cell anemia and abnormal hemoglobin? — P. D.

Sickle cell anemia is a form of anemia characterized by faulty, sickle-shaped red blood cells.

Hemoglobin is the part of the blood which carries oxygen — the iron part of the red cells. Hemoglobin is made up of various proteins, and abnormalities in these protein fractions can distort the red cell structure in various ways. Abnormal hemoglobin embraces as a group types. Consequently treatment is not always a matter of giving B1 liver or iron, but may call for something quite different, depending upon what kind of abnormality is present.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 78-year-old mother has a heart condition. She wears old-style garters which are rather tight. Could they impair circulation? — E.H.

Indeed they could.

CBC Program Hits Bottom

Vancouver Sun

Public revulsion against a new CBC television show called Sunday points up the necessity to accelerate the Commons' consideration of the government's reform proposals for Canadian broadcasting.

There is general agreement that the new show is infinitely more offensive to public standards of decency than the Seven Days program that precipitated the big row last summer. Canadians simply do not see why their money should be spent to pipe moral pruriences and technical flatulence into their living rooms under the guise of either art or entertainment.

Citizens look to Parliament to establish a chain of authority within the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to guarantee that production staffs adhere to guidelines of public policy as fixed by management. Management is responsible and must be held to its duty to manage. It is not doing its duty now.

The revolting material shown on the program Sunday merely shows how eagerly anarchy will rush in to fill a vacuum in authority. The lack of self-discipline of those so-called free spirits who manufacture this garbage does a disservice to every free-born living thing. It serves to combat the forces of censorship in this country.

Moira Authority

Letter to Editor

Property Purchase Is Essential

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I was disturbed to note in your issue of Dec. 9 that in the report of the meeting of the Moira River Authority the chairman expressed the opinion that the Authority should reduce the rate at which it is buying property for reforestation.

He gives two reasons why this course should be followed: it already has as much or more land under forest management than other authorities and that the municipal taxes on these properties are too great a burden on the Authority and on the participating municipalities.

He, apparently ignores the facts of the case.

The original report on the Moira River Watershed recommends that a total of 90,000 acres be required. In the eighteen years that the Authority has been in operation approximately one sixth of this amount of land has been purchased. At this rate it will require at least another 90 years for the program to be completed.

All the land purchased is in the participating municipalities, thus the taxes go back to the townships involved and since Belleville pays 60 per cent of the levy there is a net gain to the townships. In some townships the Authority is the largest single taxpayer.

It is imperative that the present rate of property purchase be maintained if not accelerated. Properties are becoming progressively more difficult to find at reasonable prices. One of the reasons for this is that much of the available land is being purchased by speculators and by wealthy individuals or groups for the establishment of private hunting and fishing preserves. One has only to go to a county tax sale to see this in process.

As the population grows there will be an increasing demand by the ordinary citizen who cannot afford property of his own for places in which to enjoy nature and to fish and hunt; publicly owned land is the only answer. The Conservation Authority is the best agency for the acquirement and management of such lands.

I trust that the opinions expressed by the chairman of the Authority do not represent the thinking of the majority of the members.

GEORGE WISHART,
154 Dufferin Avenue,
Belleville.

Marriage—Mirage or Reality

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Why does marriage seem to be such a difficult relationship?" asked a college boy in a bookstore; we were having coffee after a lecture. "I look around, at my parents and their friends, and it's a rocky road for almost all of them."

I couldn't refrain from quoting myself — an inexcusable habit, but occasionally a time-saving one. "A man," I said, "thinks he is marrying one woman and soon finds, to his bewilderment, that he has married at least four."

"How do you mean that?" he asked.

"Well, there is first of all the woman he thought she was; secondly, there is the woman she thought she was; thirdly, there is the woman she really is, and last, there is the woman she would like to be."

Then I added hastily: "And, of course, the same is true for the man in reverse. So that there are at least eight "people" involved in the marital relationship — and that makes a pretty crowded house, even without children."

"It's much too crowded," he agreed. "But what do you do with, and how do you handle, all those people in one marriage?"

"It seems to me," I replied, "that two of them on each side must go. For instance, on the woman's side both the woman he thought she was, and the woman she thought she was are figments of their imagination and not really people at all. They are just cluttering the landscape.

"As those two," I went on, "are the ones to get rid of. The ones that have to be kept are the woman she really is, and the woman she would like to be."

"But isn't the latter also a figment of the imagination?" he inquired. "What we would like to be is not what we really are."

"It is and it isn't," I said. "There is always a core of reality in what we would like to be — it represents a potentiality we recognize in ourselves. Unless a marriage can nourish and keep alive this potentiality, it has little to grow on.

"What happens in those rocky marriages is merely," I continued; "is that the spouses reject what their partners really are and what they would like to be, and resent the fact that they don't live up to the idealized fantasy that ignited the whole romance in the first place. They try to make the real person conform to the fantasy, instead of giving up the fantasy and adjusting to the real person. And the first, and hardest, job is knowing and accepting who the real person is among those ghosts and visions flitting around the house."

Sign Language

Atlanta Journal

Political campaigns come and go but political campaign signs often-times come and stay.

They are left tacked up on telephone poles or tree trunks or most anything else that doesn't move until the rains and the winds and the sun them on the ground. Then they stay there it seems like forever.

And political signs are not the only things signwise that ugly up the landscape. There are all sorts of advertising signs that are unlawful or unattractive or both.

And, to be fair about it, there are some interesting signs, too.

But the unattractive ones are sometimes found in such numbers that they become a blot on the outdoor scene.

Tax on Advertising Could Mean Higher Prices Says Institute

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal tax on advertising could rebound into higher prices, unemployment and restricted competition, the Institute of Canadian Advertising said today.

Previous suggestions for such a tax brought the institute out swinging with the most detailed presentation yet received by the Senate-Commons committee on its study of living costs.

The advertisers submitted a 12,000-word brief of their own on top of a 60,000-word independent study by economist O. J. Firestone of the University of Ottawa.

Both documents defended advertising against critics who have suggested that it feeds inflation and deserves being cut back. A federal tax has been suggested twice to the committee.

The brief said competitive advertising promotes higher quality, lower prices and product innovations. It frequently helped stabilize production and reduce production costs.

Few magazines or newspapers of any stature could survive without it, says the brief, and newspapers might jost up to 40 to 50 cents a copy.

The institute predicted dire problems with an advertising tax. Major companies, rather than risk losing a share of the market, might continue their advertising programs unabated, regarding the tax as just one more cost of doing business. Higher retail prices could well be the result.

RESTRICTS COMPETITION

If advertising was in fact cut back by the tax, competitive forces would be restricted. The best guarantee against price escalation would be weakened.

"Business firms would find that in a less competitive situation they could pass on cost increases to consumers. . . . Knowing that they could pass on higher prices . . . because of lessened competition (they) would be less prone to continue to search for economies and push hard for productivity increases."

Nor would the tax hit fairly on all sectors of the economy, says the institute.

Small businessmen, cutting from a smaller advertising budget, would suffer more, than large corporations.

The tax would rapidly deprive newspapers, radio, magazines, television and outdoor advertisers of considerable revenue.

Quoting Prof. Firestone, the brief asked:

"Who should say whether six varieties or 12 varieties of a particular product is the right number. . . ?"

If the decision was made by the government, it was tantamount to controlling production and distribution, which would slow down development of new procuts.

If the decision was made by inter-company agreement collusion was suspected.

"Or should the decision be left to the market-place, permitting the forces of competition to have their full play?"

The brief also quoted from the Firestone report in challenging claims that advertising spending is inflationary.

It reported the growth is advertising expenditures rince 1961 as 34 per cent, compared with a growth in disposable income of 49 per cent, in consumer expenditures of 43 per cent and in personal savings of 123 per cent.

"If higher income, and not higher advertising expenditures initially creates consumer demand pressures — a point of view our institute supports— then we suggest the way to deal with problems of a demand-pull type of inflation is through appropriate fiscal and monetary measures."

Prof. Firestone, vice-dean of the faculty of social sciences at Ottawa, draws other conclusions less favorable to the ad men.

CAN'T PROVE CLAIM

It cannot be proved one way or the other that advertising generally brings about lower per-unit production costs, as often claimed, he says.

Nor could it be said whether, in over-all terms, advertising had pushed distribution costs up or down.

Hospital Board Failings Detailed

called in by the board to resolve the administrative crisis which erupted in early October — described the board as "individuals who have a sincere and keen interest in providing good health facilities to the community.

"It is evident, however," went on the report, "that there are a number of factors which may have influenced the hospital's difficulties."

The report then outlined these seven points:

1: There are indications of disagreement within the board.

2: There is evidence that the board has digressed on occasion from its main function as a policy-making board, with some board members making direct contact with hospital personnel.

3: There is evidence that the board as a whole does not support the administrator.

4: A perusal of the hospital bylaws shows that certain senior members of the hospital staff are hired by the board of governors.

5: Individual prejudices may have interfered with sound policy-making, judgment and action.

6: Board members have occasionally been "lobbied" by medical staff and others.

7: There is evidence of some board failure to work closely with the medical staff and to recognize its problems.

In his comments immediately following this section, Mr. Haig says in his statement:

"I am not aware of any serious disagreement within the board. I would suggest that there must be differences in opinion or a very unhealthy condition would result."

Mr. Haig also said for many months the board has made "every sincere effort to work closely" with the hospital's medical staff.

But, he added, "there have been some problems beyond the control of the board in this regard."

Mr. Haig also noted the hospital was now operating under a "caretaker" administrator and nursing director, who will seek out their own full time successors in key administrative posts.

With these and other recommendations on improving communications with the hospital staff, Mr. Haig said the situation at Belleville General Hospital was showing improvement.

He said those closely associated with hospital affairs "feel already a lessening of tension and an improvement in morale."

Last night's meeting was called after public statements by some city councillors indicated that public representatives should be shown the OHSC report in full.

However, it already had been viewed by those council members who are appointed to represent the city and county on the board.

Mayor Jack Ellis, automatically a member of the board by virtue of his office, is the one member of city council who had officially seen the OHSC report in its entirety.

He was the first to leave the meeting last night — in a dash to the Quinte riding Conservative convention at Trenton where he unsuccessfully sought the party nomination.

However, today he repeated earlier statements in support of withholding the full report at this time.

"I would have to say I don't think it should be made public for the moment anyway," he added.

Asked if there was anything highly critical of the board in the report, the mayor replied: "No, not in my opinion. Certainly, I don't feel in the least bit accused at a member of the board."

Alderman Jack Allin, who called for council to view the OHSC report Nov. 24 also was at last night's meeting, but revealed he agreed to forego comment until the board made a decision on a public statement.

Told of today's release of last night's statement made by Mr. Haig, Ald. Allin expressed himself as "satisfied."

"If it publishes what he said last night it ought to suffice .We don't want to get into personalities. It ought to satisfy the people."

The meeting drew mixed reactions from several municipal representatives caught on the fly as they left the meeting.

Hastings County warden Clayton Hall merely said he had no comment.

Most vociferous in his replies was Ald. Arthur Keegan, who felt council should see the whole report.

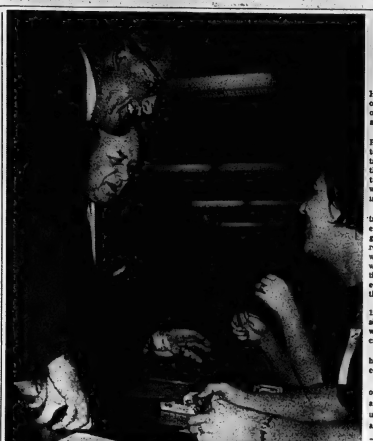
City council, he said, signified confidence in the board members when it appointed them.

"They should have equal confidence to reveal to us what caused the (administration) breakdown," he charged.

Ald. Ken Soden said he also attended the meeting under the impression the full OHSC report would be revealed.

"I still think council should be given the full report in camera," he added. "We should know what has been reported."

Ald. Douglas Boyle said he accepted the credibility of the chairman of the board. I'm satisfied with the resume he gave."



The local government group left the meeting before the board decided to publish the verbatim draft prepared from the OHSC report for the councilors.

At that time councillors Keegan and Enos David supported the idea that the statement should be made public.

"I think it should be published—what he told us there," said Ald. David. "Do you mean to tell me if you told 20 or 40 people there, it's going to be a secret."

Shortly before 8:30 p.m. Mr. Haig signified the board was willing to release the complete text of the synopsis given the councillors.

He and other board members reiterated the stand taken by the hospital governors since the report was presented Nov. 14 by OHSC experts—that it could not be fully revealed because of personal and legal ramifications.

Mr. Hees, Mr. Grills, I Assume...

Mrs. Max Haggerty welcomes George Hees and Lee Grills to Quinte Conservative nomination meeting in Trenton last night. The two were only federal-members at the provincial meeting.

Pearson Cabinet Unable To Make Decisions--Hees

Northumberland MP George Hees assailed the government of Lester Pearson last night as unable to make decisions and stick by them.

Speaking at the Quinte riding PC nomination meeting in Trenton, Mr. Hees said, "There is a tremendous contrast between the way the government in Ottawa is doing its job and the way the government in Ontario is doing its job."

He said there is also a contrast between the Pearson government and the St. Laurent government. "In the St. Laurent" he said, "there were men who could make decisions. Sure, we sometimes disagreed with those decisions, but we respected them and felt by and large they were doing a good job.

"And in our government from 1957 to 1963 I trust you will remember that the belief that we were capable of making decisions[illegible]

"But today in Ottawa, we have a government in complete contrast to those governments."

He said it's important to have our candidates in the field now and working to prepare for an upcoming provincial election and a federal election — the provincial sooner of course, though the federal may not be far away either."

Successful Living

Mentally Ill Father Needs Loving Care

DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: Perhaps you could some time print a few words of encouragement for those of us who do have to make the best of an unfortunate situations. My husband has a gradually deteriorating mental condition. I wish I could give our three sons all strength they need to grow up mentally healthy, but there are times when I, too, become swamped by circumstances.

We read so much of the necessity for husband and wife to work together for the children's benefit, but for many of us this is not always possible. We need to know that even when parents are not always in harmony, children do stand a chance of growing up without too much damage done to them.

There have been many times when life has seemed very dark, and for all of us in these times of trouble I would beg support and encouragement. —Standing Alone

P.S. I am lucky in being a nurse which gives me a little part time outlet: one weekly shift four to 12, and teaching prenatal classes. My heart goes out to those who have nothing to brighten their days.

Dear Standing Alone: I couldn't agree more. For many tough situations there is no magic wand.

Yet the human spirit is wonderfully resilient. It does survive cruel buffeting; especially if the knocks are cushioned by love. Spiritual resources, some outside interests for the one who carries the load; attention to physical well-being; these all help.

A harmonious home is the ideal, yet disagreements happen in the best of families. Home is the place where children should learn to handle their feelings of anger resentment.

If your children are old enough, interpret to them that their father is ill and needs loving indulgence. And find opportunities for them to know other non who are mentally healthy. A friendly uncle, a Scout leader, a male teacher — these are priceless assets where father is something less than adequate.

Above all else, give them love.

Dear Doris: Here are a few more hints for Jimmie, who asked your advice about handling onions.

For the weeps: Hold onion at arm's length and slightly above eye level. Most fumes travel vertically. For onion odor: Crush a generous slice of tomato in the hands, then work the juice well into the skin and under nails. Then wash with soap and warm water. — Bull Cook readers include peeling under water, removing root end last, washing hands in cold water, rubbing fingers with raw potato. Take your pick.

Dear Bull Cook: I'm not sure just how many cooks would be willing to take the suggested stance in order to avoid the fumes!

Confidential to Poor Luck Grandma: You are not the one who can handle your bullying grandson. Next time a swat from him could break a bone or two.

Comes a teimwhen even physically weak women must show the moral stamina to put things to rights. Have a policeman present when you give him his walking ticket.

(In it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.)

Ann Landers

She Is Busy Watching Surburban Wife Play

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was amused by your statement that the man who kissed his wife goodbye at the station every morning wasn't necessarily a true bliss husband. You may be right, but why doesn't somebody say something about the suburban wife? How true blue is she?

That goes on in my little neighborhood after the husbands leave for work would make Peyton Place look like a Sunday School picnic. My next door neighbor has been spending four mornings a week with an insurance adjuster. (Just how long does it take for a person to get her claim adjusted anyway?)

ANN LANDERS

The lady across the street fixes lunch every day for the real estate man who sold her the house four months ago. The woman two houses down has a plumber over there at least twice a week.

DEAR MONKEY: O.K. then, go ahead and watch 'em. I haven't time for such stuff. Who does your housework anyway?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about the woman who has asthma and hives and wondered what the doctor meant when he said she got them from her husband. She was reluctant to accept the doctor's diagnosis because she couldn't believe asthma and hives were "contagious."

Her letter was way out but your answer was perfect. I loved what you said about ulcers. And you were so right.

Ulcers are a sign of inter-personal problems but it isn't always the husband or the wife, Ann. It can be somebody else who lives under the roof.

Many married couples have a mother or a mother-in-law or a stepbrother or a great-aunt living with them.

These additions can be real trouble and often there is no way to get rid of them short of a family rupture. You have done a lot of good by declaring that a husband and wife owe their first allegiance to one another, and a third party who makes trouble between them should not be tolerated. I know about these things because I have both ulcers and hives — and a relative living with us. — X. PESHUPED.

DEAR X.: Thanks for your letter, and now that you know the cure don't just sit there — do something.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whenever we are invited to a small dinner party I bake pastry or an elegant dessert. Invariably the hostess says thank you (in haste), and puts my treat out of sight.

When I entertain and someone brings a treat I always serve it along with my own dessert and I thank the person in the presence of the others.

It occurred to me that perhaps I am being tactless since the guests who did not bring anything might feel uncomfortable. Please set me straight. — EUROPEAN.

DEAR EUROPEAN: It is not essential to bring a home-made goody when you come to a dinner party. Apparently you enjoy doing so, and I would not deny you the pleasure by suggesting that you stop. But to expect the hostess to serve your dessert is asking too much. Most people don't need one dessert, much less two.

Susanna's Family Fare

Inexpensive Boxwood Wreath

Dear Susanna: Here is an idea for a stunning inexpensive Christmas wreath for your front door.

Start with a potato about the size of a tennis ball. Run a double piece of wire through it and twist it at the bottom, leaving a loop at the top. This is your hanger.

Cut boxwood in lengths ranging from three to eight inches. Stick the potato full of the boxwood branches in a ring, with the large ones on the outside and the short ones in the centre. (The moisture from the potato keeps the boxwood fresh.)

In amongst the greenery, dot large red Christmas balls — the kind that come with a stem.

Complete the masterpiece by fastening a great, splashy red bow made of moisture-proof ribbon to the bottom.

These wreaths are so fresh and beautiful that believe me, any door would be mighty proud to wear one. — Mrs. Mayberry.

. . . or eat one!— Susanna

Dear Su: Nutcrackers are snappy for removing caps from screw-top bottles. — Mrs. T. Davey.

Christmas Mincemeat

By MARY MOORE

Would you believe we were in mincemeat up to and above our elbows?

This mincemeat is so rich with goodies it does not need meat. We have made it and sealed it in jars, stored it unsealed in the refrigerator, made it up into individual pies which we froze and have tasted it endlessly.

It also is the answer to Mrs. E.E.S. who wrote asking for my "very best mincemeat."

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice, Boiled Ox Tongue, Raisin Sauce, Kernel Corn, Creamed Shredded Cabbage, Jellied Fresh Fruits, Christmas Shortbreads, Coffee.

CHRISTMAS MINCEMEAT DE LUXE (makes 6 deep 9" pies)

2 cups sugar (use 4 cups if you have a very sweet tooth)
1½ lb. (2 cups—not packed) chopped suet
2 cups dark sultana raisins
1 cup seeded Muscatel raisins
2 cups currants
2 cup mixed orange and lemon peel
1 1-3 cups chopped blanched almonds
1 cup (packed) mixed red and green glace cherries grated rind and juice one large orange
2 tsps. salt
2 tsps cinnamon
2 tsps nutmeg
¼ tsp cloves
1 tsp rum flavoring
2 tsps brandy flavoring (see notes below)

I used 22 Courtland apples As you chop them frequently sprinkle with all of the sugar to prevent browning I used a glass dialpan for mixing Add suet and all of the fruits and nuts, grated orange rind and juice. Mix together the salt and spices and sprinkle over top Now with your clean hands or very strong wooden spoon mix thoroughly

There are two alternate methods you may use for cooking this: 1) Turn into roasting pan with good cover and cook in oven at 275 deg Fahr Have waterpan below all the time Stir at least 3 times during heating period It requires about 2 hours to come to boiling point When it bubbles it is done Stir in flavorings and pour into sterile jars and seal. (OR 2) Turn into heavy preserving kettle and stir constantly over medium heat until boiling This is very hard to do and requires a strong right arm like mine The oven method is easier and better. Remember to add flavorings before bottling This amount yields 12 or 13 16-ounce jars or about six 32-ounce quarts Plenty for six 9-inch mince pies

NOTE: If you cannot purchase rum or brandy flavorings in your area substitute vanilla or add ¼ cup real brandy or rum

AOTS Club Entertains Scouts, Cubs

It was "Scout and Cub Night" at the Bridge St. AOTS Men's Club last Wednesday evening. This annual supper-meeting is always anticipated with enthusiasm by both groups, and a good turnout is expected. So, as soon as the "come and get it" signal was given, all seats were filled.

President Dave Thompson was master of ceremonies, and was assisted by David Mc-Clintock as sgt.-at-arms, Alex Gordon as pianist and Vic White as song leader. Afternoon group No. 3 U.C.W. served the supper, featuring Kentucky fried chicken with all the trimmings and pie. The hearty supper and sing-song which followed induced a happy friendly atmosphere that prevailed throughout the evening.

The evening devotional was given by Mr. J. G. Demeza, on the subject, "The Boy, the Youth and the Man — Jesus Christ."

The speaker referred to various passages of Scripture, confirming his statements that Christ was a boy with a real mission in life, and was ever eager to grow mentally for the difficult work that he knew lay ahead. As a youth he became intimately involved with the Scriptures of that day and was never found using his ability to serve those in need. He was suggested to all present that although they might not hope to make the contribution that Christ made in his short life of 33 years, an age abounding with opportunities to serve their less fortunate fellowmen.

A pleasing event of the evening was a film showing some highlights of the Scout and Cub camps at Oulet Beach and Presqu'ile, put on and described by Bill Williams, assistant Cub leader. This brought out many laughs and happy memories of warm nights and days to a number of those present. The Cubs' choir next rendered a group of songs, action and other popular melodies, displaying considerable ability in choral work.

Before closing, the president extended the appreciation of the Club to the Cubs for their services in connection with the supper; also to the Scout and Cub leaders, and district leaders, for co-operating in arranging the attendance of the boys.

Frank Johnson of the scouts, and Billy Williams, Jr., of the cubs, expressed the pleasure of their group in being invited for supper and the program that followed. Leaders and assistant leaders of the Scouts and Cubs attending were Andrew Robb, Ray Brown, Bill Williams, Mrs. J. Brown and Mrs. E. Thompson.

Club appreciation for the presentation of the young guests and their leaders, was expressed by vice - president Bob Cruickshank.

How Christmas cards represent the truths of Christmas was the theme of a talk given by Rev. R.A. Carrots Are Best Buy For Economy, Health

OTTAWA (CP) — Housewives concerned about rising food costs can relax around the carrot counter. This vegetable is good value right now, thanks to large crops, especially from Ontario and Quebec.

Of course the carrot should be a regular on most tables anyway. It's one of the group of "yellow" vegetables that Canada's food authorities recommend serving once a day for their vitamin A and minerals.

The carrot in a perforated plastic bag in your grocery store has been graded Canada No. 1. Packages may show the size of the vegetable inside and if they are already washed, that will be marked on the bag as well.

To cook a carrot, pop it in a small amount of boiling salted water. About 1¼ pounds of carrots serve six people. For this amount of vegetable, use about three-quarters of a cup of water. Carrots cut in flagers, which cook in about 11 minutes done this way; cut crosswise they'll take about 15 minutes to boil tender.

You can serve them simply buttered, with pepper and salt, or jazz them up with a sprinkle of chopped parsley or dried onion.

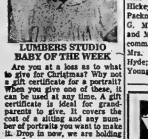
Or for company, add about two tablespoons of butter and a tablespoon of honey to cooked drained carrots, and shake around over the heat for two or three minutes till nicely glazed.

University Women's Club Holds Party

On Wednesday, at the Shrine Club, the Women's University Club of Belleville and District enjoyed their annual dinner party. Christmas decorations and place cards contributed to the festive atmosphere.

After the tasty dinner of traditional ham and turkey, Mrs. R. G. Walsh, the president, wittily announced awards for recent personal or general contributions to national development. The recipients were Mrs. R. S. Beamish, Mrs. E. DeTrez, Mrs. E. A. Manderville, Mrs. D. T. Thompson, Mrs. W. S. Babbitt, Mrs. H. R. Graham, Mrs. F. H. Bellisdel, and Mrs. R.W. Camm.

As an all Christmas dinners, a warm welcome was extended to former members and new members. Miss F. Dewey, Mrs. O. J. Jones, and Mrs. R. H. Cunningham have returned after being away from the community for some years. Introduced were new members; Miss E. Cameron, Miss M. Fisher, Mrs. P. M. Howe, Mrs. R. F. W. Healy, Mrs. F. W. Kitlam, Mrs. E. D. Lane, Mrs. W. G. G. Mackley, Mrs. D. A. Sinclotosh, Miss Lynda Overy, Mrs. C. H. Patrick, Mrs. J. D. Swann, Miss Jean Williams, and Mrs. C. Savage.



PRESENT PLAY

The program consisted of an original play, "The Voices of Christmas," written and directed by Mrs. R. E. Jeffrey, the Imago Maker and advertising executive; Mrs. R. H. G. Cunningham, the Clergyman; Mrs. F. H. Bellisdel, the poet; Mrs. R. E. Patterson, the woman; and Mrs. R. M. McNicol, the child.

The club is grateful to Mrs. J. E. Nelles and Mrs. E. A. Manderville for arranging this successful party, to Mrs. R. S. Burtt for help with the table decorations, to Mrs. D. T. Thompson for telephoning, and to Mrs. E. A. Manderville for the favors.

According to custom, unwrapped gifts were brought for the mentally ill. Mrs. W. N. Hurst has announced that this year they will be sent to the hospital at Cobourg.

Canadian Cook Book Reveals Queen's Treat

Enterprising homemakers will be able to take part in Canada's Centennial year by serving distinctively Canadian dishes as white they will find in "The Laura Secord Canadian Cook Book", soon to be published in both English and French by McClelland and Stewart.

Compiled by members of the Canadian Home Economics Association in collaboration with Laura Secord Candy Shops, these truly Canadian recipes include such regional specialties as poached eggs in maple syrup, quiche Maritime, early Ontario sour cream biscuits and, from Calgary, a prized recipe for white butter stew, the official dish for Stampede Week'.

Old and honored recipes such as braised tongue from New Brunswick, the favorite dish of Sir Jonathan McCully, one of contrast with popular contributions from new Canadians that include Italian-Canadian pizza.

Each recipe has been thoroughly tested by members of the Canadian Home Economics Association and, in some instances, by many others, judging by the following preface and recipe from "The Laura Secord Canadian Cook Book."

~DON'T WANT FRILLS

TORONTO (CP) — Rada Costa, an Italian-born social worker, says immigrant parents are worried about those kindergarten scrawls that make Canadian parents proud. Mrs. Costa says Italian parents, remembering what European schools are like, are shocked when children proudly bring home drawings but no textbooks or homework.

Co-ordination was the dominant theme of the preview, in which colors ranged from navy blue and white to brandy and beige tones.

CADET STYLE POPULAR

The cadet style was favored for spring coats, with the small stand-up collar completely encircling the neck or with an opening at the throat. Matching skimmers shaped closely to the body with gentle flare to the skirt helped create the domino look. They are available in a variety of soft shades such as buttercup yellow, sherbet orange, off-white, subtle green and stronger tones of lemon and lime.

Attention was drawn to pocket details, colored stitching, and novelty buttons including continential buttons in metal.

The tent silhouette featured in some spring coats has been tamed for 1967, with carefully controlled swing moving to the back and the waistline suppressed in front. Designed to slip easily over almost any outfit, it's practical for day and evening wear.

100-year Old Articles Considered Antiques

Antiques have just become newer, legally. On October 14, 1966, President Johnson signed a bill that changed the legal age of an antique entering the United States. The original bill affecting antiques was passed in 1930. It stated that an antique made prior to 1830 was old enough to be free of duty when entering the United States. Now any antique made prior to 100 years before its date of entry can be admitted to the country duty free (Public Law 89-651, D, section 4).

Antique collectors in the United States have been collecting Victorian wares for many years and now, at last, it is possible to bring pieces back from Europe or Canada without paying duty. Next time someone asks you how old an article must be to be called an "antique", just tell them that according to the U.S. government it must be 100 years old!

Ebenezer Christian Reformed Church, Trenton, was the setting recently, when Marsha Scholten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Scholten, Stirling was united in marriage to Michael Voskamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Voskamp, Trenton R.R.4. Rev. R. Popma was the officiating clergyman, while Mr. Dick Wiskerke provided traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mr. Paul Jamain.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor length gown of peau de soie with the Empire styled waist with long fitted sleeves. The back of the dress was highlighted with a sweeping lace train which extended from the shoulders. A beautiful veil was caught with a floral headdress adorned with pearl tear drops. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Mrs. Betty Shannak of Stirling was matron of honor wearing a floor-length three-piece gown of gold peau de soie featuring an overblouse adorned with lace, with a lace wedding ring headdress and carried a bouquet of bronze 'mums. The bridesmaids Miss Ann Hayring of Oshawa and Mrs. Harry Voskamp of Trenton were dressed similarly to the matron of honor, but in blue and each carried a bouquet of blue tinted 'mums. The little flower girl was a niece of the bride Miss Darlene Shannik, who wore a floor length gown of gold peau de soie with matching headdress and carried a tiny basket of white, yellow and bronze 'mums.

Mr. John Voskamp attended his brother, while Mr. Gerald Vanderlaan and Mr. Dick Voskamp, brother of the bridegroom were the ushers.

A reception was held in the church auditorium where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece red and black knit dress with a corsage of red roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a blue and black brocade sheath dress with a corsage of yellow roses.

Leaving on the honeymoon trip to Toronto, the bride wore a two-piece suit with black and blue accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The Experts Say Buy the Little Woman Lingerie for Christmas

MONTREAL (CP) — If you're a man who'd like to buy your wife some filmy lingerie for Christmas but are afraid to venture into the lingerie department, take heart.

A woman who deals in lingerie says that when you realize how much your gift will be appreciated it should be easy to overcome your shyness.

"Woman is queen in the boudoir and a truly romantic man will let her know it," says Janet Acheson, divisional commodity merchandiser for Eaton's.

"More and more men are losing their reticence to come into the lingerie department and select a negligee or some other frilly item they would like to give the woman they love.

"And there is no doubt about it, a woman who receives such an intimate gift from her mate may be assured he cares enough to dress her in the most alluring outfit his ego can conjure up."

Miss Acheson regrets there are still some who regard the lingerie department or boudoir as no-man's land.

"Rather, they forgo one of the loveliest tributes they can pay to woman and instead buy an automatic can opener or some other necessary piece of merchandise.

"Most men do not realize their lady fair often suppresses the urge to splurge part of the family budget on a lacy gown or peignoir because the children need new shoes or winter coats, so it's up to the gentleman to come to the rescue."

READY TO HELP

Miss Acheson says buying lingerie need not be an awkward experience because most department stores and boutiques have qualified sales people who are happy to help when given some idea of what is wanted.

"The strongest demand is still for sheer black or red items, although such scrumptious sherbet shades as peach and lime as well as butter yellow, nude and delicate blue all make up some of the most enticing sleepwear and day wear on the market."

Before setting out, you'll need the correct size. If her dress size is 8 to 10, lingerie marked petite is right, 12 to 14 indicates small, 16 to 18 medium and 16 to 18 large.

When the saleslgirl knows whether she is tall or short, fair or dark, she'll be able to suggest suitable styles and colors.

"Prices need not be a burden although, it is pleasant, to note, most men do not care what it costs as long as it looks fabulous."

Negligees, coat and nightgown ensembles—may range from $15 to $25 with higher-quality imports from $30 to $200. Nightgowns alone begin as low as $5 and increase with quality to about $30.

BIKINIS IN STYLE

"Gaily-printed bikini panties with matching petticoats, which are the rage on the fashion scene, start at $4."

While Christmas, birthdays and anniversaries are obvious times for such purchases, "try surprising her with something lacy for no reason at all," says Miss Acheson. "It is absolutely astonishing how much more womanly a busy housewife and mother becomes."

Miss Acheson also has a hint for the recipient: "Never return or question the reason for such a gift, but accept it graciously and charmingly."

Lina Taylor, perfume and cosmetic co - ordinator for Eaton's, suggests that after selecting the lingerie the male shopper may want to round out the day with the purchase of a bottle of his (not her) favorite perfume.

A woman should wear the scent that pleases her mate, as she is not supposed even to smell it. If she does, she is wearing too much."

U.C.W. Meetings

FOXBORO — The afternoon and evening units of Foxboro U.C.W. joined together for a pot-luck dinner in the Sunday School hall, recently.

After a bountiful meal, a worship service based on the Christmas theme was conducted by Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Carter representing both afternoon and evening units. Mrs. I. Badgley sang an appropriate selection. Mrs. Gilbert also assisted during this portion. Mrs. Earl Defoe read an interesting story about the carol "Silent Night" and the worship service concluded with the singing of this old favorite.

The program was under the direction of the evening unit with Mrs. F. Spencer and Mrs. G. Defoe in charge. Readings were given by Mrs. Kilpatrick, Mrs. Stewart and by Mrs. Dudley. Mrs. W. Rombough sang two selections. The executive of Mrs. Hayton, Mrs. McKeown, Mrs. Jamieson and Mrs. Rombough took part in a short play entitled "The president's dilemma".

A brief business period followed, and the meeting closed.

Liberal MPP Urges Probe of Firms Trading on Names of Big Companies

TORONTO (CP)—A Liberal member of the provincial legislature called on the Ontario government Monday to find out how many firms "are obviously trading" on the names of larger, well-established companies.

Vernon Singer, member for Downsview, said in a statement action should be taken, where possible, to change names that conflict.

He said the names Prudential Finance and North American General Insurance Co. "have caused some people anguish because they can be confused with Prudential Insurance Co. of America, Prudential Assurance Co. of England, North American Life Assurance and North American Life and Casualty."

He mentioned the recent collapse of Prudential Finance Corp. and some of its allied companies, including North American General Insurance Co.

The Ontario government should also institute deposit insurance for banks, trust companies and similar institutions to protect the public in the event a company gets into financial difficulties, he said.

"To get the insurance the company would have to meet certain standards and would be subject to frequent government inspection."

Mr. Singer said the government should also speed implementation of the new securities legislation.

"The attorney general should give his undertaking that the Ontario Securities Commission's report to him on the financial affairs of Prudential Finance will be made public at the earliest possible date. . . ."

'Theft' Way Sharp Describes Disappearance of Securities

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp Monday described as "theft" the disappearance of $530,000 worth of securities from the books of a bankrupt insurance firm.

He told the Commons he will meet the Association of Canadian Insurance Companies to discuss tighter federal regulations to prevent similar occurrences in the future.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker referred to the collapse of North American General Insurance Co., a firm with a federal incorporation, and called for a royal commission inquiry into the recent "tendency" of companies to go bankrupt.

Mr. Sharp said the federal superintendent of insurance, Richard Humphrys, discovered the "theft of securities" a few days before North American and its parent firm, Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd., collapsed last month.

He said North American made investments that were entirely legal, but it had purchased stocks that never had been delivered to the company.

Mr. Sharp said he will discuss with the insurance companies' association new legislation to protect stockholders in federally - incorporated insurance firms.

He noted that British and foreign insurance companies operating in Canada are required to deposit their securities with the finance department. This requirement might be extended to Canadian firms.

To Mr. Diefenbaker's call for protection for shareholders in federally - incorporated companies, Mr. Sharp said he didn't think there was any way to legislate against "theft and fraud of this kind."

Mr. Sharp said the theft of securities was discovered during an audit "early in November." Just as soon as the discovery was made, the licence was suspended.

The report that North American General Insurance Co., which has its head office in Montreal, was missing some $530,000 in securities came Saturday.

MPs Offer Ways to Get Needed Pensions Money

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons returns today to debate on the government's plan to add $30 monthly to the incomes of needy old age pensioners.

Members didn't make any legislative headway on the proposal Monday, but some of them suggested where the government could get the money to give the $30 increase to all old-age pensioners.

They proposed cuts in other expenditures—for defence, the CBC and Expo 67.

MPs got off to a fast start in Monday's sitting by taking less than two hours to give second and third reading to a bill guaranteeing vacation and holiday pay to stevedores working for more than one employer.

In contrast, it was the third day spent on second reading of the pensions measure, which the government hopes will come into effect Jan. 1. First supplementary payments will not be made until March.

HIT 'MEANS TEST'

Opposition parties continued to lambast the government for what they insist is a return of the means test to old-age pensions, a charge denied by Liberals. Conservatives and New Democratic MPs want the government to pay the $105 to all pensioners.

Grace Macinnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) and H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) suggested pensioners might not gain as much as they expected under the supplement plan. Both were concerned that provinces would cease making supplementary welfare payments to pensioners who got the full $30 monthly from the federal government.

Mrs. MacInnis said the Commons should be assured this wouldn't happen before the bill is passed.

Mr. Olson said it is possible that some pensioners will get the $30 and still be worse off than before. In Alberta, he said, the province gives pensioners a medical card entitling them to free services along with the welfare payments.

Loss of the card alone could leave Alberta old-age pensioners in worse straits than before.

ANSWER MINISTER

Two Conservatives and Mr. Olson had an answer for Transport Minister Pickersgill, who last week wondered where all the money would come from if the government bowed to opposition demands and gave all pensioners the $30-a-month increase.

Dr. P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) said big savings could be made in the defence department, the National Arts Centre, Expo 67 or on the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The CBC budget also could be cut. The television show Sunday could be done away with "and all of us would have a little cleaner conscience because all this program had done is destroy the sanctity of the home."

Douglas Altenbrack (PC — Prince Edward - Lennox) suggested the government save money "in the defence department, on the many royal commissioners it has sponsored . . . and on the policy of bilingualism and biculturalism which has cost this country more than $500,000,000."

Mr. Olson's idea was to slash the CBC outlay.

"After all the rubbish and trash the CBC has shown . . . the House could do a great service culling the CBC budget," he said.

Liberal James Brown (Brant-

$94 Million In Pension Fund

OTTAWA (CP) — Contributions to the Canada Pension Plan from Jan. 1 to March 31 amounted to $94,880,312, says a report tabled Monday in the Commons.

Investments in federal and provincial securities earned an additional $36,750. Administrative costs came to $5,511,206.

The report, signed by Joseph Willard, deputy minister of the national welfare department, said $94,853,000 was invested in securities issued by governments.

Contributions to the plan came from residents of all provinces but Quebec, which has its own plan.

He said he continued to have doubts about the bill and wondered how many civil servants would be added to the federal payroll because of it.

Pension Cheques Won't Be Early

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen told the Commons Monday that old age pension cheques will arrive on schedule sometime after Christmas and not before.

Replying to Alfred Hales (PC —Wellington South), Mr. MacEachen said he considered a suggestion that the cheques be mailed earlier for Christmas but rejected it as not being in the best interests of most pensioners.

The extra week's gap in receiving the January cheque made the suggestion not feasible, he said.

Wentworth Insurance Co. Title To Securities 'In Some Doubt'

TORONTO (CP)—Title to certain securities held by Wentworth Insurance Co. of Toronto, subsidiary of bankrupt Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd., is "in some doubt," an official of the Ontario department of insurance said Monday night.

He said a petition for appointment of an administrator of Wentworth's deposit with the department is expected to be presented in court later this week.

The company has been operating on a discontinuing licence since July 1. It wrote no new business since then and has been allowing existing policies to run out.

Wentworth advised the department in March that it would merge with North American General Insurance Co. of Montreal, which is in liquidation.

Tinsel Trees Criticized By Vatican

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Vatican City's daily newspaper sternly criticizes tinsel-covered Christmas trees and vulgar street decorations in Italy.

It complains the trees have become more important than traditional nativity scenes in many Italian homes.

Christmas trees are a north European tradition and it is vain for Italians to try to imitate a ritual act by people "more closely bound to nature than we are," L'Osservatore Romano says.

"What ought to be a decoration in honor of a sacred feast is transformed into a masquerade and, in addition, a masquerade of bad taste," the newspaper says.

Subway Priority Queried

TORONTO (CP) — Samuel Cass, Toronto traffic commissioner, says passenger volume in public transit systems of the dropping so fast that the city should re-evaluate its priority on subway construction.

In an interview Monday, Mr. Cass said the habit of driving downtown is so strong that no more than 10 per cent of Toronto motorists would leave their cars even if subway rides were free.

Metropolitan Toronto's ewtial-spending program over the next five years allocates $132,000,000 for subway and other rapid transit facilities, he said, compared with $85,000,000 for expressway construction.

Toronto Board Rejects Elmvale Expo Plan

TORONTO (CP)—The management committee of the Toronto board of education Monday unanimously rejected a plan from Elmvale Expeditions Ltd. to take masses of students to Expo 67.

A six-page report on the plan questioned Elmvale's intention to use student deposits to finance service installations at a campsite outside Montreal.

The report also said that Edwin Crerar, general manager of Elmvale Expeditions, "does not appear to have had any experience with a project of the kind proposed and involving large numbers of students."

The board staff "is doubtful that the necessary installations for water, roads, electricity, feeding and sewage disposal can be made between the spring thaw and May 2, when the first camp is scheduled to open," the report said.

Mr. Crerar, a high school teacher at Elmvale District high school near Barrie, plans to take a minimum of 100,000 students to the campsite where they would do their own cooking and camping under the supervision of teachers and parents.

At a rate of 5,000 students a week, Mr. Crerar calculated the cost for each student would be $34 for the week, plus transportation to and from Montreal.

Moira

MOIRA — Mr. and Mrs. John Holden, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Farrell, Mr. Donald McInroy, Mrs. Wallace McInroy and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Farrell attended the Huntingdon Sunday School concert held at West Huntingdon United Church on Friday night. Mr. Don Hodgins of Tweed was guest speaker.

Mr. Floyd Vanderwater has been moved to Kingston from Belleville General Hospital for further treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Billie Vardy of Stirling visited on a birthday dinner at the home of her daughter, Mrs. David Mumby and Mr. Mumby, on Friday.

On Saturday evening friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Thompson to honor them on their recent marriage. A short program was conducted by Owen Ketcheson. Mrs. David Mumby read an address and the couple were presented with a gift.

HS Band Gives Concert

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford District High School Band held a concert in the High School auditorium on Saturday evening.

Despite inclement weather a large crowd attended. Mr. Jack Parker is the new band director. Mrs. Parker also assisted in the program playing a trumpet duet with Mr. Parker, also a solo work.

Nancy Hermiston, a popular high school vocalist contributed two numbers, accompanied by Laurie McIlreith. Jim Donald rendered a piano solo and was accompanist for Mr. and Mrs. Parker. The trombone selections were given by Jim Crover, Jim Frederick and Grant Wilson, giving ample evidence of the talent in the band.

Mr. Francis DeCotret of the CDHS staff appeared as guest soloist.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Annual Yule Party

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Senior Citizens held their annual turkey dinner in the newly decorated hotel on Monday evening, and returned after the dinner to their own rooms for cards and dancing.

Head table guests were president H. Cassidy and Mrs. Cassidy, Executive members, Mrs. Frieda Scott, Mrs. C. Shaw, Mr. Forrest Dennis and Mrs. Dennis, Mrs. J. Black, Mrs. Kay Tarsetti, Mayor and Mrs. Tanner, Mr. G. Locy, pianist; Dr. D. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, entertainment chairman; Mr. and Mrs. E. Craighead, welfare convener; Mrs. Max Capper, refreshment convener.

Approximately 125 members were present at the dinner which is a complimentary dinner given by the Senior Citizens Organization to members annually.

Work Stoppage Over at Penal Institution

CAMPBELLFORD — The work halt at the new Warkworth penal institution reached satisfactory settlement at a meeting on Monday forenoon with the general contractors and union officials. While the cause of work stoppage was not publicly revealed it is believed all trades working at the site were affected.

One worker who was not a union member was discharged because of insubordination to authority, other workers stopped work in sympathy. The matter has been settled and the men are back at work to complete the job on the institution which has so nearly reached completion.

100 Present For CWL Annual Dinner

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Catholic Women's League held its annual dinner in St. Mary's auditorium on Sunday evening.

The tree and decorations were of the Christmas season. All women of the parish were awarded lots to succeed further to membership. The high school girls of the parish were also in attendance making a total of about 200 present.

Guests were received by Mrs. Frank Dimmo, president of the League. Rev. Father Maloney of Norwood, formerly of Campbellford, Rev. Father Sullivan of Wooler and local priest, Rev. Father Walsh, were present.

The Campbellford Glee Club entertained with Christmas numbers. Gifts were exchanged and presentations made to Mrs. J. Dikun and Father Walsh.

Proceeds from the bazaar held recently were given to Father Walsh to purchase something for the new auditorium.

Large Crowd Attends Parade Despite Rain

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford held its annual Santa Claus parade on Saturday afternoon. Despite a steady downpour of rain, a large crowd was present, and 22 floats took part, some of the expected larger number withdrew because of weather conditions.

Five bands were interspersed in the parade, Peterborough Pipe Band, Belleville Pipe Band RCAF Pipe and Drum, Madoc Civic and Campbellford Civic.

Judges were Mrs. MacGreen and Mrs. Gerald Burkist. Prizes awarded first to Junior Farmer Organization with "The Night Before Christmas," second to Canadian Tire with "The Christmas House" and third to Campbellford Rotary Club with "Batman."

Honorable mention was also given to C.D.H.S. band and W. C. Jeffers with his antique steam engines.

Santa gave bags of candy and later the children were treated to a free movie at the local theatre.

Community Centre Is Near Completion

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Community Centre is rapidly progressing and the contractors hope to complete the construction by the end of February or early March. All precast work is completed on the office and lounge. Precast bleachers are installed, the block work is 70 per cent complete, all roof trusses are on and now all the trusses are installed deck work can begin.

The sand fill is in, this pellets the floor ready for the ice floor. It is hoped to begin roof construction by the end of this month.

The fact that the labor expense has been accepted as a local improvement will help in reducing the financial expense to the town and township.

The mechanical work has begun, sub-contracts having been let for heating and lighting to local contractors, the plumbing to a Trenton firm.

The artificial ice plant purchased some years ago is being adapted for use in the building.

A special canvass for funds has been undertaken to raise $25,000. Chairman Dante Pace reports the canvass is far from complete, the amount of cash and pledges to date is between six and seven thousand dollars. Members of service clubs have been canvassing for the fund raising project.

Jury Bill Passes 1st UK Test

LONDON (CP) — Parliament approved 6arly today the principle of criminal law reform after criticizing some features of the government's mixed bag of proposed changes.

The Commons accepted without a vote the second reading of the criminal justice bill, which would introduce changes ranging from majority-jury verdicts and restrictions on reporting committal hearings to a series of measures designed to reduce the prison population.

Despite the general approval, the government is facing pressure inside and outside Parliament to amend some measures in parliamentary committee before the bill comes back for final vote into law.

Quintin Hogg, main spokesman for the Conservative opposition, supported the proposal to introduce majority-jury verdicts —a vote of at least 10 to 2 instead of the traditional unanimous verdict.

WARNS MINISTER

But he warned Home Secretary Roy Jenkins, the bill's chief sponsor, against expecting "an easy ride" on committee because press, public and lawyers are divided on the issue. Other speakers said there is insufficient evidence of jury-tampering to support the majority-verdict compromeasure.

Hogg also approved controversial changes that would restrict reporting of preliminary hearings of criminal cases in magistrates courts.

Public reports on committal proceedings would be restricted to bare details—little more than the name of the accused and the charge — unless the defendant opted for publicity.

However, even as the Commons was debating the bill, pressure mounted from some news organizations against reporting restrictions. The northeast region of the British Guild of Newspaper Editors announced Monday it was petitioning MPs to safeguard press rights.

In the Commons, speakers criticized the bill for attempting piecemeal changes instead of major reform, including drafting of a coherent criminal code.

In addition to majority - jury verdicts and speedier committal proceedings, the bill would introduce a legal aid system whereby defendants would pay part costs according to means.

Habitual drunks would no longer be treated as penal cases, but would be sent to hostels on conviction. Corporal punishment in prisons—unused for four years — would be abolished.

To ease pressure on Britain's jails—the prison population has more than tripled in 30 years to almost 35,000—the bill would —Introduce a parole system in which prisoners would be eligible after serving one year or one-third of a sentence, whichever is longer. Prisoners now can get good - behavior remissions after serving two-thirds of a sentence.

—Introduce suspended sentences of six months or less for most first offenders.

—Increase the maximum fines that can be imposed in magistrates courts as an alternative to jail sentence.

—Give convicted persons more leeway for paying fines by instalments and possibly give courts the power to garnishee wages to meet fine payments.

Jenkins said the majority-jury verdict would make it harder to get an acquittal by tampering and bribery.

Jenkins said jurors in an attempted bank robbery trial were offered bribes of up to £600 ($1,800) to bring in not guilty verdicts. He said the bribes were offered by associates of the accused.

No Dec. 25 For Ship Passengers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Passengers aboard an ocean liner leaving Vancouver Monday will be able to celebrate Christmas for a few hours.

Commodore James Dunkley, captain of the liner Oriana, said the ship will disregard the international date line for a few hours to allow passengers a Dec. 25.

The ship technically would go from Dec. 24 to Dec. 26 when it crosses the imaginary mid-Pacific line.

University Worry

Ancillary Facilities a Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario universities face an "extremely worrying" capital funds situation during the coming years, A. Davidson Dunton, president of Ottawa's Carleton University, reported Monday.

". . . It is impossible to see how the needs of the next five years can be met unless there is a solution very soon" to the problem, the president said in his annual report covering 1965-66.

The provincial government has adopted a policy of providing 85 per cent of money for supposed academic facilities, the report said. The individual university has to raise the other 15 per cent.

But other facilities, "a union building, adequate space for meals and coffee sessions, reasonable gymnasium facilities," also are important to good university life, the president said.

For most of these facilities the university had to furnish 75 to 100 per cent of the funds from gifts.

Carleton sees "no possibility of adding the seriously needed ancillary facilities under present government policies unless substantial new private gifts come in. Furthermore, unless there is a change in government policy about capital funds in general, we shall be prevented from starting new academic construction for lack of the 15 per cent 'seed money.'"

Turkey Farms Are Busy Places... ...But Not Day Before Christmas

Believe it or not, one of the loneliest places come Christmas can be a turkey farm.

The explanation's elementary: After about six months of careful babying, the birds become the centre of a breeder's attention. Eid how are you going to keep them down on the farm with Christmas coming on?

Right now breeders big and small around the Quinte district are readying prime turkeys and poultry for the season's market.

And, the biggest district breeder hasn't a live turkey left in the place.

Sam Stirk, whose turkey farm east of Roslin rears between 2,000 and 3,000 birds annually, has just dressed his entire 1966 brood for dinner.

He began rearing them in May as day-old hatchery-purchased poults. In recent weeks, after months of diligent tending he put them on the block.

However, now that the fuss and feathers of the operation has died down, and the birds frozen ready for shipment, he admits to missing them about the place.

"You do get attached to them — though not to any one in particular," he says.

The Stirk operation provides Christmas tables with its poultry modern style — fresh frozen.

However, there still are some breeders who produce turkeys for the table the traditional way — fresh, period.

On his farm about two miles west of Tweed, Lorne Gunning right now has about 150 turkeys who won't go to market until much closer to Christmas Day.

He's been doing it for years — and has an established clientele.

Many of them go to local stores. The rest are purchased directly at the Gunning farmstead.

"People drive for miles around here", says Lorne. "They come from as far as Trenton and Napanee."

In an era of pre-packaging he adds, some still express surprise at what he has to offer.

"They say they didn't know there were any fresh turkeys around", he notes.

Still more deeply rooted in traditional Christmas fare is the goose — which once reigned supreme as the seasonal centrepiece before Europe discovered America — and its native hordes of turkeys.

There still are those in the Quinte district who show a preference for it — and their needs are catered to by at least one breeder.

Near Plainfield, Mrs. Violet Elliott is tending about 100 geese, with a handful of ducks included for good measure.

She finds a ready market each year for many of them with long-time customers. The balance are disposed on the farmers' market in Belleville.

Long Awaited Day Nursery School Ready to Care for City's Children

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

It's been a long long time, but the city's new day nursery, which earlier this year stirred up controversy both in and out of city council, has commenced operations.

Staff has been hired and is on the job, the equipment has arrived and the nursery actually started operations yesterday with five children in attendance.

City Welfare Administrator Dan Aitken says operations for the first week will be something in the nature of a "trial run" but early in the New Year the school is expected to be in full operation.

Official opening ceremonies are being planned for the middle of January.

Commencement of nursery school operations was expected much earlier but delays in getting plumbing done and other installations set back the date.

Mrs. Doris Durand, formerly with the local school for retarded children on John Street, and with many years' experience in nursery school work, is the supervisor of the city-operated school.

Her assistants will be Miss Linda Robertson and Mrs. J. MacMullen. When the school gets under way and the full complement of children arrives, other staff will be hired. The building and equipment is planned for about 35 children. Ages are three to five years.

Yesterday Mrs. Durand and her assistants were awaiting delivery of children's tables and chairs and other equipment. Toys, day cots, book racks, and so on, are already in place.

With three lunches or snacks to be provided each day, a well equipped kitchen is one of the more important departments of the school and the Fahey Street building has just that.

Mrs. Durand noted that some of the children will be at the school from as early as 7.00 in the morning until 5.30 or 6.00 in the afternoon — hence the reason for the three meals.

First lunch time will be at about 9.30, with another lunch period at noon and another afternoon break about 2.30.

The meals are all planned by qualified dieticians.

During city budget time late last winter, the proposed city nursery school was a bone of contention with councillors and also the general public having different views on the matter.

City welfare department officials claimed a nursery school would be a boon for working mothers and could result in lower welfare costs.

On the other hand some council members feared parents well able to afford the costs of private nursery school care would try to get their children into the city operated school.

City welfare department officials assured that the primary purpose of the nursery school was to assist welfare families where the mother worked. All applicants would be well screened and nursery school fees would be based on the parents' ability to pay.

Nursery school staff members were hired ipcally and are fully competent. Prior to coming to the Belleville school for retarded children some years ago Mrs. Durand operated her own nursery school at Middleton Park for eight years.

Fifty per cent of the day nursery school costs will be paid by the Ontario department of welfare.

Recipe For Success

Blues: Hustle Plus Muscle

NEW YORK (CP) — Adding hustle to muscle is paying off for New York Rangers.

The Rangers, usually at or near the bottom of the standings in the National Hockey League, are in first place for the first time in more than five years.

The last time New York paraded the head of the pack was Nov. 22, 1961, but Rangers could stand the prosperity only three days before dropping back. They finished fourth that season and lost in the Stanley Cup semi - finals to Toronto Maple Leafs four games to two.

The last time the Rangers finished first was 1942 and they lost 4-2 to Toronto in the semi-finals.

Before the current season started coach Emile Francis put together a team of the biggest players in the NHL and warned everybody to look out.

"This is by far the biggest club the Rangers have ever had," said Francis, noting that the average weight was 187 pounds with more than half the players reaching six feet or more in height.

"We've added muscle to our team this year."

He wasn't quite accurate because the Rangers already had lost of muscle and showed it by leading the league in penalty minutes with 896 while finishing last in 1965-66. They're right back at the head of the penalty parade again this season with more than 250 minutes.

Hustle and experience are the real reasons the Rangers are where they are.

Veteran players like Phil Goyette, Boom Boom Geoffrion, Donny Marshall, Earl Ingarfield and Harry Howell are now six among the top 20 scorers in the league.

And even Reg Fleming, picked up by New York last year to beef up the muscle brigade, has blossomed into a leading scorer as well as a top belter. He currently has nine goals and nine assists for 18 points, not bad considering he also has spent more than 70 minutes in the penalty box.

NEW YORK (AP)—Eight of the world's leading golfers, including the new PGA team champions Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, were honored Monday night on Golf Magazine's third All-America golf team.

Mo-Hawks Seek Revenge

Varsity Grads Here Tonight!

"From one extreme to the other" pretty well tells the story of the Belleville Mo - Hawks this past weekend.

After piling up their largest goal and point totals of the season against Orillia Friday (nine and 23), the Mo - Hawks run into a shutout against the Varsity Grads and big Jerry MacNamara on Sunday.

However, the Mo - Hawks will have their chance for revenge here tonight when the Toronto club makes its first visit to Memorial Arena.

And don't forget, tonight's game starts at 9.00, not the usual 8.30 Tuesday time.

The Mo - Hawks could have won Sunday's 3-0 game as easily as they lost it with a break or two around the Toronto net. Ludger Doucet played well and his mates came within a hair of beating MacNamara at least twice but Grant Moore broke the twin goose eggs at 16.03 of the third.

"Our kid line (Plane-McAlpine-McConnell) appeared to have that first big goal twice just before they scored", said coach Floyd Crawford, "and at that time of the game, the first goal is worth a million bucks."

Tonight's game is a big one for the Mo - Hawks in several ways. They will be again fighting to reach the .500 won-lost level, a plateau which they have gained but failed to pass on four occasions this season.

Belleville lies two big-time Guelph Regals for fifth place in the ten - team grouping. The Mo - Hawk visit Orillia tonight so a Mo - Hawk win is a must in case of a Guelph victory up north.

Last but far from least, the Mo - Hawks have a pair of real dandies coming up this weekend. They meet the second - place Woodstock Athletics here Friday and tackle the third - place Galt Hornets, in Galt, Saturday.

Crawford would love to get his boys moving good tonight and maintain a hot pace for the weekend toughies.

Giacomin, Rangers Tops In Defence

MONTREAL (CP) — With a bunch of blue - shirted New Yorkers in first place and Madison Square Gardens mad with joy, there's a man named Ed Giacomin creeping to the top of the National Hockey League's goalie parade.

Giacomin's goals-against average in the 36 games he played last season for New York Rangers was 3.65.

Now, in what has become the Year of the Rangers, Giacomin emerges from a pile of statistics released by NHL headquarters today with an average of 2.37, second - best in the league.

And, what's more, he tops the NHL in shutouts with three.

And, what's more again, New York Rangers have an over-all average of 2.46 goals scored against them and that's the best defensive performance in the league.

Grouted, Charlie Hodge of Montreal Canadiens has the best average this season for any individual netminder—2.04. But when the 2.91 average of the other Canadiens goalie, Lorne Worsley, is thrown in, the over-all goals-against average for Montreal comes to 2.52, good for second place in the team category.

The NHL landscape has a more conventional look to it over in the individual scorers' department.

STAN MIKITA

There, Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks has 38 points for a rousing 15-point lead over his nearest rivals. Mikita's total includes a league-leading 26 assists.

Tied for second are Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings and another of those bubbling Rangers, Phil Goyette. Each has 23 points.

Then come Ken Wharram of Chicago, Rod Gilbert of New York and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal, all with 22 points. Don Marshall of the Rangers, Dennis Hull of Chicago and Wayne Connelly of Boston Bruins are next with 21 each. Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs has 20 points.

Wharram, Gilbert and Marshall share the goal-scoring lead each with 13.

Are Bobby Hull of Chicago, last year's record - producing goals leader, has 10 goals and six assists this year, good for an official 21st place in the points list.

The Rangers' followers last saw New York grasp sole possession of the NHL's top rung Nov. 22, 1961. The New Yorkers dropped back after three days and finished that season in fourth place.

They have 28 points in the current campaign, one point ahead of the Leafs and Hawks and five up on the defending champion Canadiens.

Reg Fleming of New York continues to lead the penalty department with 78 minutes while his team is the league's most penalized with a collective total of 281 minutes.

In compiling the individual goals / against average, NHL statisticians take the total number of minutes played by a goalie, and calculate how many 60-minute segments the total makes.

Then they divide the number of 60-minute segments into the total number of goals scored against the netminder.

Out of this division process comes the goals-against process.

In Giacomin's case, his total minutes played came to 1,221, while Hodge has spent a total of 560 minutes in action this year.

The Ranger netminder has had 50 goals scored against him, Hodge 19.

Prodigal Howie Returns To Fold

DETROIT (AP) — Howie Young, the wild and unpredictable defenceman who holds the National Hockey League record for penalty minutes in one season, returned to the troubled Detroit Red Wings Monday.

The Wings, who have been having difficulty doing anything right on the ice, almost saw the trade nullified.

HOWIE YOUNG

First Detroit said centre Murray Hall and defenceman Al Lebrun, both 26, would be sent from their Pittsburgh farm club in the American Hockey League to Los Angeles Blades of the Western League for Young, 29.

But an unidentified NHL club indicated it would put in a claim for one or both of the minor leaguers when waivers were asked. A Wings' spokesman said Detroit had overlooked that possibility.

Both Lebrun and Hall were withdrawn from the waiver list. Finally, Sid Abel, general manager-coach of the Red Wings, worked out another deal.

NAMES SECRET

"We are withholding the names of the players at the request of the Los Angeles club," a spokesman said. "But both are unprotected minor league players and waivers will not be needed to clear them."

Detroit currently is in last place in the NHL and hasn't picked up a single point on the road.

Young will join the club Wednesday against New York Rangers along with veteran forward Andy Bathgate, recalled from Pittsburgh Monday.

Young was born in Toronto and played junior hockey with the Detroit farm system in Hamilton. After 2½ years in the minors—one with Chicoutimi of the defunct Quebec Hockey League, one with Rochester Americans of the AHL, and a part season with Hershey Bears of the AHL—Young was promoted to the Red Wings during the 1960-61 season.

Blues Accept Bid to Play Czechs

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey series have accepted a bid to play the Czechoslovakian national hockey team Dec. 26 in Windsor, it was announced Monday night.

The Blues, Canadian intercollegiate defending champions, were also to accept the invitation because they have not been invited back to two United States Christmas tournaments they won last year.

Because of the gap in their schedule, Toronto has also accepted an invitation to play Jan. 4 in a tournament at Loyola University in Montreal.

The tournament will also have teams from Loyola, Sir George Williams University, McGill, University of Montreal, Laval, St. Francis Xavier and University of Alberta.

fruit was in 1962-63, and he set a record with 273 penalty minutes. He disappeared at times, missed practices, and generally posed a disciplinary problem.

Detroit traded him to Chicago Black Hawks for goalie Roger Crozier.

Chicago kept Young about a half season, then sold him to Los Angeles, where he set a Western League record with 227 penalty minutes.

Young, and a Red Wing spokesman, say the defenceman has reformed. So far this season he's scored four goals and assisted on 15 others and is the highest-scoring Blades' defenceman. He has 43 penalty minutes, well below his previous average.

Knudson, Cowan, Streit Top Swingers

TORONTO (CP) — The big swingers in Canadian golf in 1966 were George Knudson, Gary Cowan and Marlene Stewart Streit, who won International championships and gave Canada its best year in world-class golf.

Knudson, 29, a bespectacled professional who started out in Winnipeg and now plays out of Toronto, captured the individual titles in the Canada Cup event in Tokyo in November.

Cowan, 27, an insurance salesman in his home town of Kitchener, won the United States amateur championship at Altamore, Pa., in September.

Mrs. Streit, 32 - year - old mother of two girls who learned her golf in Foothill, Ont., and now lives in Toronto, won the unofficial world women's amateur title in October in Mexico City.

These were the highlights, but there was a string of less spectacular successes that contributed to Canada's fine showing.

Wayne Vollmer, 21-year-old junior at Arizona State University who hails from Vancouver, won the Arizona state championship with a 2 and 1 victory over Terry Johnson of Phoenix this year. The win left Vollmer, 1965 Canadian junior champ, the hottest young prospect in the country.

Professional Frank Whibley of Kitchener joined Cowan to finish second in this year's U.S. pro-amateur best - ball tourney in Cincinnati. The title went to Bobby Nichols and amateur Jim Schloss of Cincinnati with 128 over-all holes. Whibley and Cowan were a stroke back.

Cowan's performance in the U.S. Amateur overshadowed a 13th-place finish by Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., who recovered from a first-round 76 for 292.

Another Kitchener golfer, pro

Moe Norman, capped a string of victories on the Canadian summer tour with a third-place finish in the Mexican Open early in November.

Mrs. Streit took dead aim at the U.S. women's amateur title and came close in that one, losing to Joanne Gunderson Carner on the 20th extra hole of the final match at Sewickley, Pa., in August.

A Saskatchewan team of Ken Shakespeare, Edwin Saville, Rupert Wentz and Thomas Kramer, meanwhile, finished second to the U.S. in the World Seniors (over 55) amateur championship at Colorado Springs, Colo., in August. They beat Australia, Mexico, Kenya, Peru, Hong Kong, Italy and France.

Knudson, who is 1965 became Canada's biggest money winner by collecting nearly $47,000 on U.S. and Caribbean pro tours, has not been as active this year. But in November he finished the Canada Cup tournament tied with Hideyo Sugimoto of Japan at 272 and won on the second extra hole of the sudden-death playoff by sinking a seven-foot birdie putt.

Cowan also needed a playoff for his title, defeating favored Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., two-time U.S. amateur champ, to become the first Canadian to win the tournament since C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., did it in 1932. Cowan, who four years ago took low individual honors in the World Amateur championships in Tokyo, is the reigning par 71 to Beman's 72 in the 18-hole playoff.

Mrs. Streit, who refused a professional career to marry a Toronto stockbroker and raise a family, now plays only one or two major tournaments a year. She showed no signs of becoming rusty in Mexico City, however, firing 289 over 72 holes to finish three strokes ahead of her nearest rival, Barbara Brodie of Mississippi.

Makes Rule Point

Imlach Shoots, Scores

TORONTO (CP)—As far as manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs is concerned, he has made his point in his rule interpretation dispute with referee Art Skov and the case is closed.

Imlach Saturday night was upset over Skov's refusal to fine

PUNCH IMLACH

* * *

Matt Ravlich of Chicago Black Hawks $200 for swinging his stick at Brian Conacher of the Leafs late in a National Hockey League game which Toronto won 5-3.

"Go over and ask the referee why he didn't fine Ravlich $200 for swinging his stick," Imlach told reporters, promising to show films of the game following the team's return from Detroit where the Leafs lost 4-3 to the Red Wings.

Skov explained his stand: "The two players came together with their sticks up high. Then Ravlich swung his stick. But the rule says a $200 fine should be imposed if a player swings his stick after the altercation, either on the way to the penalty box or to renew hostilities. He is not, however, subject to a fine if he swings during the altercation."

EXPLAINS RULE

"The rule doesn't say that at all," said Imlach Monday. "It says a player should be fined if he swings at the face or course of the altercation."

Section 6, Rule 77 of the current NHL book of regulations states:

Any player who swings his stick at another player in the course of any altercations shall be subject to a fine of not less than $200 with or without suspension, to be imposed by the president."

"It's over with now," said Imlach. "Why should I try to crucify Skov? The only thing I want to do is make sure my players get some protection.

"It's been brought to his (Skov's) attention and maybe the next time the rule will be imposed.

"It will probably be imposed against me."

Realtors Snap Loss String, SACO Beaten

Bill Barberstock's unassisted goal in the second period was a big one for Grant Realty last night.

The goal snapped a three-game Grant's losing streak; gave the club a 1-0 victory over Tar-Hlar Dusters; boosted his team back into a first-place tie in the Quinte Hockey League.

SACO, who now share top spot, suffered its first setback at the hands of the fast-improving Stinson-Horlock Combines.

Grant's and SACO have eight points each, Stinson-Horlock seven and Ter-Hlar five in the tight team standings.

Barberstock's goal came at 18.45 of the middle frame with the losers playing a man short.

Goalies Gerry Genereaux, of Ter-Hlar, and Claude Carr, of Grant's turned in some sparkling work with Genereaux a little busier. Carr's shutout was his second of the campaign.

The losers drew six of eight penalties including a second-period misconduct to Jack Calnan.

Stinson - Horlock outscored SACO 2-1 in each period. Only two minor penalties were assessed in this game, one to each club.

Wally Istead triggered a pair of the Combines' goals and drew assists on three others for a five-point night.

L. Soule, B. Genereaux, P. Stinson and P. Mitchell had a goal each. G. Generekux collected two assists, B. Taylor, D. Weese and B. Genereaux one each.

Kenny Forsythe had another good night for SACO, scoring his club's first two goals and assisting on the third, belted by Billy McGuire. Al Lucas and Robb Burrows had two assists each.

SACO and Grant's meet with the league lead up for grabs next Monday.

City Minors Take Pair From Picton

Belleville's Klasmen bantams and Ellis' midgets chalked up OMHA victories in Picton last night.

The Klasmen copped a 3-1 decision while the midgets won 4-1 over Picton.

Terry Meagher fired a pair of third - period goals to earn the bantam victory while David Ferguson also scored Picton's goal in the final period.

Bill Buchanan scored for Belleville in the first period, assisted by Meagher. Peter Aekerman and Dennis Cone also had Klasmen helpers.

Third - period goals by Dennis Deveau and Dennis MacCormack broke open a tight 2-1 game for the midgets' win. Allan Jones and Dereck Hutchinson had Belleville's other goals, MacCormack, Jones and Alan Revill divided assists.

J. McDonell, assisted by Baverstock, accounted for Picton's goal in the second period.

Each team drew three minor penalties.

Lack of Skilled Workers Will Block Business Growth

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tight money, demands for higher wages and inflation still will be felt next year, says the chairman of the Manitoba Export Corp.

James R. Shore, in a speech to the Winnipeg Rotary Club, said Canadian businessmen will have trouble expanding next year simply because there will not be enough skilled workers to satisfy the demand for goods and services.

"This will mean we can look forward to another round of wage increases and that inflation will be a very large part of our life in 1967."

Mr. Shore, president of Orlion Overland Co. Ltd., a firm supplying temporary office help, said talks with Western businessmen during the last year indicated Western Canada is developing faster than might be called a cereal economy."

CASH SOURCE CONSTANT

The world shortage of wheat is something that some people think will persist indefinitely. This means that one of the main sources of cash in Western Canada is going to remain constant, or increase, regardless of what happens to the nation's general economy."

Mr. Shore said projections for business through June 1967 indicate British Columbia's general economy will be as good as in 1966 with an increase similar to that shown this year. This also will be the case in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

"Toronto, however, may be down as much as 20 per cent from 1966. Montreal should show the same rate of growth in 1967 as in 1966 and may explain in 1968. Businessmen in other areas are already worrying about the after-effect of Expo they are already planning for other projects to fill in the drop-off that is bound to come. It will not be nearly as severe as many people think."

If Manitoba wants to increase its exports, Mr. Shore said it must look at the "immense markets" of the United States. He said it was difficult to obtain accurate statistics on increases of Manitoba exports to the U.S., but customs brokers report there had been as much as a 50 per cent increase in one year.

HUGE EXPORT JUMP

A number of government boards, including the Export Corp., have been established to assist Manitoba businessmen export goods throughout the world. The objective is to realize a 200-per-cent increase in the export of manufactured goods which had been projected for 1965 to 1970.

"Manitoba manufacturers, sometimes to their surprise, find that their products are just as good as those of American manufacturers, and often of better quality."

Mr. Shore said the job of the Export Corp. is to work itself out of business.

"We are pathfinders and our customs, freight and banking experts are on hand to help prospective businessmen through the first sale. But once we have done the spadework we hope the businessman will be able to continue on his own," he said.

"All we want to do is stop thinking the old way is good enough if we open our eyes, look around us, and do something about it."

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

QUINTE REGION

NAPANEE — Boy Scouts presidents and commissioners of the Quinte region met in conference at Trinity United Church Saturday, to report past activities, and to discuss the future but especially to look into the future and plan for it.

The Quinte region takes in territory from Napanee west to Bowmanville, north of Dundas and the Bay of Quinte Lakes, and south to include Prince Edward County. About 40 leaders attended Saturday's conference.

The World Jamboree to be held at Farragut State Park in Idaho in August, 1967, came under discussion. Boys from this area will be among those attending. The Peterborough leaders are enthusiastic about it. It will be introduced to the Napanee district next year.

The district conference to be held in Lindsay next year came under discussion, also. The date has been set as March 16, 1967.

Announcement was made of a Canadian Jamboree to be held in Saskatoon in July, 1967.

Arrangements for the day were made by Bill Rama 2y, president of the Napanee District Council and Bill Finlay, immediate past president. Both presided at dinner which was prepared and served by the First Napanee Ladies' Auxiliary.

ATTEND CNIB DINNER

NAPANEE — Eighteen people attended the Canadian National dinner and party given by the Napanee Lodge of the Blind in Quinte-St. Lawrence Hall. This included those from the district who have not yet 100 per cent vision or less, and their escorts. Several others from the Napanee district were taken by friends.

Each place for the blind escorts was marked by a small basket of fruit and a container of candy, and at the close of the entertainment, gram and carol singing, Santa Claus put in an appearance and presented each one with an additional gift.

CHRISTMAS DECOR

Signs of Christmas are multiplying rapidly in Napanee. Stores are decorated and colored lights cross Dundas St., and churches and the Public Utility building. The town has a bright, lit tree in the park by the Memorial Building, and many homes have begun their outside Christmas lighting and other decorations.

Donald Walters, chairman of the P.U.C., states that there is much more interest in floodlighting than has previously been shown. Churches, in particular, have either made plans or are considering this, and many more homeowners than last year have purchased floods and lights. Some public building plans have also been made. The floodlights at the stroke of 12 on New Year's Eve, to usher in Centennial year.

Arrest 3 Vancouver Policemen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Vancouver police constables arrested Monday charged them charged jointly with breaking and entering and theft with theft and possession of stolen goods.

Constable John Thomas Mc-Cready, 48, a veteran of 25 years on the force, was arrested shortly. He was remanded without plea to appear on a charge of theft and possession of a fur coat recovered at more than $50. He was freed on $2,500 bail.

Police said the three were taken Saturday in a break-in at a downtown store of the Singer Co. of Canada Ltd. They said they are still looking for three suspects in the break-in. Mundreas and Mundreas were both on patrol when arrested Sunday and charged with breaking and entering Daisy's Cookie Co. here during the night.

Soviet Charges Mixture Of Fantasy, Fact: PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Soviet press contributions of an anti-Russian campaign in Canada "are the usual mixture of fantasy and fabrication," Prime Minister Pearson said Monday.

He read a statement in the Commons replying to charges in Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper. The paper said Soviet diplomats and journalists in Ottawa had been subjected to a campaign of intimidation.

Earlier, a Canadian external affairs spokesman said the Soviet Embassy here has been subjected to a few acts of vandalism, including some ball-throwing and car theft. But there were no political implications in the incidents reported.

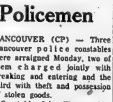
Mr. Pearson said it is difficult for the Soviet Union to realize that Canada is not prepared to interfere with anti-Soviet press criticism or with what people lawfully do or say of which the Russians may not approve.

Canadian Rocket Tests Gas

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)— A Canadian Black Brant III rocket thundered aloft from the Churchill harness in late east of here Monday, carrying 225 pounds of scientific instruments on a flight of almost seven minutes for the University of Bonn.

Dr. Ulf Von Tan and Dr. Dietrich Moeller of the Institute of Physics at the university, said the specially-built instruments were designed to measure neutral gas contents of the Arctic atmosphere.

The rocket was launched at 1:20 p.m. by the National Research Council's research range 810 miles north of Winnipeg.



The non - recoverable instruments and the rocket splashed down into Hudson Bay after a 64½-minute flight.

Information gathered while the rocket was aloft was relayed by radio to a special ground receiving station at the Churchill range.

Dr. Von Tan said all instruments met their scientific objectives.

DOES GHOST GUARD?

PORTSMOUTH (AP) — Lord Nelson's 201-year-old flagship, still Royal Navy property and a tourist attraction at this English port, is avoided by seagulls, which settle all over nearby ships but never on the Victory. The commander, Lt. - Cmdr. Dick Whittington, says the ship must have an extra pair of sharp eyes — a ghost.

Wirter Labors Over Script for In Cold Blood

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—His secretary brought Richard Brooks a pre-lunch Bloody Mary, and the writer-director sipped it as he struggled over the chore of translating In Cold Blood to the screen.

The book is the work of Truman Capote and Brooks has his work cut out for him: Making a compact, playable script out of Capote's "non-fiction novel" about the murder of a Kansas family by two ex-convicts.

"I'm supposed to start shooting in the Midwest in late February-early March, and I'm only half - finished with the script," Brooks says. "Frankly, I don't know how the hell it's going to end.

"Oh, the ending is there: The two guys get executed. But what is the picture going to say when it's all over? It's one thing to write a book about an atrocious crime and view it in a reportorial manner. But a film is different.

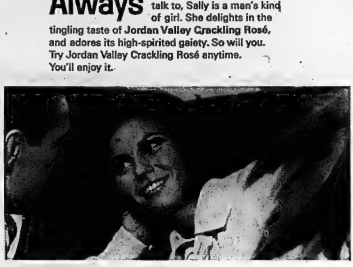
"These two men are guilty of a terrible deed. But how do you coerce the film on their lives and remain dispassionate about them? A film requires involvement on the part of the auditor; no great movie is without it.

"There are a million people who will be ready to criticize me for how I treat the material. Many will want me to include everything in the book, and that would mean a 14 - hour movie."

Because of his writing, Brooks hasn't been able to get around to other production chores as yet. He has cast only one performer — television actor Robert Blake, who will play one of the criminals, Perry Smith.

"I found him on an old Richard Boone show, said Brooks, a film veteran (Cat on a Hot Tin Roof, The Professionals).

"I see on the average of 30 television films a week, as well as tests and commercials; some of the best acting is on commercials.



"I'm still holding to the policy of choosing non-stars, despite phoney reports that names are being considered. I am considering several children of stars, however; while their faces are not familiar, their names will be.

"I'm avoiding stars to achieve reality, but also for a practical reason: I can't afford them. I've told Columbia that this picture must be made as cheaply as possible because I don't expect it to have wide appeal. It may be too honest for the public."

Her husband, George, 32, was killed Saturday when his bulldozer plunged down an embankment near this town 10 miles northeast of Brockville.

Nine years ago, her first husband, Herbert St. John, also a bulldozer operator, died in a similar accident during construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

It's Hard to Find Interesting Guests

NEW YORK (AP)—To Tell the Truth, a guessing game that has been around CBS for a decade, ran into a problem that plagues all shows featuring guests.

Contestants on the program's first show in prime time Monday night were a man who claims he was taken aboard a flying saucer and two impostors.

"Humph," sniffed a viewing companion who keeps an eye on daytime TV. "The real one is on the sod there. I saw him and his wife on Art Linkletter's show the other day."

Guests with interesting stories to tell are likely to move among TV game shows and radio talk shows the way Jane Morgan and Mickey Rooney travel the TV variety-show circuit, hitting all points.

Presumably here were many daytime viewers who recognized the flying-saucer man.

In an effort to get the new edition off to a good start, they changed the usual format.

Guest star Betty Davis and two women who did pretty good imitations of her distinctive voice were concealed behind a curtain which unfortunately confused the panel and the lively room spectators. It also made it impossible for the players at home to play along with the panel.

When the Beatles, at the peak of their fame, appeared before 60,000 squealing fans at New York's Shea Stadium, Bob Hod Mickey Rooney travel the Precht, producer of Ed Sulli-van's show, was there with 12 cameras. Now, after two years, he can share the experience. ABC has required the resulting program and will broadcast it Jan. 10.

Recommended tonight: The Hidden World, CBS, 7:30-8:30 EST, special in the National Geographic Society series on insect life; Doomsday Flight, NBC, 9-11, new feature-length film with Jack Lord and Van Johnson; The Long Childhood of Timmy, ABC, 10-11, documentary on a retarded child; CBS Reports, 10-11, documentary on "the supersonic race" for a giant jet transport plane.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"Try and look at it this way, Rollo . . . we have no economic problems, we import nothing, we export nothing."

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while giving relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Detective Claims RCMP Took First Steps in Bugging

VANCOUVER (CP)—A private detective said Monday RCMP Superintendent Joseph Alberton accused him and his lawyer of committing "a monstrous falsehood" by implicating two RCMP security men in the bugging of a union convention here last month.

Bud Graham told a royal commission the accusation was made by Supt. Alberton in a telephone conversation with Graham's lawyer, Neil Fleishman.

Graham said his lawyer's reply to Alberton was: "So there are no holds barred, hey Joe. Well, why don't you take the time to check and we'll put Reed (Cpl. Harry Reed of the RCMP security and intelligence branch) and Graham on the stand under oath and we'll see who is lying."

The detective said that the telephone conversation prompted him to tell a Vancouver radio commentator how he placed electronic listening devices in the convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada Nov. 2 in a city hotel.

Graham said he was retained by Pat O'Neal, regional organizer of the rival International Pulp and Sulphite Workers' Union.

He told the commission, appointed to investigate the charges and counter charges arising from the affair, that the bugging was discovered Nov. 7 when one of the devices fell from the top of a portable closet as union members attempted to move it to obtain more room for their meeting.

He said on the same day Cpl. Reed, who Graham claimed put him in touch with O'Neal, telephoned to check if everything was all right and Graham said he replied: "No."

He quoted Cpl. Reed as saying: "We got wind of it from subdivision that they were going down to the room. I tried to warn you in time—guess it's too late."

Graham said he asked if Cpl. Reed's commanding officer was aware of the situation and Cpl. Reed told him: "No, he doesn't know anything about it, but he was asking some questions yesterday."

Graham said Cpl. Reed and Constable E. P. Ouellette, also of the RCMP security and intelligence branch, had first got in touch with him Oct. 26.

Graham said he met O'Neal subsequently and told him it was too late to place an undercover man at the convention and that bugging was the only method left open. He said O'Neal told him to handle the operation whichever way he thought best.

Beluga Whales Surviving

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — A herd of white beluga whales trapped by ice in a lake near the mouth of the Mackenzie River were in good shape when visited Sunday. The hole in the ice through which they breathe was enlarged.

The whales are in Eskimo Lake, 35 miles northeast of Inuvik and 1,200 miles northwest of Edmonton.

A team from the Inuvik research laboratory chipped ice last week to enlarge the breathing hole when it was feared it might freeze over, causing the animals to suffocate. Sunday's visit by the laboratory team showed the 17 whales have further enlarged the hole which now is four feet wide by 25 feet long.

Liberals Still Planning Leadership Convention

TORONTO (CP)—Plans are being continued for a convention to elect a leader for the Ontario Liberal party, although only one candidate has announced his intention to run.

Toronto lawyer Joseph Potts, chairman of the convention committee, said Monday each of the 117 provincial ridings is entitled to send eight voting delegates and each of the federal ridings four.

"We are working on this convention on the basis of there being a contest," Mr. Pitts said, although Robert Nixon, the Liberal member for Brant, is the only candidate to date.

Mr. Nixon was named Liberal house leader Nov. 17, the day after Andrew Thompson of Toronto Dovercourt resigned after two years as leader because of ill health.

The convention will be held in Toronto Jan. 6-7.

Luck of the Irish Comes A Cropper As Death and Taxman Form Alliance

OTTAWA (CP) — In a judgment that Scrooge might have applauded the tax appeal board Tuesday upheld a federal claim to $9,875.86 in succession duties resulting from a sweepstakes win on Santa Claus.

Gordon Moore Andrews, the Ottawa man who held the Irish Sweepstakes ticket, became fatally ill shortly after the $150,000 win in 1964 and died two months later.

His son and two daughters argued that it had been a family tradition to contribute four ways to a ticket marked Luck of the Irish, which was drawn in 1964 on a horse called Santa Claus.

They said the unwritten understanding was that any amount won would be divided among the father and his three children.

However, federal revenue authorities argued successfully that the shares that went to the children were a gift within three years of death and thus taxable as an inheritance.

The board was told that the late Mr. Andrews, about to enter hospital, assigned to his son Eric all rights to the winning $3.50 ticket.

On his father's instructions, Eric later distributed quarter shares of $37,287.52 to his father, two sisters and himself.

After the father died, the family argued fruitlessly that only his quarter share was subject to estate tax.

The tax appeal board grudgingly admitted that a "so-called family ticket" apparently had been put down on each race.

However, the board found it "an inescapable fact" that the father had "voluntarily transferred" 75 per cent of his interest to the children as a gift.

That made them heirs rather than winners of $37,287.52 each and opened the way for succession duties.

Sweepstakes are illegal in Canada so winners are not required to pay income tax on their prizes. Once the money is part of an estate, however, it is subject to succession duties and estate taxes.

Blast Danger Barring 300 From Dwellings

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — Two persons were killed and more than 300 persons evacuated from their homes Tuesday night when a loaded sand truck and a CPR freight collided, derailing two diesel locomotives and 20 freight cars of the 115-unit train.

A tank car containing propane gas was punctured and police, fearing a possible explosion, began an immediate evacuation of homes near the wreck scene.

Police tentatively identified the dead as 30-year-old Leo Feeney and his son Stephen, 4, of Pickering, lone occupants of the truck.

Two train crew members suffered minor injuries when the lead cars on the train jackknifed and buckled to a height of 80 feet.

Explosives experts gingerly sifted through the wreckage today and police said it would probably be late Thursday before residents would be allowed to return safely to their homes.

About 2,000 gallons of propane in the leaking tank car will be pumped into tank trucks by late today and the leakage will be burned off, police said.

Some residents jammed nearby motels but most found shelter with friends or relatives. Two public schools in the danger area were closed until the risk passes.

Working through the night, pumping crews used a 150-yard temporary pipeline which enabled a half a kept between the tank trucks and the railway car.

Police banned photographers from using flash guns near the wreck and mobile radio units were told to turn off their equipment within half a mile of the scene.

The boy's body was found at the side of the tracks. The man's body is believed to be still in the tangled mass of wreckage.

When police arrived, the truck and its gasoline were ablaze—less than 30 feet from the leaking propane car.

Unaware of the leaking propane, police and other rescue workers searched the wreckage for three hours for any dead or injured.

Engineer Steve Munshaw, 57, of Toronto was treated at hospital for a slight shoulder injury. Brakeman Arthur Lumsden, 43, Markham, Ont., was treated for a twisted knee.

"We were bounced around like ping-pong balls inside the cab," said fireman Eric Atkinson, 47, of Toronto.

A CPR official said all the derailed cars except the tank car were unloaded.

"If they had been loaded they would have torn the tank car apart like Hanna paper," he said.

Railway officials said they expect the main line in Montreal will be blocked for at least 48 hours before the wreckage can be cleared.

Commons to Ban New Air Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Benson said today the government plans to give notice of motion in the Commons this afternoon for legislation that would block the threatened strike of airport controllers next Tuesday.

Emerging from a two - hour bargaining session with representatives of nearly 800 airport controllers, he told reporters there is a good possibility for voluntary settlement of the pay dispute.

But he added that the government intended to move police of legislation in case the talks broke down.

Both sides were to return to the bargaining table later today.

"The situation is much more encouraging than at any previous time in our discussions," the revenue minister reported.

A strike deadline of 8 a.m. local times Tuesday, Dec. 20, was set after the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association reported that members voted 578 to 23 in favor of strike action.

However, J. D. Lyon, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association, told reporters that no significant progress could be reported.

Was the situation hopeful?

"At this stage, I couldn't say either way," Mr. Lyon said.

He said that no time,had been set for further meetings. His group was expecting a call from the government to adopt, wage recommendations made by Judge J. B. Robinson in a report he handed to the cabinet last month after a five-month study of the dispute.

This report has not been made public but union spokesmen said it would provide immediate wage increases of between 14 and 17 per cent. Controllers now start at $4,800 a year and can move through eight grades to a maximum $9,528.

The government says it doesn't want to make a decision on the wage question until it receives the second part of Judge Robinson's report, expected in January. This is supposed to deal with training procedures.

NATO Ministers Meet
Europe's Big Political Changes Seen Opening Way for Peace

PARIS (CP)—A Canadian official said today the first morning session of the NATO ministerial conference produced a strong consensus that great political changes in Europe had reduced the nature of the Soviet military threat, thus opening the way for a sweeping East-West peace offensive.

The official also said that virtual unanimity on the decline of the Soviet threat led to agreement that "realistic" military goals can be adopted from the alliance—an indication that the so-called force goals may be reduced.

Aside from the formal exchange of views in the NATO council chamber, the official reported that corridor talk indicated gathering opinion that Canada should become a member of the planned NATO nuclear strategy group which likely will be nailed down in the afternoon session.

He said this feeling that Canada should become one of the rotating members of the group appears to be based on argument that Canada has a nuclear operational role, that she has displayed a commonsense approach and is capable of imposing a "moderating" influence on the Western nuclear trigger.

While External Affairs Minister Paul Martin did not speak at the morning session, he held private talks with State Secretary Dean Rusk of the U.S., following up conversations during the previous evening at Rusk's dinner party.

The NATO ministers, who launched a three-day annual study of the state of the alliance, hope to come up with a permanent nuclear strategy body that will reduce German influence for a finger on the no-clear trigger.

Informants said Canada will get membership in this key body on a temporary rotating basis with the United States, Britain, West Germany and Italy as permanent members.

He Can Stay Home From Wars To Run Kidney Machine for Wife

UTICA, Mich. (AP)—Draft Board 203 ruled Tuesday night that Tom Michaels whose wife needs him at home because of her kidney ailment, can have a 3-A hardship deferment.

The plight of Michaels, 22, and his wife, Mary, 23, drew national attention after he told his draft board he couldn't fight for his country because he was fighting for his wife's life.

Mrs. Michaels suffered a kidney failure this fall and was in three different hospitals for several weeks as doctors fought to save her life.

Doctors say that if she is to live, her blood must be cleaned twice a week on a special kidney machine.

The couple hopes to buy their own $5,000 machine to avoid hospital bills of $10,000 annually. Numerous donations have come to them in recent weeks, increasing the possibility they will be able to buy the machine.

Communists Say U.S. Planes Attack Hanoi for Second Day

SAIGON (AP)—The Communists charge that U.S. jets raided Hanoi and its suburbs today for the second day in a row. Radio Hanoi declared eight American aircraft, including a pilotless reconnaissance plane, were shot down.

There was no immediate comment from the U.S. command, which earlier said it could not confirm or deny the Communist claim that American bombs fell inside the North Vietnamese capital Tuesday and that women and children were killed.

The official Soviet news agency, said in a Hanoi dispatch relayed from Moscow, that American planes raided the city for about 90 minutes.

"As yesterday," the Tass correspondent said, "they bombed the right and left banks of the Red River, the embankment and the area of the bridge linking Hanoi with its suburb Zyalam.

"The air pirates were met with dense anti-aircraft fire. Numerous bursts clouded the clear sky. A rocket soared up, leaving a white trail behind. I saw a U.S. plane catch fire and parachute detach from the plane."

Agence France-Presse in a Hanoi dispatch from its correspondent, Jacques Moalic, said U.S. planes carried out their largest and heaviest raid yet on Hanoi. He quoted Hanoi radio as saying that eight planes were shot down and more damaged.

PC Chief Optimistic
Decade at Helm, Dief 'Never Downcast'

OTTAWA (CP)—"Above and beyond all, I believe you have summoned me as your humble servant to work for good government for Canada. That is my attitude towards the responsibility you have given me."

With those words, spoken 10 years ago today, John Diefenbaker assumed the mantle of leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

In the years that followed, he soared to the political heights, mounting in the pinnacle as prime minister of Canada.

Today he is opposition leader and his leadership is seriously challenged from within his own party.

But at 71, his cheeks pink and his blue eyes clear and undimmed, he shows no sign that he considers his party's summons has been or may be withdrawn.

Asked in an interview to look ahead to the next 10 years, he said: "You will never find me discouraged, downcast or downtrodden."

Conservative MPs and senators, most of whom signed a document asking that he continue as leader, honor him and Mrs. Diefenbaker tonight at a reception marking the Dec. 14, 1956, anniversary of his election as leader.

On the eve of this event, he made it plain that he won't be telling his loyalists anything about retiring as their chief. He'd had only short notice of the anniversary plans and would express thankfulness for good health, strength and, especially, the loyalty of his followers.

Favor Board, But...

County Councillors Concerned About Cost of Regional Planning

While admitting that additional planning was necessary if there is to be organized growth, Hastings county council took no action yesterday on a recommendation for the establishment of a regional planning area.

The recommendation was made by a special council committee on planning which suggested all of the county of Hastings, Belleville, Trenton and Murray township as a planning area.

Generally speaking council members were in favor of planning but they were concerned of the cost.

The estimated first year cost for the proposed planning area was $75,000 of which the Hastings county share would be just under $32,000. Belleville's share would be $20,000 and Trenton's $11,400.

Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside said the county needed some kind of planning direction, while Sidney Reeve Ernest Kells took the same view.

Mr. Kells, however, was not too enthusiastic about the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, of which his township is a member. He said his township did not go along with all the board's recommendations.

Carl Thompson, deputy reeve of Thurlow, said he would like to see Hastings do a bit of planning on its own, always, of course, co-operating with Belleville.

Rawdon Reeve Fred Beckett, said however, that the Ontario department of planning would not favor the county setting up its own planning board but would instead urge a regional set-up.

Warden Hall also agreed that planning was needed but said he was "a bit scared of the bill get." The county's share of the proposed planning area budget would amount to one mill on the county rate.

Reeve Bill Shannon of Marmora advised that the matter should be allowed to "simmer for a while longer" and council voted to file the committee report.

Neither did council take any action on the establishment of a land titles office as had been proposed at an earlier session.

A special committee investigating the matter recommended that action be delayed until all other alternatives had been explored.

The request for the land titles office came from the village of Bancroft where it was said the delay and expense of securing proper titles following transfer of properties was causing problems.

The committee felt that the Certification of Titles Act might be the solution to the Bancroft problem. County Registrar William Hurst has offered the services of his staff to compile a registrar's plan which would be the first step toward certification of titles in the problem area.

Councillors feel that more consideration should be given to county boundaries when tourist regions are set up by the department of tourism and information.

Accordingly council voted to ask the department minister Hon. James Auld to proclaim all of Hastings county as a tourist region.

Several members felt the county was losing it's identity with the north part being included in the Madawaska Valley Tourist Region and south of 401 highway in the Quinte's Isle Region.

Earl Hawley, deputy reeve of Bancroft, said his village was in the quandry of not knowing in which tourist region it actually belonged.

Also Madoc Reeve Tom Burnside felt the county should give some thought to an industrial brochure of it's own.

Tudor Reeve Vera McMurray agreed and said it was a matter for the county publicity committee.

Council took no action on a Peterborough county resolution asking that filing fees for entering cases for jury trial be increased from the present $3 to $200.

The resolution noted that at present many cases are listed for jury trial and thus at the last moment are settled out of court. This often results in no cases being left for jury trial but the county still has the expense of calling and paying jury members.

One councillor felt that the increased filing fee would be unfair to some party who did not have the $200.

"But under the present filing fee lawyers are doing an injustice to the taxpayer," returned another council member.

Some Day It'll Be Me!

For 6-year-old Cheryl Bailey there'll some day be a similar test as that being given Douglas Murray yesterday by Dr. J. B. McSherry. It's part of the Hastings County TB Association protection program that tests students in grades 9 and 12. The association has tested 1,399 high school students.

Hastings Approves Joint Health Unit

Hastings county council has approved the amalgamation of the Hastings County Health Unit with that of Prince Edward county.

County board chairman reeve William Shannon said it was felt the larger unit with a greater population could operate more efficiently and at a lower cost and could provide expanded services.

The only disadvantage that could be seen was that Hastings might lose some of its autonomy.

* * *

Prince Edward county council also this week approved amalgamation, leaving only Belleville city council to give its consent.

The suggested name for the combined health unit is The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit. The unit would serve a combined population of approximately 82,000 people — 40,000 in Hastings, 32,000 in Belleville and close to 20,000 in Prince Edward county.

Warden Clayton Hall said the idea of a combined health unit had started with the Quinte district executive committee which meets monthly to discuss regional problems.

One of the main reasons for the proposed amalgamation had been the small size of the Prince Edward county unit which could not be operated economically.

An overall annual saving of about $24,000 is estimated for the combined unit, resulting in a saving of $8,000 to Hastings county.

Headquarters for the combined health unit would be in Belleville with a sub-office in Picton.

One medical officer of health would be eliminated, while there would also be a saving on office rental and clerical staff.

The combined health unit board would have nine members instead of the present seven. Hastings would have three appointees, Prince Edward two and Belleville two. Two of the appointees would be by the province, one from Prince Edward and the other from Hastings or Belleville.

Bancroft Home for Aged To Be Built Next Year

Tenders for the construction of the new county home for the aged at Bancroft will be called this week with completion of construction expected some time early next fall.

The building will also accommodate an office for the county Children's Aid Society.

White, presenting the Hastings Dungannon Reeve Calvin Masker report to county council said the committee had decided to install electric heating at the new home in North Hastings. The installation cost will compare favorably with that of alternate fuel, while maintenance and operational costs should prove to be less.

One saving will be that it will be unnecessary to hire a man to look after a heating boiler.

Reeve White said that despite the wet weather, construction of the addition at Hastings Manor outside Belleville was ahead of schedule.

Walls and brickwork are well advanced, the rafters are going up this week and the roofi s should be in place before Christmas. Completion of the 50 - bed wing is expected in April.

Construction cost of the wing is expected to be reduced by about $30,000 through assistance from the winter works program.

The Hastings Manor realizes this year entered handicrafts at the CNE. Robert Odenbach received a second prize, Mrs. Fred Dreyer a third prize and Miss Edith Latham, received honorable mention.

Nominations at Wooler Dec. 19

TRENTON — Nominations to fill one vacant seat on Murray Township council will be held in the town hall at Wooler next Monday, Dec. 19, starting at 7 p.m.

Two councillors, Leo Mc Auley and Ronald Webb were acclaimed to the three-man council on Dec. 3.

If more than one nomination is received and the nominees qualify, an election will be held in five polling booths in the township, Wednesday, Dec. 28, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

One township businessman, Douglas Tufford, who was nominated for council Dec. 3, but who failed to qualify because he did not attend the nomination meeting or signify in writing that he would let his name stand, has said he will be in the running.

Schools Win Safety Plaques

Safety plaques have been awarded three schools in the Quinte district, signifying an accident-free year.

The plaques were awarded by the Belleville Kiwanis Club, sponsors of the Elmer safety campaign in local schools.

Recipients are Harmony and Douglas Atkins schools in Thurlow Township and the Rednersville public school.

Both Rednersville and Douglas Atkins have been presented the award for four successive years. It's the third consecutive accident-free year for Harmony.

Benefits Processed By 'Phone

Commencing Monday unemployed persons making application for unemployment benefits, will no longer have to report to the local employment office.

In the future all applications for assistance will be made by mail or telephone, thus eliminating lineups which have occurred in the past.

Cecil Hiuser, manager of the local unemployment insurance office, made the announcement yesterday at Hastings county council, noting that applicants will now be asked to fill in forms and return them by mail.

The change followed the move made some months ago under which all claims are now paid by mail.

Three Reeves Seek Spot As Warden of Hastings

The Hastings county wardenship for 1961 will be a three-way fight.

This was indicated Wednesday when three candidates made election pitches at a noon luncheon attended by county councillors.

In the running are Sidney Reeve Ernest Kells, Reeve William Shannon of Marmora village, and Dungannon township reeve Calvin White.

It's 40 years since a county warden was nameed from Marmora Village. The last warden from that municipality was the late G. B. Aylbart in 1936. The last warden from Dungannon was John J. Churcher in 1960.

Harleigh Hamilton of Sidney was warden in 1961.

Five of this year's county council will not be back next year. They are Warden Clayton Hall, Thomas Armstrong of Deloro, Clayton McMurray of Elzevir and Grimesboro, Guy Hughes of Tweed, and J. Morgan, deputy reeve from Rawdon.

New faces at the January session will be Horace Casey, deputy reeve of Thurlow; Charles Gordanier of Deloro, Kenneth Smith from Elzevir, Mrs. Barbara Allen from Tweed, and Maurice Clancy, the new Rawdon deputy reeve. The warden will be picked at that time.

Tweed Votes Today

It's Tough to Do Christmas Shopping at Election Time

TWEED (Special) — Christmas buying and shopping for votes can place a woman at odds with her routine.

Today's municipal election here will decide if this village will seat three more women on its municipal council and present Canada with possibly the first all - female local government in its history.

The vote culminates a week-long election brought on by a second nomination meeting after two women were acclaimed as the only members of a five-seat council.

However, the dexy poobed election week into the midst of the Christmas season — a busy time for all women, hectic if you have to help a whole community with its municipal problems.

Two of the women — Mrs. Jeannette Whitfield and Mrs. Amelia Bosley — admitted they found themselves lagging behind in Christmas schedules since the campaign started.

"It stopped me from finishing my shopping," says Mrs. Whitfield, also active as secretary for the Land o' Lakes Tourist Association. "It means I'll have to work that much harder when it's all over."

Mrs. Amelia Bosley, who works at the Tweed News, also says she's "badly behind" in her Christmas routine but looks forward to getting caught up once the election ends.

However, the possibility of being alone on council without men draws a mixed reaction from the whole campaign quartet.

Mrs. George Sinclair says she would like to see experienced members on the council.

"I'm not making it a battle of the sexes," she adds.

Mrs. Bosley feels "possibly the council does need men on it," but confesses to being "annoyed" so few of the male villagers exposed interest.

Mrs. Sandra Thompson admits she would like to see an all-woman council.

However, she says, the decision must be based on "who-ever is most capable of doing the job."

Mrs. Whitfield is heartily in support of having a village government exclusively of women.

"I do hope we can beat them. I think we could do a lot more."

Whichever way the results go, the women will still outnumber the men. Mrs. Barbara Allen and Mrs. R. G. Courtyea already have been acclaimed reeve and councillor respectively.

To fill the remaining three seats there are only two men challenging the four women candidates.

However, both have municipal experience.

Rev. Donald Sinclair is still serving his first term as councillor. His fellow candidate, Burton Thompson is a former councillor.

Suspects Nabbed Before Goods Are Missed

MILFORD — Police already had two suspects nabbed 12½ miles away before a storekeeper in this Prince Edward county hamlet knew he had been robbed this week.

Toronto police arrested two men about 4.30 a.m. Tuesday after finding a car filled with merchandise.

About 30 minutes later Jack Clarke found thieves had broken through a basement window and looted his general store of goods worth about $150.

Life-Like Look for Hunt Trophy

Jake DeVries works to impart natural appearance on deer's head — latest acquisition to his taxidermy gallery of exhibits at his Rosehall home.

Wolf in Freezer

It's the Hides He Seeks

Wellington (Staff) — One of the biggest wolves shot in recent years in Prince Edward County wound up last week in a man's home near here — right in the freezer.

But don't panic!

For Jake DeVries, the carcass is no culinary challenge.

Quite the opposite, in fact. For him, the task will be "to bring the wolf back to life" — or as close a simulation of the real thing as possible.

Jake is a taxidermist, one of about 100 fully-licensed practitioners in Ontario, and the basement of his home in the rustic hamlet of Rosehall, five miles west of here, is filled with still-life specimens of his craft.

The exhibits range from exotic Oriental pheasants to the fish of nearer-home waters in the Quinte area.

Some of them he has shot or landed himself, like the big buck on whose head he is currently engaged.

Many others, like that wolf bagged by game wardens during a probe of sheep-killing in the county, are donated by department of lands and forests conservationists.

A Dutch immigrant in 1945, Jake has been indulging in taxidermy since he first qualified for his licence in a correspondence course with a school in Omaha, Nebraska, 10 years ago.

A lover of the outdoors, admittedly interested in all forms of nature preservation, he says his interest was prompted by a desire to restore to wildlife some semblance of its former, natural patina.

"The idea is to bring the bird or animal back to life," he says. "If you don't give it that natural look it doesn't appear right."

To achieve this goal takes hours of painstaking work, sometimes spanning weeks.

Working with surgical tools, he mounts the dried or tanned hides of the specimens over an artificial frame. For birds, fish, and small animals this is formed of a wood-fibre wool, called "excelsior" in the craft.

Larger exhibits — bear or deer — are mounted on papier mache.

Among the rarities are a great grey owl from northern Canada, which inexplicably turned up in the Quinte district, and was found dead on the fence of a Wellington district farm. Another is a turkey vulture, discovered with a bad gunshot injury at nearby Hayeke Bay, a suspected victim of indiscriminate hunters.

"Those kind of people never leave a name behind," says Jake.

"I believe in the preservation of wildlife. Sport can be fun — as long as you stick to the regulations."

UN World Problem

Majority of People Not Doing Share

A United Nations worker said in Belleville recently he feels the real problem facing the world organization is the majority of people, including Canadians, firmly believe they are doing their share now on the world level.

Bud Trivett, a member of the United Nations Association, National Executive, told the World Federalists of Canada, Quinte Branch, that people blame the framework of the UN for world problems.

"Yet these people are not willing to create a new reform," he said.

Mr. Trivett said six to seven per cent of the world population is in North America, yet this continent produces one-half to two-thirds of the world's GNP and contributes one-third of the UN finances.

"Obviously this is not a fair proportion," he said. "No progress can be made while we are only maintaining a starvation level."

He said that people on the whole do not take the global situation in a serious way: "We are only paying lip service."

He likened the lack of contribution and participation into world affairs to "trying to prime a water pump with a glass of water, when actually what is needed is a pail of water."

The speaker said food and world trade were the two greatest needs. In order to have a mammoth increase in these he said "there must be a total dedication by the total people such as one would put into winning a war.

"Must it come to such a crisis before people will act?" he said. "We must plan towards a world order, but in the meantime we must use the full capacity of the machinery, i.e. the United Nations, we now have."

Quiet Revolution?

The way politicians in Quebec have been talking it is difficult to accept the concept of the "quiet revolution" in Quebec being such a friendly affair.

"Look old boy," the French Canadian seems to be saying, "all we want is Quebec and you can have the rest . . . and Confederation be damned!"

But J. Allan Perham, President of Canadian Oxygen Ltd. talks of "equal partnership," and claims all that is happening is not the destruction of Canada but "the emergence of Quebec from a cloistered society."

Mr. Perham suggests that all the talk by Jean Lesage and Daniel Johnson, and more recently by Gilles Gregoire, is just "political opportunism." But ask Mr. Gregoire, for one, if Quebec is not hell-bent on independence or some form of separate status apart from Canada and he likely would look pained and say, "haven't you been listening to my speeches?"

Mr. Perham told Belleville Rotarians the other day that some of our bilingual difficulties arise from reasons of semantics. To the French-speaking Canadian, he said, 'nation' and 'state' do not mean the same. They apply the word 'nation' to a distinct people or cultural group and think of themselves as belonging to a nation within the country, Canada.

"That nation, in their view, is not confined to the Province of Quebec. Substantial and growing French-speaking communities are found in Northern and Eastern Ontario, in New Brunswick's population is more than a third made up of Acadians and French-speaking immigrants from Quebec."

That is all well, and good. Certainly the Quebeckers and other French speaking Canadians want to be recognized for their very considerable worth but the difference between them and the English Canadian is that the latter, without really thinking about it, does not really have to be so aggressively nationalistic to survive.

Whatever inferiority complex the English Canadian suffers from (and he is constantly being assured that he has one) it does not stem from what happened on the Plains of Abraham in 1759.

The events in Quebec City more than 200 years ago still rankle with the French in Canada. How can it be otherwise? But it is only now that the subconscious nationalism, so long subdued by the assimilation from which Quebec has suffered, is coming to the fore.

At heart the French Canadian probably does not care a fig for his Anglo-Saxon counterpart, and there is evidence enough that the feeling is mutual. That it should be otherwise, of course, is the desire of all forward-looking and interested Canadians of both founding races. And that is where we find ourselves in common ground with Mr. Perham, while at the same time suspecting that the future course of events is not going to be all that smooth.

"At last Mister Hellyer, laddie—ye've gone too far!"

Infectious Hepatitis Can Be Crippling

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Yesterday we discussed the alarming prevalence of infectious hepatitis. Today we'll answer questions about the nature of the disease and how to treat it.

It is only rarely fatal (still, deaths do occur) but it does a great deal of harm. A patient may be ill for six or eight weeks and longer than that to get over feeling listless and tired.

We can't say the disease is completely curable, since a severe case can leave some degree of liver impairment.

The basis of treatment is a great deal of rest and a good diet, high in protein and carbohydrate, and including some fat. A patient feels weary and often has headaches, loss of appetite and nausea as well as fever. Sometimes the appetite has to be coaxed deliverately, with small but frequent meals. Alcohol must be avoided, since it puts extra burden on the liver.

Good care throughout the attack is the best means of preventing liver damage as an aftermath.

It is rather uncommon for a person to have the disease a second time, but we cannot say it is impossible. Heavy exposure to the virus doubtless could provoke another attack. However, once an attack is over, the disease does not recur unless there is new exposure to the germs.

Infectious hepatitis has no effect whatsoever sex life, and has nothing whatever in common with venereal disease. Quite apart from that, however, is a growing suspicion that it can cause damage to an unborn child if the mother contracts the disease very early in pregnancy. This is another urgent reason for trying to reduce its prevalence.

I mentioned a few months ago that hepatitis broke out in an old and rundown apartment house in which, among other things, plumbing was leaky and water and waste accumulated in the basement. An epidemic quickly spread through the building.

Good sanitation is a must in suppressing hepatitis, but don't forget the important personal sanitation — wash your hands.

No vaccine has been perfected, although efforts are in progress. Gamma globulin can give temporary protection when an outbreak occurs.

Nothing is better remarked that the patient's complexion was bad. I presume this means a yellowish tint of the skin which often develops (although not in all cases) when the liver is affected.

The yellowness will disappear as fast as the liver resumes its normal functioning.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I have an outdoor job the year round. In winter my lips blister from the cold and in summer from the sun. Summer is the bigger problem. My family doctor is stumped. Would it be helpful to go to a skin specialist? — D. C.

Yes. This sounds like what we call a physical allergy—sensitivity to heat or cold. I doubt that salves or other local remedies will help. See a skin specialist might. For one possibility, there may be abnormal protein in your blood, which could be determined by special tests.

Negroes Go North

Montreal Gazette

The movement of American Negroes from the South to the north and west in the United States is a trend observers of the American scene have been watching for some years. But figures published recently provide the first substantial evidence of how large the migration has been in recent years.

In the five years between 1960 and 1965, more than 2 million Negroes migrated from the South; U.S. census and Labor Department studies show.

In 1960, 60 per cent of the country's 18,850,000 Negroes lived in the South. In 1965, only 53.6 per cent of the nearly 21 million Negroes still lived below the Mason-Dixie line.

The studies also show that about half the Negroes in the South live in the largest colored populations — New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Washington and Los Angeles — were born elsewhere, chiefly in the South.

The figures should provide at least part of the explanation why the scene of civil rights struggles, which only a few years ago were almost entirely confined to Southern states, has shifted to the large northern and western cities.

If the trend continues, as it seems to be, the struggles in these cities outside the south is bound to become more intense.

Airborne Gourmets

Christian Science Monitor

Intense competition is usually good for the consumer, but it can make choice difficult. Take these mouth-watering, competitive advertisements of the airlines. The picture of a serving of Rock Cornish game hen Vercingue which you are promised as a luncheon choice (if you don't care for filet mignon or lobster cardinal) could decide you in favor of the line that offers it.

But if you are taking a midday flight, perhaps it would be more sensible to book with the company that offers just a simple, elegant roast beef sandwich or a super fruit salad. Since rates, schedules, and safety features are so strictly regulated for all, you may as well let the menu be the basis of your choice of line.

We wonder what the present competition will lead to. Perhaps stricter regulation.

It has been done. Remember the sandwich war of 1958? The International Air Transport Association, in the interest of low rates, made a "sandwich only" rule for economy flights. But this just started an international sandwich race. The Scandinavian, long famous for their open-faced models, piled so many tasty, epicurean toppings upon their sandwiches that they became whole meals. In the end, the IATA had to make a formula for what constituted a sandwich. It came up with a formula: It must be cold, simple, inexpensive, with the bread visible.

Perhaps the whole matter will be solved as the speed of jets makes flight time so brief that there will no time for a meal. Hostesses can then serve a sandwich and beverage "to go" before passengers eat for the discomforts are being so outweigh the benefits; and there is no place to live that combines the beauty of the country with the culture of the city — which is what civilization ought to mean.

I was born during one Great War, lived through another, and perhaps will see the third (and final) one before I die. I cannot believe this represents a significant advance in human affairs since "barbarism" times. We are able to keep many more people alive on a retail basis, through progress in science, medicine and sanitation — only to be able to kill many more on a wholesale basis. Among battleships, bombs and gas chambers. The 20th century is the most murderous era of mankind.

Let me not conclude on a bleakly pessimistic note. It need not remain this way: there is nothing inevitable about our fate. But, just as the first step to becoming better is to know you are bad, and the first step to becoming well is to know you are ill, the first step to becoming civilized is to know you are still barbarous. When we stop thinking of ourselves as "civilized," and begin to inquire what the word truly means, we may begin to cross the threshold of humanhood.

Strictly Personal

Still A Primitive World

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Man is still living in the primitive world. The division we make between "barbarism" and "civilization" is compounded out of vanity and illusion. Viewed a thousand years from now, our century will seem as much a part of the "dark ages" as the eighth century now seems to us.

What fools us, and sustains us in our illusion, is our growth in technology. Our mechanistic world view makes us think that because of electricity, airplanes, conveyor belts and skyscrapers, we are somehow superior to the Hittites, the Babylonians and the Goths.

But the true mark of "civilization" is civility — that is, good manners at the deepest level of behavior. And our manners are no better than they were a thousand years ago; indeed, given our awesome instruments of technology, our bad manners are now infinitely more dangerous than ever in the past.

We are now able to hate more effectively, but we do not know how to love any better. We are now able to contemplate suicide and mutually suicidal wars between whole continents, whereas in the past, wars were limited to small city-states or duchies at the most. We are now able to poison the air everywhere, pollute all the waters, and make every crop radioactive — even among people with whom we have no quarrel.

We have been able to despoil the countryside and make the city increasingly uninhabitable, but we retain neither the consolations of rurlicity nor the advantages of urbanization. Whatever environment we opt for, the discomforts are bigging to outweigh the benefits; and there is no place to live that combines the beauty of the country with the culture of the city — which is what civilization ought to mean.

I was born during one Great War, lived through another, and perhaps will see the third (and final) one before I die. I cannot believe this represents a significant advance in human affairs since "barbarism" times. We are able to keep many more people alive on a retail basis, through progress in science, medicine and sanitation — only to be able to kill many more on a wholesale basis. Among battleships, bombs and gas chambers. The 20th century is the most murderous era of mankind.

Let me not conclude on a bleakly pessimistic note. It need not remain this way: there is nothing inevitable about our fate. But, just as the first step to becoming better is to know you are bad, and the first step to becoming well is to know you are ill, the first step to becoming civilized is to know you are still barbarous. When we stop thinking of ourselves as "civilized," and begin to inquire what the word truly means, we may begin to cross the threshold of humanhood.

Gaspe French Is Different

Ontario Hydro News

In Quebec, the paper "Executive Briefings" points out, French is primarily a language of love, emotion and manners—not business. And if the examples presented are typical, we would have to agree. Commenting on the difficulties of preparing bilingual catalogues, the paper cites the case of the electric kettle.

In Gaspe, we are told, an electric kettle is une bombe electrique, while in Montreal it is un canard electrique. Now, if our high school instruction remains valid, une bombe is a bomb and un canard is a duck. The Gaspe kettle is feminine while the Montreal version is masculine.

Choosing between an electric bomb and an electric duck is confusing enough without the sex problem.

Montreal Walkout

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote has acted swiftly in dealing with the threat to mail services in Montreal, a key centre for overseas delivery.

When a strike was called against Rod Service Ltd., a trucking firm under contract to the post office, Mr. Cote suspended its contract and appealed to other truckers to come forward and get the mails moving. The Federal department also obtained an injunction forbidding picketing of post offices.

Mr. Cote laid it on the line when he spoke out against strike action affecting the mails. "This is an emergency and the public is fed up with mail troubles. We're taking over, the mails are going through."

Remember, though, that this is a strike of only one firm which happens to be under contract to the post office. The government can afford to be tough — and talk in kind. Would Mr. Cote, or any other Government spokesman, from the Prime Minister down — be prepared to talk in similar vein had the strike been on a nation-wide basis?

Canada has been plagued by so many strikes in recent months that the public has become accustomed to them. True, many of them had considerable bite to them, but the time there is an obligation on public service employees to stay at their posts.

The Government, in turn, has been guilty of lack of foresight — in coming to grips with grievances in the recent postal and rail strikes for instance, and when the strikes finally did occur the reaction in Ottawa was a great deal more conciliatory than that of Mr. Cote in the case of the current Montreal walkout.

Some Matter's of Urgency

Globe and Mail

For seasonal reading the Canadian Highway Safety Council has released figures on death and injury on our highways in the first half of the year. From January 1 to the end of June, 2,025 persons were killed. The toll — greater than 14 Aberfans — was up 6.8 per cent over the number of deaths in the same period in 1965; up 10 per cent over 1964. In the same six months the number of persons injured in traffic accidents jumped by 11 per cent.

The figure is probably produced the usual amount of hand wringing, forehead clutching and general moaning about the need of "doing something" to stop the slaughter.

A whole lot could be done if we really wanted to cut the number of Canadians who are destined to have a rendezvous with sudden death.

We could, for instance:

Insist that proper safety engineering standards be followed in the building of new highways and superhighways.

Demand that existing highways and roads be cleared of obstacles, fitted with guardrails and split by median strips wherever needed.

Insist on the provision of more safety features as standard equipment on automobiles sold in Canada. U.S. legislation requires the incorporation of 28 safety devices; fewer than a third of these are standard equipment in Canada.

Require by law (as U.S. law does) that manufacturers notify the Government at once when any safety defects are discovered in automobiles on the road in Canada.

Train for driving instruction in all schools. Students who have passed such courses have 50 per cent fewer accidents.

Come to grips with the ghastly business of level crossings.

Stop issuing residential streets (which are also playgrounds) as parking lots.

Set up a system for the testing and licensing of motorbike drivers.

Provide our police forces — provincial and municipal — with enough men to enforce adequately the laws on the road.

Urge the courts to suspend license for far lengthier periods when drivers are convicted of drunkenness.

The list is one to which every reader could add. It is an old list. An oft-repeated list. A list that our governors will, very likely, do nothing about.

And yet, with 2,022 people dead in six months, the matter would seem to have more importance than most of the business preoccupying our cheap leaders at City Hall, Queen's Park and Parliament Hill.

Tourist Dollar Aids Many

Christian Science Monitor

The tourist with travelling bag and camera, walking down the gangplank to a foreign land, may feel a bit self-conscious. He knows he cannot hide his tourist look. But he should not apologize.

He is becoming recognized as a big factor in the host country's economic progress. He contributes to the inflow of foreign currency every land needs for international trade.

But many of those countries that have the most crucial need for economic development are now entertaining few if any tourists. They need to be helped in that area in this "growth industry."

This is pointed out in an article in the Pan Pacific Observer, monthly publication of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. It notes that its own membership of 21 countries, mainly European, states 95 percent of the world's $11.6 billion annual tourist business, while all of Africa and the Middle East share only 0.5 percent of it.

It cites as an example what some of its own developing nation members have done. By by spending to make their countries more attractive to tourists, Spain, Greece, Portugal, Yugoslavia, and now Turkey are rapidly expanding this industry.

Less developed and less known countries will have to work harder to do the same. They will have to tell their world about their historic monuments, their scenery, their people. They will also have to offer good hotels, safe transportation, and the services tourists enjoy.

The opportunities open to them are big. But development takes know-how and investment. Here is an important area for service on the part of those agencies that can furnish technical and financial assistance.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 14, 1966 . . .

The Labor party became Britain's official opposition 48 years ago today—in 1918 —after the "khaki election," in which men over 21 and women over 30 voted for the first time. Within six years it toppled the first Labor government, after the collapse of the Liberals, who had to wait for a coalition government. Before the First World War, voting in Britain had been restricted to men. Women won the vote on equal terms with men in 1928.

1911—Roald Amundsen of Norway discovered the South Pole.

1916—Denmark voted by a plebiscite to sell its Caribbean possessions to the United States for $25,000,000.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—the Allies demanded the Greek army withdraw from northern Greece; the King appointed a new army council in London; HMS Russia was sunk with no loss of life.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — Russian troops surrounded German units at Taganrog; the British shot down 18 Axis aircraft for 18 losses over Libya; Turkey restated its policy of neutrality; U.S. aircraft attacked two Japanese troopships off Luzon, Philippines.

$80,000,000 Redevelopment

Private Company Likely Last to Attempt Giant Project

TORONTO (CP)—Julius Hannson isn't a conceited man, but he figures he's likely the last of his kind in Canada.

Mr. Hanson, through his private company, is in the middle of the largest apartment redevelopment project in Canada —a huge venture that will provide accommodation for about 15,000 persons in what used to be a rundown area of east-central Toronto.

Billed as a city within a city, the project will cost about $80,000,000. That's the reason, Mr. Hanson says, there is not likely to be another similar development in Canada by private enterprise.

"The problems of assembling the land, including the costs, and then the costs of actually putting up the project make it prohibitive for private enterprise to undertake anything on this scale again," he says.

"Any further redevelopment in a big way will almost certainly have to be on the basis of government action or else by city expropriation of land and then putting the job up for tenders."

The project, called St. James Town, is in an area bounded by Parliament, Sherbourne, Wellesley and Bloor streets. It is under the direction of Meridian Property Management Ltd., family-owned firm of which Mr. Hanson is president.

Meridian has about 8,500 other apartment suites in Metropolitan Toronto.

St. James Town comprises two apartment buildings already completed, two more under construction and two more ready to go up. Three other buildings are on the drawing boards for future construction.

In all, it will contain 8,000 suites, with rentals now set at about $140 or $180 a month.

The two buildings now going up will be, for a time at least, the largest single apartment dwellings in Canada. Each contains 507 suites, with one of the structures 32 storeys high.

To contain its own shopping centre and recreation facilities —including a full-time director and two Olympic-sized swimming pools—the 30-acre project also will be one of the largest of its kind to be heated with electricity.

Mr. Hanson estimates that when it is completed, the development will use more electricity annually than the cities of Brockville, St. Thomas or North Bay.

BUDGET-RENT-A-CAR EXPANDS IN CANADA

CALGARY — Budget Rent-A-Car System of Canada, a branch of the Ford Motor Company (Budget Rent-A-Car Corporation of America) car rental operation in the world, today announced that it will challenge the "Big Three" in Canada, Hertz, Avis or for a portion of the lucrative airport trade.

The Department of Transportation's refusal of the Budget request for space at facilities in Canada's air terminals is something in the nature of a "David" to the smallest of the "Big Four" auto rental companies.

Budget, approaching its 10-U.T. in the start of 1965, Budget has become a true national operation, with offices at airports in the smaller cities across Canada, as well as the major ones.

The Budget operation, which has been able to maintain a 20 to 25 per cent rental price lists its competitors, began in 1958 in Los Angeles, John Lodenquai, president of the privately-owned corporation (and husband of columnist Ann Landers) began his rental transportation system with 50 used cars.

In 1960, the head office was moved to Chicago, and for the first time, new models (compacts) were put into operation. Lower overhead and greater utilization enabled the company to maintain lower rental prices; contributing in a large part to the fact that the company now has a network of over 400 franchised rental outlets in the U.S. and Canada. Budget also maintains offices in Puerto Rico, Europe, Spain, Switzerland, England and Mexico.

December 1, 1962, marked the beginning of Canada's first Budget Rent-A-Car Systems. Morris Reisberg, Calgary born and raised, opened the Calgary office with five cars. Other franchises ensued, in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Hamilton, Windsor and other cities.

The basis for operation under Budget in Canada became nationwide.

Today, the Budget System in Canada numbers 1,200 units, and are located in 22 airports operated by the Department of Transport.

In line with the growth of air travel, Budget fleet will increase, tripling its fleet to 3600 vehicles in Canada by 1970.

Chairman's Synopsis on Hospital Report

EDITOR'S NOTE:

(The following is the summation of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission report on the administration of Belleville General Hospital.)

It was delivered to a joint meeting of Belleville city and Hastings County councils, by J. McLean Hall, chairman of the hospital's board of governors.

A report on the synopsis delivered by Mr. Hall was published in yesterday's Intelligencer after the chairman released his summation — no one could.

That the document be published in its entirety without any changes in this newspaper.

This is that report verbatim, as made available by Mr. Hall).

Your worship, your honor, members of the city and county councils, ladies and gentlemen — There has been some controversy regarding the report of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission on conditions which have previously existed at the Belleville General Hospital. The minister of health, the Commission and the board feel and hope that the report would not be made public. The board of governors feel, however, that you are entitled to a statement regarding the report with which it entirely and completely agree. As one who was an elected representative for a good many years, I realize that "they who pay the piper must call the tune." Also, I have learned from experience that in delicate situations it is better to take the people responsible into one's confidence and to provide as much information to them as possible in the hope that it will be treated in trust and as private and confidential.

A hospital is a very sensitive institution. It is generally different from any other publicly owned concern of which I am aware. It is primarily and totally devoted and dedicated to the care of those who are unfortunately committed to it. The success of its function is dependant upon the co-operation, co-ordination, skill, devotion and dedication of all members of its staff, professional and non-professional. It must have a loyal and dedicated medical staff dedicated to the point that nothing less than the best in the quality of medical care is good enough. It must have a devoted nursing staff, again dedicated to the point that nothing less than the best in the standard of nursing care is good enough for the patients entrusted to it.

A hospital must have good housekeeping. It must have good maintenance. It must have good food. It must have good leadership and good administration. A failure in any of these elements will make it possible for any hospital to fail to live up responsibility to the communities that it serves. Therefore to engage a hospital in any of its aspects in public controversy is a dis-service to it in any or all of its purposes.

For some considerable time some of us have realized that all was not well here. It is entirely to feel but quite another to discuss and prove. This was drawn emphatically to your attention at the opening of the room of a new director of nursing on August 15th last and the resignation of the operating room supervisor soon thereafter. Incidents following both of these events caused the board to investigate certain conditions at the senior supervisory level in the hospital resulting quickly in the resignations of the assistant administrator and the director of nursing service.

Many special meetings of the board of governors were held and much discussion took place regarding not only all the circumstances but also the personalities involved and their relation each to the other and the obvious breakdown in communication and confidence which existed.

As our discussions continued it became apparent that a difference of opinion among the members of the nursing service existed and this should lead to a division in these circumstances it could be very serious. Things were made more serious because at this time we received a petition from the members of the nursing service. I was, and still am personally convinced that a failure to conciliate our differences would have resulted in mass resignations on a serious scale.

Having all of these circumstances in mind, we came to the reluctant conclusion that our responsibility could be best met at the local level. I communicated with the chairman of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission and explained to him the difficulty in which I thought we as board of governors were in, that I felt that help from an outside source would be welcome. The chairman then told me that the commission had a firm conviction that local hospital boards should be autonomous and that interference was not to be tolerated. However, after a weekend, the chairman telephoned me and said he had been pondering over matters and reading statements in the Toronto press and he felt, with the approval of the minister of health, that the Ontario Hospital Services Commission should take an active participation in the solution of our problem but that it would be invited to do so. I immediately telephoned the majority of the members on the executive committee, some were not available, and I was subconscious to invite the commission to send a team of its most senior consultants down to make a survey and to interview at their discretion any persons at any level and in any capacity they saw fit so to do. There were 24 members of persons so interviewed.

The famous report was the result. It was presented to the board of governors at a special meeting on November 11th last. The report was presented as a confidential report and designated as such from the Ontario Hospital Services Commissions and signed by Dr. J. S. W. Alldis, the then commissioner of hospitals. It has since been appointed to be in charge of OMSIP. The report was made to the board of governors of the Belleville General Hospital. Incidentally the report and all expenses connected with it including the salaries living and travelling expenses of Miss Jamieson the acting director of nursing service and Mr. Krock, the acting administrator, are all being paid for by the commission. Both Miss Jamieson and Mr. Krock are with us tonight and this would be a convenient opportunity to introduce them to you, Miss Jamieson . . . Mr. Krock.

The team of consultants consisted of Mr. K. E. Box, director of hospital care standards, and incidentally, a former administrator of this hospital and Miss Jamieson with a number of years experience in problems. Other members of the top consulting team were: Dr. H. E. Appleyard, head inspection services of hospital care standards, Mr. H. D. Lautpaine, director of hospital budgets, Mr. John Hornal, chief consultant hospital operating standards and Miss J. Sharpe, senior nursing consultant hospital operating standards. The team spent a week here and detailed reports and recommendations of these consultants. Their reports are in the possession of and have been thoroughly studied by the commission.

The report observed that there were a number of factors which makes it difficult for the board, the administrator and the senior staff in the hospital and to operate at maximum efficiency at the present time. Some of these difficulties are overcrowding, disruption caused by the introduction of the new programme, some uncertainty and perhaps reaction to changes resulting from the introduction of what is known as the Friesen system and a reputation for poor nursing—and not by any means the least the publicity which has been given to the affair by the press.

There has been some public interest shown and publicity in the press regarding the brief section in the report dealing with the board of governors and I think that perhaps to remove any possibility of misunderstanding it would be well for me to read this particular section in detail. Before doing so I would like to point out that a board of governors is somewhat different to normal boards of trustees because it is largely composed of lay people charged with the responsibility for a professional matter. Therefore when a board lays down and establishes policy from there on it must be completely left in the hands of the administration of the hospital to implement and if for any reason this is not done then it is difficult for the board to find out that it has not been done and to do very much about it when it does.

The section regarding the board of governors reads as follows:

"The board of this hospital is composed of individuals who have a sincere and keen interest in providing good health facilities to the community. It is evident however that there are a number of factors which may have influenced the hospital's difficulties:

1. There are indications of disagreement within the board.

2. There is evidence that the board has digressed on occasion from its main function as a policy-making board, with some board members making direct contact with hospital personnel.

3. There is evidence that the board as a whole does not support the administrator.

4. Many of the hospital by-laws shows that certain senior members of the hospital staff have failed to be supported by the board of governors.

5. Individual prejudices may have interfered with sound policy making judgment and action.

Board members have occasionally been "lobbied" by medical staff and others.

7. There is evidence of some board failure to work closely with the medical staff and to recognize its problems."

Some brief comments in regard to the building programme are perhaps be in order. I am not aware of any serious disagreement on the board. I would suggest that there must be differences in opinion or a very unhealthy situation would result. Under hospital by-laws certain senior members of the staff are formally employed by the board but as a matter of practice it is usually to the fact that it is always on the recommendation of the administrator. I might add that there is some reason for this arrangement. For many months now we have made a very sincere effort to work closely with the medical staff but there have been some problems beyond the control of the board in this regard.

The recommendations of the report has already been summarized and published in the press. The primary one is of course are the appointments of an acting administrator and an assistant director of nursing service both of which have been made and as already pointed out both persons are already in charge of their respective responsibilities at Toronto. Dr. Krock to advertise for an administrator who would become our permanent administrator, a director of nursing services who would become our permanent director of nursing services. It was thought that if we could get these persons at a salary which would be attractive it would be most desirable for them to have the advantage of working with Dr. Krock and Miss Jamieson respectively for some little time. This having been done, the other recommendations directed towards the immediate improvement of communication — the establishment of job descriptions and terms of reference, these matters and other including a handbook for employees which has been completed, will be carried out just as quickly as time will permit. I think too that it is a fair and correct statement to say that those of us who have spent a considerable amount of time in the hospital in recent years feel already a lessening of tension and an improvement in morale. More people are working and in fact I was stopped by one of our male orderlys the other day who volunteered the information of what an improvement had already taken place. This I think speaks well for those who are temporarily in charge.

Otherwise, the hospital is, I think, in excellent condition. You will hear from Mr. Buchan the status of the building programme and its progress in regard to its completion.

There have never been to my knowledge any problems in regard to finances and indeed the financial operations of the hospital in relation to the approved budget is under control and everything in the hospital is well within its budget for the current fiscal year and has been for some years back as I can remember. Here I might point out too that we resigned our own comptroller, Mrs. Curzon, required a replacement and a week ago Mr. Harold Mason a chartered accountant from the commission itself had took up the appointment permanently and we are very fortunate and very glad to have him as an addition to our staff. Mrs. Curzon resigned to pursue further education.

The quality of patient care has been excellent and there is every reason to believe that this can now be improved. In fairness to the nursing services, it should be pointed out that in spite of all of our problems there has never been any reduction in either the quantity or the quality of this care and the nursing services is to be commended for its loyalty and efficiency through this very difficult period.

In closing I would like to say that we should be proud of our hospital and when the new facilities and the new building are complete there will be even more to be proud of. But we should be proud of it as a service and a function which under modern day living requirements is an necessary to the health and well-being of any community. Thank you.

Two Gifts for Youngsters

TRENTON — Two timely Christmas gifts to the children of Trenton are tonight's presentation of Puss in Boots by the Ontario School of Dancing and Acting at the high school, and tomorrow night's Christmas concert by the Trenton Citizens' Band (also at the high school) with side assists from the Junior Band and the high school Glee Club under the direction of Mr. Peter Howe.

Friday night, at the Country Club, a program which has become a local institution, Jimmy Utley night will be held.

This makes the 15th year of operation by the genial host, who leads in the singing of carols to music supplied by the Salvation Army Band. Proceeds go to assist the Army pack Christmas baskets for the needy.

Yule Shopping Much Rougher Sport Than Golf, Tennis

"I'd like to oblige you, but I feel my pulse rate rising dangerously just at the thought of it."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tired feet? Wail until Dec. 26.

The American Podiatry Association estimates shoppers will hike an estimated 75 miles apiece this year.

"In crowded stores, especially around bargain counters, shoppers' feet and ankles are subject to many of the same rigors football players encounter," say the foot doctors.

Worse yet, being an athlete doesn't help much. Christmas shopping, says the association, "is a much rougher sport than golf or tennis."

Dr. Seward P. Nyman, spokesman for the associations 8,000 doctors, says: "Christmas activity is undoubtedly more severe than people realize. Shoppers will be kicked, stepped on, gouged and generally roughed up.

"Housewives panic; they not only do things they cram into the other 11 months, but they take an extra chores as well. Zealous women make up more than half our patients."

The association recommended four rules for shoppers:

1. Wear low-heeled shoes. Spike heels are like walking on stilts. Carry an extra pair.

2. Take a five-minute break every hour or so, sit down and flex your toes. Keep feet warm and dry.

3. When queued up in a long line, keep moving. Shift your weight constantly.

4. At the end of the day, massage feet with softening cream and prop them up at an angle higher than the head.

Has Dr. Nyman any special rules? "Frankly, I try to get my wife to do the shopping. I admire her for being a Trojan."

Assoc. for Retarded Meets

The December general meeting of the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children was held recently at the school on John Street. This took the form of a auction and bake sale with the proceeds going toward the Smith's Falls Hospital swimming pool fund.

The auctioneers were Mr. Steve Baney and Mr. Tom Stovell.

The nominating committee presented the slate of officers for 1967. Mr. John Ross was elected as the new president.

A presentation was made to Mrs. D. Durand. At the close of the evening, refreshments were served.

Prophesy Computerized Kitchen by Year 2000

NEW YORK (AP) — Comes the era of the computerized kitchen along about the year 2000 and dinner menus may start reading "Do not fold, spindle or mutilate."

Housewives will "press a couple of buttons on their kitchen computer and relax while the food moves from storage area to stove and to the table," prophesies C. W. Cook, chairman of General Foods Corp.

Computers will do the work at the store, too, Cook said in a speech to a meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers.

At the market, the shopper will "insert her charge-a-plate, punch her order into a computer and have it delivered to her car or even right to her home storage area."

"Shopping by television with push - button selection is also entirely feasible" by the end of the century, Cook said.

Whatever else happens, however, houses in the year 2000 won't be built without kitchens "because I doubt very much that the female of the species will change so much that she still won't get a great deal of delight and satisfaction from whipping up some tempting dishes for her family—at least on special occasions."

Improved preservation techniques, such as freeze drying and dehydro-freezing — a process in which the water is removed before freezing — will be used to keep foods in any climate without refrigeration and to decrease bulk and storage space, Cook said.

"Irradiation . . . will give us foods that remain sterile for extended periods of time and offer the advantages of lower handling costs, less refrigeration and reduced food loss. Antibiotics will be used increasingly to preserve dressed poultry, meats and fish."

Mouse Ran Over Feet, She Lost $4 in Game

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman in our card club is one of the dearest people I know. I wouldn't hurt her feelings for the world but she has mice in her house. Yesterday a little grey mouse ran across my feet during the card game and I thought I'd pass out. I managed to keep the discovery to myself but I was so nervous I lost. When the refreshments were served I couldn't eat a thing.

Should I tell her or would it be wise to send her a mouse trap anonymously? — DILLY OF A DILEMMA.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR DILLY: Say nothing, and don't send any anonymous gifts. Sooner or later someone in the family will learn that they have uninvited guests running around and something will be done about it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to address this letter to "Veteran of Domestic Wars" — the poor little guy who is unable to give his wife sufficient physical attention because her timing is so bad. Imagine! He comes home from work and she tells him the washing machine broke and it means a repair bill or one of the kids needs dental braces and it will cost $600.

When does he consider the time right for such news? Or maybe she shouldn't bother him at all. She could tell the mailman or the lady next door, but I don't think they would come up with the money.

Docs "Vet" believe his wife should wait until the first thing in the morning? No. That would ruin his whole day. Should she call him at work right after lunch? He'd hate that.

I say a wife's best bet is just before dinner. She must catch him while he is still awake and before he grabs the newspaper and turns on the TV.

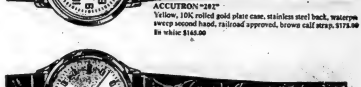
If "Vet" would write and tell us wives when is the best time to ask a husband for extra money without rendering him impotent I would be grateful. — JUST ME.

DEAR ME: If Vet sees this I hope he will respond because this is a question that only a husband can answer.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That was a wonderfully wise letter from the woman who said we must not forget how important it is for parents to show their children they are loved.

My sister and I both suffered from emotional problems because we felt rejected. Our mother was angry with us most of the time. We seldom received a smile or a word of encouragement. Now, many years later I know why she was cold and uncommunicative.



Like so many other women, her husband paid no attention to her. She hungered for his love and approval and she never got it. I am reminded of something I read in your column, "The greatest gift a father can give his children is to love their mother." — NOW I KNOW WHY.

DEAR FRIEND: It's unfortunate that the insight to your mother's and life didn't come earlier. It could have saved you some grief.

Children who are ignored or treated coldly often feel that they are inadequate — that something is wrong with them. How sad that they never learn the truth — that the real inadequacy lies with one parent or both.

All watches have a balance wheel, a hairspring and a mainspring. And because these mechanical watch parts are subject to wear (like any machine where part grinds against part), they also have trouble keeping the right time.

The Accutron movement does not depend on watchworks. Instead, an electronic tuning fork keeps time through vibrations (which explains the humming noise instead of the tick, tock). And it keeps the right time. In fact, we guarantee monthly accuracy within 60 seconds.* (And we know Accutron owners who say their timepiece is accurate to within 60 seconds a year.)

It doesn't surprise us.

But it will surprise the men on your Christmas list. Particularly, if they already own a watch.

A new Christmas dessert — Mikan Yule Log. Mikan is the Japanese word for mandarin orange. The cake part is basically a jelly roll batter. Mary Moore gives you details, which are comparatively simple, for such a glamorous dessert.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Novel Christmastime Dessert for 10

Mikan (pronounced mee-kahn) is the Japanese name of mandarin oranges. "Mi" means "sweet"; "kan" means "orange."

These delicious free-peeling citrus fruits from the Orient are readily available fresh in Canada during the Christmas season and in cans all year round.

I made Mikan Yule Log and found it comparatively easy, festive to behold and delicious to taste. A novel Christmastime dessert.

MIKAN YULE LOG (serves 10)

2 large eggs
¾ cup granulated sugar
⅓ cup mandarin orange juice (or ⅓ cup syrup from canned mandarin oranges)
2 tsps. grated mandarin orange rind (or 1 tsp. bottled orange or lemon rind)
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2¼ tsps. single-acting baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. mace (or nutmeg)

FILLING:

One 4-oz. package caramel pudding and pie filling (2 for 30 cents)*
1 cup orange juice
1 cup 22 percent cream, whipped.

In large beater bowl beat eggs until light and foamy. Gradually add sugar and beat until foamy and pale and thick. This takes about 5 to 10 minutes. Beat in orange juice or syrup. Fold in grated rind.

Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, salt and mace and sprinkle over egg mixture and fold in until all flour particles are incorporated.

Line bottom of 15 x 10" jelly roll pan with wax paper and butter it. (I used a buttered teflon pan and no paper.) Turn batter in and smooth top. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 12 min. or until cake shrinks slightly from sides of pan. Do not overbake. Have ready an icing-sugar-sprinkled tea towel. As soon as cake is baked turn it out on towel. Peel off paper if used. Starting at narrow end, roll up, including towel in roll. Cool to room temperature. Immediately make filling in a saucepan by adding the 1 cup orange juice to the pudding and pie filling and cook, stirring, until thick. This is very thick. Cool to room temperature. When cake has cooled whip cream until stiff. Give the caramel filling a very good beating then stir into it the whipped cream a small amount at a time until it is smooth. Some small flecks of caramel filling may show but these are attractive. Unroll cake. Spread with half of filling. Roll cake up. Place on attractive oblong serving plate.

Frost all over with remaining filling, finishing with long strokes to give an effect of bark on a log. Chill covered with tent of saran. I chilled mine overnight. At serving time garnish with fresh or canned mandarin orange sections and if desired top with three Christmas candles, lighted, as you carry it to the table. Take my word for it that this unusual combination of flavors is delicious and was popular with our critical crowd.

Calendar Tube Camouflages Gifts

GUESSING WON'T HELP

Hi Susanna: A good camouflage wrapping for small gifts when one doesn't want the recipient to guess what is inside, is a calendar tube or wax paper roll.

Cover with tissue and tie the ends like the proverbial cracker. In this protective shell no amount of feeling and poking will reveal what is inside. — Greing Wiser

Ex-mental Patient Accepts Various Temporary Positions

Dear Doris: Re an article in your column recently about the job-seeking troubles of an ex-mental patient. I write as just another person who travelled the same road a few years ago, and can safely say "Cheer up!" This time will pass.

I told everything to the employment service when applying for work. I was asked to take a test with others who were looking for work and we were advised on our merits.

My first job was as holiday relief: three weeks in a co-ed girl office. (I have accepted each job offered as experience is valuable). I told the boss about the hospitalization. His reply was, "Well, you are all right now, aren't you?"

Perhaps I was lucky, preferring to work in smaller places, but I am not sure if this is typical. I think the main thing is to get work at something as a start; there are usually a lot of people looking for work and you may have to accept a temporary change to fit the circumstances.

Yes, there is prejudice, but it isn't everywhere. Sometimes the Canadian Mental Health Association (White Cross) can help with understanding, advice, social activities, etc. Again it need only be temporary help. — Job Finder.

Dear Job Finder: Very glad to have your encouraging Word To The Wise.

Dear Doris: I am very much interested in your column and the answers you give to those troubled and foolish teen-agers. Oh, if they could only be a bit more thoughtful, how much heartache they would save for themselves and their parents! —Mother of Three.

Dear Mother: The ones who write to me are doing their best to be thoughtful — or they wouldn't be seeking for answers.

Life, and fun, and new ideas bombard youth at such a rate that they may seem heedless. But rare is the young person who can't be reached by an appeal for interest or sympathy.

Isn't it largely a matter of communication, generously laced with trust?

* * *

Dear Doris: I am interested in receiving your book list on the facts of life. We have three teen-agers, and I have tried to answer their questions in a straight-forward manner, but somewhere along the line we got off on the wrong foot, because they are not coming to me with their questions any more.

They don't even seem to want to talk about it when I bring the subject up in private. — Perplexed Parent.

Dear Perplexed: 'Twas ever thus. But be handy for that first emergency. The day will come when your friendliness and unshockableness will pay off. Right now your teen-agers are trying what they can figure out on their own.

Dear Doris: Would you please send me your ten-cent leaflet: Three Christmas Candies You Can Make.

You have given me much help in the past. We used The Mock Wedding and also St. Patrick's Day ideas and were very successful. Have had requests to do the Wedding for several other groups.

Grateful.

Dear Grateful: Your card deserves a blue ribbon. Even the cerniest of skills can come alive in the hands of free-wheeling imaginative stars!

YOUNGSTERS BARRED KEEP IT QUIET

SHEPSTEAD, England (CP) —A Leicestershire vicar has asked parishioners not to sing at the early-morning service on Sundays. Rev. Raymond Coates says most people haven't had breakfast and "the sound of singing on an empty stomach leaves a lot to be desired. I am convinced that the congregation sounds much better after a good breakfast."

TRUDY

"Platitudes! Platitudes! I ask for the facts of life and all I get is platitudes!"

More Talk Urged

MONTREAL (CP) — Children spend 75 per cent of their time listening to teachers talk and it should be the other way around, thinks Alice Crossley, professor of education at Boston University. Dr. Crossley addressed the Protestant Teachers' Association in Montreal.

Montreal Mail Trucks Are Moving Once Again

MONTREAL (CP) — Mail truck drivers went back to work in force today, resuming pick-ups and deliveries in the city where a three-day strike piled up a crush of Christmas mail.

First regular deliveries started shortly after 5 a.m. when twenty truckloads of mail left the main post office destined for sub-stations and handling by letter carriers.

Postmaster - General Jean-Pierre Cote announced settlement Tuesday of the strike by 350 mail truck drivers employed by Rod Service Ltd., a private firm which handles mail pick-ups and delivery in the Montreal area.

The drivers, who walked out Saturday night seeking higher pay and a shorter work week, approved a new two-year contract providing pay increases totalling 78 cents an hour and a gradual reduction in their work week to 40 hours.

The strike came just as the Christmas rush began at the post office, which was preparing to take on part-time sorters and letter carriers to handle the increased load of mail.

Mr. Cote suspended Rod Service's contract with the postal department Sunday and ordered postal officials to hire private truckers in an attempt to keep the mails moving.

He said the emergency effort maintained first - class mail service on Montreal Island.

But officials said that the private truckers, kept busy shuttling mail to and from city postal stations, the airport and railway stations, were unable to provide normal pickups at street letter boxes.

The new contract calls for an increase of 23 cents an hour retroactive to June 23, bringing the basic hourly rate to $2.20 from $1.97. It provides for another 10 cents with the signing of the contract, an additional 35 cents next July 1 and a final 10 cents Jan. 1, 1968.

The work week will be reduced to 48 hours Jan. 1 and to 40 hours July 1, 1967. The men have been working 55 to 70 or more hours each week.

Mr. Cote said the government would pay all least a portion of the contractor's higher costs, but no over-all amount was disclosed. Rod Service's contract was for $2,500,000 a year.

He told a press conference the strike would speed up studies aimed at establishing the post office's own mail truck services.

"I hope that pretty soon the post office will have its own service."

The driver's union is the Federation of Public Service Employees, affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, which negotiated its first contract for the mail truckers.

Gore

THE GORE — Centre United Church Women met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Winston Pulver. The group is disbanding since Centre Church has been closed.

Victoria United Church Women catered to a Christmas party at Tobe's, Rossmore, on Friday evening. They also served a turkey dinner to the Salvation Army's Home League at their citadel in Belleville on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Kenneth Green returned to her home on Wednesday after spending the past several days with her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Carter and Mr. Carter, 2nd concession.

Educator Says 25 Per Cent Raise Teacher Goal

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto school teachers will be asking for a 25-per-cent salary increase at their next bargaining session, Barry Lowes, chairman of the Toronto board of education, predicted Tuesday.

Mr. Lowes told the Association of Women Electors that teachers are becoming more unionized than ever before in bargaining for wage increases.

Mr. Lowes said it is frightening to think how much teachers' salary increases could amount to, "yet we must recognize that the cost of living has gone up as much as 12 per cent in the past couple of years."

English Canadians Said Ignorant Of Nature of Quiet Revolution

English Canadians are ignorant of the real nature of the "quiet revolution" among French Canadians, J. Allan Perham, president of Canadian Oxygen Ltd., told Belleville Rotarians.

Noting that events in Quebec were related only indirectly to either the preservation of the French language or to the question of political autonomy, Mr. Perham said: "We must recognize that the quiet revolution is not a revolt of French against English . . . The real aim of this movement is not the destruction of Canada, but the emergence of Quebec from a cloistered society."

Mr. Perham said he was weary of hearing English Canadians asking: "What does Quebec really want"?

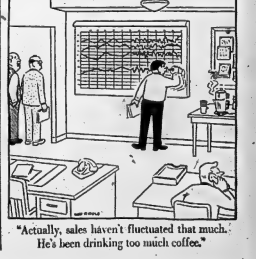
"What does any Canadian want? Surely it is to be able to live and work and travel in any part of his own country so that he still can feel it is his country and not a foreign land. He wants to feel welcome, at ease, and to know that no matter what happens to him he is among his own people and will be treated as a member of the nation or a family."

He said when French Canada sought a fuller scope for its French language it was really urging that the rest of the country take advantage of opportunities to learn.

"Whatever else you may call an appeal for broader language education, it is neither backward nor unenlightened."

Describing the lack of knowledge of the French contribution to Canada's historical beginnings as "sinful," Mr. Perham said: "Surely their loyalty in the face of invasion during the War of 1812 deserves appreciation. When survival became an issue, the French adherence to the Crown was unflinching and inflexible."

Those who believed in separation were advocating insurrection, said Mr. Perham, observing that complete understanding of each other's aims and aspirations must be the cornerstone of any solution.



"We must use what common ground exists to work out compromises permitting a single Canadian nationality capable of embracing all residents of Canada of English, French or any other ethnic origin.

"Equal partnership in Canada is the answer to separatism," said Mr. Perham. "We must stand for one Canada, bilingual and multicultural."

The speaker was introduced by J. C. (Pat) Houston and thanked by Canon Bob Wright, Rotary president. Dr. J. F. McCorquodale presided.

Film Scene Goes Awry

Famed British actor John Mills, working in his first Hollywood "western," does some unplanned acting as an Indian's arrow fails to "kill" him on schedule. Mills portraying a U.S. Army colonel, is about to be hit (upper sequence) by arrow travelling along thin wire fastened to his chest. He reacts (lower left) on feeling impact, but arrow fails to stick and bounces back several inches from the surprised actor, as the director yells "cut." (AP Photo)

Whites District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Westfall, Mr. and Mrs. George Bilham and Mr. and Mrs. Murrie Kleinsteuber attended the D.C.A. evening at the Trenton Golf Club.

Mrs. Ted Hogle was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Westfall and Miss Betty Westfall. All attended the Bay of Quinte Institute card party at Harder's School.

Sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barr and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Barr of this district whose father, Mr. George Barr passed away this past week in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

White's Sunday School is practising for the annual concert to be held on Saturday afternoon.

Method of Freezing Baked Apples Developed as Aid to Ontario Growers

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. J. H. L. Truscott said Tuesday a method of canning and freezing whole baked McIntosh apples has been perfected at the Horticultural Research Institute of Ontario at Vineland.

Dr. Truscott, director of the horticultural products laboratory at the institute, said the process must be done commercially because no housewife could afford the machinery.

The machine was displayed at the Ontario Food Processors Association 33rd annual meeting here Tuesday. The finished product — canned and frozen baked McIntosh apples — was also on display.

Dr. Truscott said the process —developed by researchers at Summerland, B.C. — was perfected in an effort to help the Ontario apple grower dispose of his crop. McIntosh apples account for 43 per cent of the apples grown in Ontario, he said.

Dr. Truscott described the method as a vacuum system under a syrup that is made up of 25-per-cent sugar and 75-per-cent water.

Food processors attending the meeting were invited to examine the machine and taste the finished product in the hope they would enter the business of baking, canning and freezing the McIntosh for retail consumption.

Processors Told Labor To Be Short

TORONTO (CP)—An official from the federal manpower and immigration department Tuesday warned Ontario food processors that they could face a labor shortage in their industry next year.

H. A. D. Scott, director of manpower for Ontario, said Expo 67 and other projects in Quebec and Labrador could cause a labor shortage in Ontario.

"As far as importing labor from Quebec and Eastern Canada is concerned, it is my expectation that a growing economy there, Expo 67, the expanded tourist industry and the hydro-electric development in Labrador are going to make tremendously more difficult." cruitment in these areas im-

Shysters Abound Says Nixon

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Nixon, only declared candidate for the vacant Ontario Liberal leadership, says Ontario is becoming known as the province of shysters because of the activities of small irresponsible financial groups.

Mr. Nixon, speaking to the St. Andrew-St. Patrick Liberal Association Tuesday night, said the Ontario government is not living up to its responsibilities to protect small investors. He said the recently-created department of financial and commercial affairs is not adequately staffed.

Publishers Summonsed Over Kennedy Manuscript

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy served a summons on Harper and Row, the publishers, and Look magazine Tuesday in what appeared to be an effort to prevent publication of the book Death of a President.

William Attwood, editor-in-chief of Look, said "we are going ahead; the presses are already rolling.

"We're publishing. I don't see any way it can be stopped."

The book, originally written by William Manchester at Mrs. Kennedy's request, is scheduled to begin in serial form in the magazine's Jan. 16 issue.

Mrs. Kennedy first asked Manchester to write the book "in the interests of accuracy," but was later reported disturbed by some use in it of her personal recollections.

CARS KILL GAME

ST. JOHN'S (CP)—About 20 moose have been killed on Newfoundland highways this year, says Frank Mensel, chief provincial biologist. The most lethal section is a 100-mile stretch of the Trans-Canada Highway between Gambo and Badger where the bush reaches right to the edge of the highway, which has no shoulder.

Opposition Unimpressed

Liberals Favor Durgens

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of Liberal MPs took time out from Commons duties Tuesday night to watch make-believe MP Quentin Durgens in action on CBC television.

A visitor to the government lobbies just off the Commons found about 30 Liberals seated in a semicircle around a TV set watching the program with actor Gordon Pinsent in the role of the fictional Manitoba MP.

While the real Commons studied a government bill to add a $50 a month supplement to the old age pension, the Liberal MPs watched Durgens battle to get a war pension for a disabled Korean veteran.

A peek into the opposition lobbies revealed the TV program was getting the cold shoulder from Conservatives, NDP, Social Credit and Creditists MPs.

During the Commons question period Tuesday, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker showed he, too, is interested.

He asked State Secretary LaMarsh to use her influence to get him a transcript of the Durgens show last week.

He complained he had been refused by the CBC because the script was copyright.

Reimburse Investors Says NDP

TORONTO (CP)—The financial critic for the Ontario New Democratic Party says the Ontario and federal governments should reimburse those who lost money in the collapse of Norris American General Insurance Co., and its parent, Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd.

Ken Bryden, member of the legislature for Woodbine, said Tuesday the governments "should immediately get together to work out a co-operative plan for reimbursing the multitude of small investors and policy holders who will suffer crushing losses as a result of the financial shenanigans" of Prudential Finance and its subsidiary companies.

Favreau Illness Revives Speculation of Cabinet Shuffle

OTTAWA (CP) — Guy Favreau is out of hospital after a long illness, but the political future of the star-crossed federal cabinet minister is clouded in doubt.

Although an aide insists the former corporation lawyer will be back in harness next month, other informed Liberals think it unlikely.

Their view is that the politically worn helped put him in hospital. Returning to the field would pose new dangers to his over-all health.

The 43-year-old Quebec Liberal leader spent nine weeks in Ottawa General Hospital suffering from pneumonia and exhaustion. He was released three weeks ago to complete his convalescence at his Ottawa home.

Mr. Favreau made his federal debut in 1963, winning the Papineau riding. At first a rising figure in the government, he soon ran into a succession of political difficulties climaxed by the health breakdown three months ago.

Last year, the Dorion inquiry into the Lucien Rivard extradition scandal questioned his judgment, but not his integrity. In the handling of an alleged bribe offer to a cabinet minister's aide, Mr. Favreau was justice minister at the time.

Unused to the sometimes deadly cut-and-thrust of parliamentary debate, he became a regular victim of the barbed attacks of Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, the acknowledged master in that field.

Not noted as a speedy administrator, he was burdened at one stage with three big jobs: Quebec leader, House leader and the justice portfolio.

Prime Minister Pearson later eased the load. Mr. Favreau now is Privy Council president and registrar-general. He's still the party's Quebec leader, although that job is being handled by Manpower Minister Marchand in Mr. Favreau's absence.

It's assumed Mr. Marchand would keep the job of Quebec leader if Mr. Favreau did not return. But Mr. Favreau's two cabinet posts would have to be filled.

This has helped keep talk of an impending cabinet shuffle alive. The most likely time for it is the Easter recess next year, a quiet period when MPs will be back in their constituencies.

What political reward Mr. Favreau would receive is unknown. It's understood he has no wish to go to the Senate, a traditional prize for politicians who want to leave the firing line. Another alternative is an appointment as a judge.

And there is always the possibility he'll surprise the party insiders and return to action, considerably lighter than when he left. He took so much weight off his stout figure in hospital that casual acquaintances have to look twice to make sure it's he.

The rumor mill also has Labor Minister Nicholson headed out, possibly to the bench. Fisheries Minister Robichaud also is said to want out and could go to the Senate.

John Turner, minister without portfolio, appears destined to move up in the shuffle regardless of whether Mr. Favreau comes back.

As the cabinet's odd - jobs man, he's handling Mr. Favreau's registrar-general duties for the time being in addition to his more regular chore of helping Transport Minister Pickersgill.

The shuffle may also affect Mr. Pickersgill, who is said to want a change of portfolio. Justice Minister Cardin may also step down. Hyrce MacKasey, parliamentary secretary to the labor minister, may get into the cabinet.

Pension Increase Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons has approved the government's old - age pension increases in principle, but the fight goes on over the way they're being raised.

Clause-by-clause study of the bill guaranteeing pensioners $105 a month continues in Parliament today, on the heels of a hassle Tuesday between Health Minister MacEachen and NDP spokesmen.

Mr. MacEachen accused the NDP members, his most persistent welfare critics, of an "abrupt change" in their thinking about pensions policy. In the past they had endorsed the principle of a guaranteed income for pensioners, but now they opposed legislation which provided exactly that.

NDP speakers replied that the amount of payment proposed by the government affected the principle involved.

As in the first three days of debate, criticism was directed Tuesday at the government decision to provide supplementary pensions only to those with little or no outside income.

Mr. MacEachen read extracts from speeches by NDP Leader Douglas and Deputy Leader David Lewis and then said they were an endorsation of the principles contained in the government's bill.

The minister said he had asked Mr. Lewis (York South) whether he supported the income-test principle. Mr. Lewis had replied:

"Obviously, . . . otherwise you cannot have an income-tested pension."

Mr. MacEachen said the two NDP members had declared themselves, in effect, "to be in agreement with the approach of the government to the concept of a guaranteed annual income."

He said he would have had more respect for NDP speakers if they had said they agreed with the basic approach in the bill but disagreed with the amount set out in it.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said that in talking about a guaranteed annual income "one cannot divorce the principle from the level which is contemplated, and $360 a month is just not the kind of level which can be characterized as amounting to a guaranteed annual income."

Mr. Knowles said the bill's provision says to older people: "You do not get the full amount of this pension unless you report your income. And when you report your income, if you have more than is provided for in the legislation, either your pension will be back or the increase will be cut out altogether."

Under the bill now before the House, for every $2 above the basic $75 a pensioner earns monthly, his supplementary payment will be reduced by $1.

To other opposition criticisms, Mr. MacEachen promised there would be no army of snoopers checking up on pensioners. The money in the plan would go to those who needed it and this was superior to a flat-rate increase in which the rich and poor benefited.

Who's A Liar?

Senate Committee to Referee Kennedy-Hoover Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The seething, who's-a-liar dispute between Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem.-N.Y.) and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover now has a volunteer referee.

Senator Edward V. Long (Dem.-Mo.) said Monday night he would invite a rematch between the disputants before his Senate subcommittee on administrative practices and procedures early next year.

The issue: Did Kennedy authorize all wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping undertaken by the FBI while he was attorney-general?

Hoover, in a letter to a congressman made public during the weekend, broke his silence on the bureau's wiretapping and sought to place the responsibility directly on Kennedy.

Kennedy replied that Hoover was misinformed. He challenged the FBI director to make public his entire file on the matter.

SPORTS LICE

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Archives of football and baseball in the main provide a mother lode of copy for sportswriters across the border. Off-beat stories of the lives and antics of athletes apart from their prowess on diamond and gridiron provide colorful reading.

Some of the behind-the-scenes yarns are as interesting or more so than spectacular ninety-yard touchdown runs or a grandslammer in the world series.

Our National Hockey League is not far behind. It has had and still has its share of athletes who are as colorful off the ice as on it.

Conn Smythe once remarked after viewing two-platoon-sized players sent him, "I thought I was getting men — not peanuts." They packed up and went home. One became a three-time all-star, the other one of the greatest centres the Canadiens ever had. Doug Bentley and Elmer Lach.

The late T. P. Gorman then with the Habs took a look at a player and said, "this kid will always get hurt. He's broken an arm and a leg in two seasons." However the "kid" stuck. His name was Maurice Richard.

And the Rocket became the only man to perform a "miracle" on the ice. In the 1957 playoffs against Boston when the Rocket scored four goals in one game, a man who had lost his speech because of a stroke, let out a yelp that rocked the chandeliers when Richard got goal Number Four.

Toots Holway's former buddy Dunc Munro of the old Montreal Maroons made pro hockey's most original deal. He signed, in addition to his salary, for the Montreal Forum's program privileges, reported to be worth $15,000 a year. Munro ran it up to half a million on the stock market.

Turk Broda, former Leaf goalie, and now a successful coach, believes in a simplified form of instruction. Once after drawing diagrams on a blackboard, the Turk told his players, "This is our net. That is their net. The idea is to keep the puck out of this net and put it in that one. Understand?"

Boston's great Leo LaBine never took a fancy to Rocket Richard. Richard in a newspaper column once remarked LaBine was ashamed to admit he could not speak French.

Next time they met LaBine carefully coached in French the immortal Rene Chevrilis skated past Richard and remarked:

Comment se va, mon vieux. Prenez garde ce soire."

Richard disturbed at this later jabbed LaBine with his stick. LaBine dropped the French and yelled in English:

"Look Rocket, You've got 32 teeth. Wanta try for 16?"

Toronto's King Clancy who reputedly got into more fights in the NHL than any other — and never won one, once missed a brawl between the Maroons and Leafs and stood idly by. Coming up the corridor at period end Clancy encountered the Maroon's Sprague Cleghorn and said: "That sure was a tough one, eh Cleg"

Cleghorn never said a word, just strode up to Clancy and punched him in the eye. "Where'd you get that eye?" asked a team-mate later. "You weren't in the fight."

"Nope," said Clancy, "I picked this up in the corridor."

Then there was the irrepressible Babe Pratt, perhaps the most colorful of all NHL stars. This story bears repeating. Once Pratt lost his suspenders during a game and clinging to his pants skated to the bench for a new pair. The coach said, "we haven't any but we can get you a belt."

"Gee, that's great, coach." said Pratt, "I had a couple before the game and one would sure go good now."

On another occasion Conn Smythe was blazing hell out of his Leafs when Pratt was playing for them. He referred to two of his horses one which was notorious for its quick breaks, the other a great stretch runner.

A voice in the background that sounded like Pratts was heard asking a team-mate, "Which end of the horse are you?"

When Max and Doug Bentley were starring for the Chicago Black Hawks (they're both of Indian blood) Pratt on the first meeting between the Leafs and Hawks, skated to Max and Doug, pointed a finger at the Indian-head crest on their jerseys and asked:

"Which one of you guys is on the crest this year?"

Mo-Hawks Snatch It 3-2

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Centreman Bob Taylor streaked up the left boards to fire an overtime goal here last night that gave the Belleville Mo-Hawks a narrow 3-2 victory over Toronto Varsity Grads.

The goal was necessary after Toronto tied the contest 2-2 with a six - man attack in the dying seconds of regulation play.

Belleville's win kept the club in a fifth - place OHA Senior "A" tie with Guelph. The Regals defeated Orillia 3-1, in Orillia, last night.

The Mo-Hawks meet the solid Woodstock Athletics here Friday then travel to Galt on Saturday.

Taylor's game - winning heroics came at 6.44 of the club's first ten - minute overtime period of the season.

The Grads had the Mo-Hawks pinned in the Belleville end where "Weiner" Brown and Greg Marchen were attempting to clear. Toronto defenceman Bob Duncan blocked the puck and tried to fire it back in. His shot bounced off Taylor's legs.

He made no mistake, out - speeding his check up the left side firing a hard shot that nestled in the far corner past goalie Jerry MacNamara. Brown and Marchen drew assists.

MacNamara, who faced 38 Mo-Hawk shots compared to 26 for Ludger Doucet, went to the bench in favor of a sixth attacker back at 18.20 of the third beat.

The strategy paid off at 19.18, when after four face-offs in the Mo-Hawk zone, Grant Moore rapped home Ian Sinclair's point - shot rebound after a good save by Doucet.

Galand and Hymers on the rebound came close early in the overtime and on the return rush, Menard was tied up and couldn't convert Darling's goalmouth pass. Doucet was called on for another big save with four seconds of play left and Toronto again employ- six attackers. Bob McAlpine's shot at the open net was blocked by a defenceman.

The Mo-Hawks peppered MacNamara with 18 shots in the first period when Baker, Menard, Taylor, McConnell and Ralph Plant, who played a hard-checking, two-way game, failed to click with opportunity knocking. Doucet beat Awrey and Galipeau on the rebound in a breakaway.

Moe Galand opened the scoring for Toronto when Doucet blew his shot at 4.48 of the second while Marchen was serving the game's first penalty.

Hoffman went for hooking and Sinclair for face-off interference seconds apart and the Mo-Hawks struck quickly to tie it while two men up. John Baker passed to Brown at the point and Minnie Menard steered the shot home from the corner of the net at 10.65. Seconds later another Brown slapshot forced MacNamara into a great glove save.

Taylor stickhandled to the doorstep only to hit a post and Brown missed the net on the rebound as the third period opened in a 1-1 tie.

The Mo-Hawks jumped ahead, again with the Grads shorthanded, when Taylor won a faceoff near the Toronto net and slipped it to Eddie Marineau. His quick shot was in just four seconds after the penalty was assessed.

McAlpine, Menard, Galand and Moore came close before Moore's equalizer.

The smallest crowd of the year, about 850, saw one of the better games.

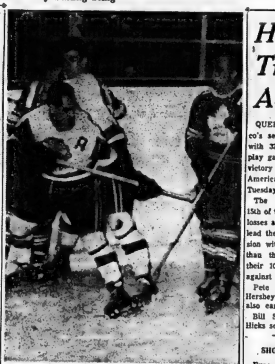
"My Name Is McNamara I'm..."

And the leader of the Grads band stuck out a big mitt just in time to stop Johnny Baker's hard bid for a goal. That's Gary Darling being hugged by a Grad behind the net while another Mo-Hawk is the meat for a Grad sandwich.



Brewer Signs Punch

TORONTO (CP) — Manager-coach George (Punch) Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs said Tuesday he has signed Carl Brewer's release and the former Leaf defencemen should be clear to play for Canada's national hockey team by Friday.

The papers were delivered by Alan Eagleson of Toronto, Brewer's lawyer. John Anderson, Imlach's secretary, has mailed them to National Hockey League headquarters in Montreal for final clearance.

Brewer, seeking reinstatement as an amateur, had his plans delayed when the original set of release papers were mislaid.

"These are the first papers I've seen," Imlach said. "I don't know what happened to the first set."

"That's Close Enough"

Hershey Trumps Aces 3-2

QUEBEC (CP)—Gene Uhracec's second goal of the game with 32 seconds remaining to play gave Hershey Bears a 3-2 victory over Quebec Aces in an American Hockey League game Tuesday night.

The victory was Hershey's 15th of the season against seven losses and three ties. The Bears lead the Eastern Exhibition with 33 points, four more than the Aces, who suffered their 10th loss of the season against 13 wins and three ties.

Pete Ford scored the other Hershey goal, on which Uhracec also earned an assist.

Bill Sutherland and Wayne Hicks scored for the Aces.

"Fooled Yuh!"

Shutouts Mark Tyke Tilts

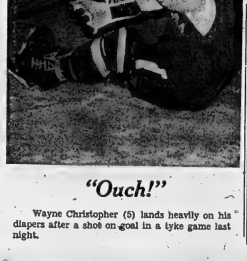
Two shutouts marked the four-ply action of the tykes division of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association last night.

The Rangers blanked the Bruins 4-0 with Brian Cook getting the shutout and team-mates Roy Garvin, Barry Beer, Paul Hayman and Ronald Sturgess accounting for the scoring.

The Barons blanked the Leafs 1-0 with goalie Bill White being the hero and Bob Wild scoring the only goal of the game.

In other tilts the Canadiens edged the Wings 2-1, Michael Godbout and Michael Bennett scoring for the winners and Paul Weeks getting the losers' lone goal.

Hawks ran wild with an 8-1 victory over the Mohawks. Randy Hutchison and Scott Hamilton scored twice for the Hawks with John Jianopoulos, Stephen London, Allan McInroy and Roger Suddard getting singles.



Joe Molnskie scored the Mohawks' goal.

Year for year and pound for pound these tyke teams represent some of the best hockey played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

The little fellows take the sport very seriously and to score a goal is the highlight of the evening. Outstanding perhaps in this division has been the work of the teams' goalies. On one occasion four shutouts were registered.

And the pint-size Johnny Bowers are just as proud of their achievements as their team-mates are of their scoring records.

"Ouch!"

Wayne Christopher (5) lands heavily on his diapers after a shot on goal in a tyke game last night.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

THE DRAG SHOT

The drag shot is used when a player has to ward off an opponent with one hand. He uses the other hand on the stick to drag the puck into the net. The secret is to force the goalie to leave the post as you cut across in front of the net. The line of pucks shows the angle of the shot as this player scores.

Rangers Ready To Draw On Detroit

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One season—that's how long it took defenceman Arnie Brown to win the hearts of New York Ranger fans.

Brown, a 24-year-old native of Apsley, Ont., wasn't impressive during the 1965-66 National Hockey League season and he was the favorite target of New York's Broadway section.

The defenceman says their insults affected his play adversely.

But a big factor in New York's fan-pleasing rise to the top of the NHL standings this year from last place last season is a tremendous defensive improvement, for which Brown shares the credit.

The Rangers will be out to increase their league lead tonight when they play host to last-place Detroit Red Wings.

In other action, Montreal Canadiens are at Chicago for a game with the Black Hawks and Boston Bruins meet Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto.

GIACOMIN HELPS

New York's defensive improvement is a combination of fine, netminding by Ed Giacomin, a strong blueline wall and backchecking forwards.

One of the most solid defencemen with the Rangers is Brown, but he regards this year's cheers with skepticism.

"They're cheering me now but let me play one bad game and they'll probably be on me again," said Brown, who joined the Rangers from the Toronto organization in February, 1964 along with Bob Nevin, Rod Selling, Dick Duff and Bill Collins, in exchange for Andy Bathgate and Don McKenny.

Emile Francis, coach and general manager of the Rangers, said a big factor in Brown's improvement is loss of weight.

ARNIE BROWN

★ ★ ★

"Last year Brown came in camp at 197 and just couldn't move around. He got off to a bad start and, with the fans getting on him, kept going downhill.

"This year he checked in at 183 pounds and, right off, he was better. Now he's the hockey player I saw when I first spotted him as a junior."

YOUNG LIKELY STARTER

The Rangers will put their latest three - game winning streak on the line when they take on the Wings, who are expected to have Bathgate and one-time NHL badman Howie Young in the lineup.

Young, who set an NHL record in 1962-63 when he spent 273 minutes in the penalty box, is expected to give the Wings some strength along the blueline, where they desperately need help. The Wings have given up 83 goals in 23 games.

The Red Wings traded minor leaguers Alex Faulkner of the Central Professional League and Bob McCord of the American Hockey League to Los Angeles Blades of the Western League in order to get Young.

So far this year, Young has served only 43 minutes in the penalty box and is also among Los Angeles scorers with four goals and 15 assists.

Bathgate was shipped to Pittsburgh last week after a slow start in the NHL, where he had scored three goals in 17 games.

He scored four goals in six games with the Hornets and the Wings brought him back. Ray Cullen was sent to Pittsburgh in exchange.

Wings Give Top Minors For Young

DETROIT (CP)—Detroit Red Wings gave up two of their top minor league players to get defenceman Howie Young from Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League.

The Wings, gambling that Young has reformed since his days of hard drinking and frequent trips to the penalty box, obtained him in an effort to shore up their defence which has sagged since the retirement of Bill Gadsby and the loss of Doug Barkley through an eye injury last season.

But in exchange, the Wings announced Tuesday they are parting with centre Alex Faulkner of Bishops Falls, Nfld., and defenceman Bob McCord of Timmins, Ont.

Faulkner, 30, has been with Memphis Wings of the Central Professional Hockey League this season and in 22 games scored 12 goals and 23 assists for 35 points. He was tied for the scoring lead with Art Stratton of St. Louis Braves.

Folley Stops Davis

HOUSTON (AP) — Second-ranked heavyweight Zora Folley, hungry for a chance at No. 1, took a unanimous 10-round decision over Jeff Davis at Houston with ease Tuesday night.

The 34-year-old resident of Phoenix, Ariz., weighed 207½ to 200 for Davis, eight years his junior. It was Folley's 30th victory in a career that started in 1953.

Folley used a right to put Davis down in the fifth after four rounds of waiting for an opening. Then Folley waited for the knockout chance that never came.

Manager Bill Swift, anxious to gain his man a title shot at champion Cassius Clay before Folley gets any older, has said he may go to court seeking such an invitation.

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Seattle's Eddie Cotton, making his debut as a heavyweight, stopped Charlie Hall, Phoenix, in the first round of their scheduled 10 - round bout Tuesday night.

CHARGE ASSAULT

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—Roger Kettewell, 22, a British Columbia Lions football player, appeared in magistrate's court Tuesday on two charges of assault and one of disturbing the peace. Police said the charges were laid after a complaint that a person was kicked in a hotel parking lot. He was remanded until Friday without plea.

Super Bowl Gate $3 Million!

NEW YORK (AP)—The Super Bowl game between the champions of the National Football League and the American Football League will be played Sunday, Jan. 15, at the Los Angeles Coliseum with joint television coverage by CBS and NBC.

The rights for the game brought a reported $2,000,000.

Under the agreement, the game will be carried exclusively in three subsequent years on an alternating basis with CBS, NBC and CBS in that order.

The total payments for the four-year agreement, running through 1970, will be $9,500,000. The rights will be worth $2,500,000 each year after the first year.

In order to hold the Super Bowl Jan. 15, the AFL title game has been moved from Dec. 26 to Sunday, Jan. 1, the same date as the NFL championship game.

Both the AFL and NFL games are to be played in the home parks of the Eastern champions. That will be either Boston or Buffalo in the AFL and Dallas or St. Louis in the NFL.

The AFL game will start at 1 p.m. EST, with the Eastern winner taking on Kansas City Chiefs. The NFL game will start at 4 p.m. EST, with the Eastern winner facing Green Bay Packers.

Both title games will be televised, the AFL game by NBC and the NFL game by CBS.

The capacity of the Coliseum for the Super Bowl will be 93,000. A sellout would assure pro football's first $3,000,000 gate. Of the gross receipts after deduction of expenses and rental, more than 70 per cent will go to the players in the form of player shares and payments to the player benefit plans in both leagues.

Each winning share will be $15,000 and each losing share $7,500.

There had been prolonged negotiations about the television rights to the Super Bowl game. NFL games are carried by CBS and AFL games are carried by NBC, both under long-term contracts.

Giants Get Senators' McCormick

WASHINGTON (AP) — San Francisco Giants traded pitcher Bob Priddy and outfielder Cap Peterson to Washington Senators for pitcher Mike McCormick, the Senators announced Tuesday night.

McCormick, 27, had a 11-14 record with Washington last season. He has been a major leaguer for 11 seasons.

In 1960, he led the National League in earned run average with 2.70.

"He Shoots, He Sco..."—Now This Message From Karver's Krispy Krunchie

NEW YORK (CP) — If you've been watching U.S. and Canadian professional football on television this fall, you may have noticed that the officials extend certain time-outs to accomodate the commercials on the small screen.

Aside from the normal breaks that occur after a scoring play, there are artificial halts in the play to give the sponsors a minute here or there to advertise their products.

It's not surprising, considering how much the advertisers contribute to the game through television, especially in the National and American leagues.

Now, with CBS preparing to televise National Hockey League games in the United States, there may be similar arrangements.

Variety, the show business weekly, tells of tests being made on devices to ensure liazion between referees and camera directors when the NHL games go on TV after the football season ends in January.

The time out for a commercial is no problem when the game is put on tape, as was done by NBC last spring when it showed some Stanley Cup playoff games.

Nor is it a problem for the CBC and CTV in Canada which run brief superimposed commercials on the screen before faceoffs.

But CBS, which has a rich contract to put the NHL on country-wide TV for the next three years, plans to carry the action live.

Tested recently in New York and Detroit was a device that the referee carries in his shirt pocket. It's about the size of the smallest transistor radio and picks up signals from the video director, letting the official know a time-out is desired at the earliest opportunity.

The normal delay between an offside whistle and faceoff may be 15 to 25 seconds, but when he gets that signal the referee is expected to stall the resumption of play another 30 seconds or so for a commercial.

How will hockey fans, accustomed to having their entertainment fast, furious and relatively uninterrupted, react to the extended time-outs?

Variety is both pessimistic and resigned.

"The added lapse may not all too well with the fans, but then it's not their choice to make. The network has other way to assure fillin quota of sponsor pitches."

In Canadian football, way of signalling to the ree is to have someone the sidelines put on a red when the commercial s and take it off when it o Perhaps if the electroni vice works, it will be ada for the gridiron.

THEY DID IT AGAIN

This last week the Arena Commission in their wisdom, decided by a vote of 3-2 to give the public employees of the Arena a much deserved holiday - Christmas and New Year's Days.

By doing this the first thing that went out the window was the contract the Arena Manager signed with this city's Minor Hockey Assoc., secondly was the Centennial Project to be put on New Year's day by this Association, thirdly was the esteem of the Alderman and the city's appointee to the Arena board who were present at the meeting in allocate this season's ice requirements, when at this time we were assured that the Arena would be open on these specific days, and plans were laid accordingly, fourth we cannot but help feel a loss of prestige when we have to make our apologies to the centres to which we have made commitments, it is hard to understand how poor the communications are between, 1. the residents who give the necessary time to organize and supervise the recreational needs of this city's children, 2. the Recreational Director, and 3. this Arena Commission, Minor Baseball, Softball, and hockey, which are by far the largest groups, have no voice on this Commission, their only spokesman the President of Minor Sports is a city appointee, his main function is to provide the where with all to enable these groups to operate.

Minor hockey in itself is a $10,000 a year operation, $8,500 of this goes to the Arena for ice rental. It was on the Recreational Directors insistence that we were forced to charge a registration fee, but then again it was left to these groups to collect the same. Very little is seen of the Recreational Director during the course of the season, the same applies to the Arena Manager, he is so confident of our ability to supervise that he is very seldom in the Arena when we are.

For those of you interested in this figure of $10,000, it is estimated the individual cost for boy for the season is $10, roughly 20 weeks of hockey, this season's registration is up by 200 boys for a total of 1,070 registrations, approximately one third of cost comes from the city, one third from United Appeal the balance we have to raise ourselves, only two sources, private group sponsorships, and our OMHA group, that play on a Sunday afternoon where we charge a silver collection, and now because of this decision by the Arena Commission this group of some 80 boys will not play any home games for 3 weeks.

In closing I would like to say I have heard on numerous occasions when we have been faced with similar incidents such as this, people say it is about time we dropped these organizations back into the city's lap, and say "here" it's your responsibility, go to it.

This would be a sorry state of affairs, but it could happen.

NEW YORK (AP) — Green Bay Packers and Dallas Cowboys dominated the National Football League All-Star team selected for The Associated Press today by a committee of sports writers and sportscasters.

Crothers Issues Ultimatum

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Crothers, Internationally-known halfmiler from Markham, Ont., says he will not compete in Canada's first major track event of 1967 unless he is given a vote in the affairs of the Central Ontario Track and Field Committee.

Members of the committee voted 18-5 against his request Tuesday night.

In a four-point letter dated Nov. 16, Crothers said he will not compete in the Telegram-Maple Leaf Indoor Track Meet at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto Feb. 24 unless all four conditions are met by the committee.

Crothers' move was understood to be an attempt to win competing athletes a voting voice on track and field matters. He contended that opinions of prominent athletes are not solicited nor appreciated.

The conditions as outlined in the letter are:

—"That I be given an equal vote with any other member of the track and field association."

—"That my suggestions regarding the position of the 'privileged athlete' be implemented as soon as possible."

—"That I be given a copy of every financial statement of past meets, and all agreements that have been entered into."

—"That I be made a member of the international meet committee, or, that I be completely informed on what is being discussed and be given an opportunity to comment on any decision before these decisions become binding. And that would include the program for the evening events."

Bill Chesser and Glen Honden shot pairs for Frankford with Bob Chesser getting the odd one.

Marvin Reid and Harold Douglas went on scoring sprees for the Knights each netting four goals.

Now Children Pick Own Food Brands They Are Well Fed

OTTAWA (CP)—A crescendo of well-turned phrases on the virtues of advertising and promotion carried a Senate Commons committee through the final hearings Tuesday of its pre-Christmas inquiry into food prices.

Today a five-man, all-party steering committee digs in to scrutinize a draft report based on testimony at 43 hearings since Sept. 28.

Senator David Croll, a co-chairman of the committee, hopes for full committee approval of the report Thursday so that the document can be tabled Friday in both the Commons and Senate.

Promotions make possible competition "at the grocery shelf" and benefit the housewife, said the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada. The group represents 82 manufacturers whose brand-name groceries sell for $3,500,000,000 in Canadian supermarkets.

The associations were asked pointedly about advertising and gimmicks influencing children to put the heat on parents for breakfast cereals.

Philip Moyes, president of Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada, said many youngsters ate poor breakfasts until the new kind of cereal ads took effect. They had worked a "triumphant success" in improving the nutrition of young people in Canada.

Georges Sinclair, president of MacLaren Advertising Co. Ltd., and appearing in support of the ad agencies' brief, said it is a fact of Western society that parents are abandoning authority over their children.

They are "leaving decisions to their young" more and more —moral decisions even—and in terms of feeding, parents are leaving decisions on what they will eat to quote young children.

"Now, then, if children are decision-makers on what they will eat, then we will address advertising to the children and say it is pleasant to eat this particular product."

The makers of packaged grocery products delivered a simple breakdown of retail price increases since January, 1965 to establish that their processed foods have been a stable force all the way.

Between January, 1965 and September, 1966, the average family's weekly grocery bill increased to $28.29 from $24.72, a jump of $3.57, said the association.

Of this $3.57, farm products accounted for $2.09 and processed foods only 23 cents. In other categories fish was up seven cents, restaurant meals 34 cents and "other" foods increased 31 cents.

Thus the big change has taken place where there were few heavily - advertised national brand names, where little processing was required, where government control was greatest and where the farmer won his largest slice of the consumer dollar.

The least change had occurred in processed foods that make up just over 30 per cent of food expenditures and were marked by sophisticated packaging, strong name brands and active competition.

Good News in Papers and on Air Is in Ads--Say Ad-men

OTTAWA (CP) — The good news in newspapers, radio and television is in their advertising, Warren Reynolds, President of Ronalds-Reynolds and Co., told the Senate-Commons committee on living costs Tuesday.

The ads, he said, are "surrounded by a lot of tragedy."

Mr. Reynolds, president of Ronalds-Reynolds and Co., rejected suggestions and allegations that modern, creative advertising is dishonest, untruthful, coercive or a compromise of the truth in any way.

Other prominent advertising agency heads, helping to place the massive presentation of the Institute of Canadian Advertising before the committee, also defended the art of mass persuasion.

Warren Allmand (L — Montreal Notre - Dame - de - Grace) noted that the ICA has a code of ethics declaring death on misleading ads. He couldn't see how this squared with some slogans.

Gordon Sisclair, president of McLaren Advertising Co., Ltd., said bad practice exists in every profession and business; advertising is not free from questionable taste.

Senator Chesley Carter (I. — Newfoundland) found it an exploitation of human weakness to direct advertising at children. "It does something to the human character."

He found some television advertising nauseating, an "insult to the intelligence of any normal person."

The agency men appeared before the committee in the wake of two suggestions that a tax be placed on advertising in Canada.

They argued against this, claiming that a cut would restrict competition, drive newspapers, radio and television stations out of business, and work a hardship on Canadian business. Subsidiaries in Canada of U.S. firms would continue to benefit from the spillover of advertising by their parent companies on television and in U.S. magazines sold in Canada.

The institute's own 12,000-word brief was supplemented by a 60,000-word independent study prepared by economist O. J. Firestone of the University of Ottawa, who was commissioned to do the work by the institute.

The eloquent ad men, replying at such length that they had their questioners complaining, advocated a major program of research into the effects of advertising.

They suggested a council of consumer affairs for this purpose, supported by consumer organization, government and business.

AREA OF CONFLICT — Somalia which claims parts of Ethiopia and Kenyan territory in the area where the three countries' borders converge, says nine Somali prisoners were killed by Ethiopian troops. The killings were apparently part of recurring clashes between Ethiopians and Somalis. Somalia claims the disputed lands are largely inhabited by people of Somali origin. (CP Newsmap)

Ookpik Has Travelled Far and Made Some Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Ookpik the sealskin owl has done some travelling and made some money since he was invented by an Eskimo at the Fort Chimo co-operative three years ago.

The Eskimo co-operative has made $17,500 from Ookpik's commercial royalties and he's gone home with almost every dignitary to hit Ottawa—from U Thant and Miss Japan-Canada Friendship to Tennessee Ernie Ford.

First introduced at a trade fair in Philadelphia, the Ookpik toy was the creation of Annie Snowball, an Eskimo woman in her 60s who still lives at Fort Chimo, near Ungava Bay in Northern Quebec. She's made about $4,200 out of the big-eyed owl.

Spokesmen for the northern development department say it's impossible to tell how much money has been made from the sale of genuine Ookpiks made from sealskin by 25 Eskimos in the community of 315.

This is because co-operative profits are made from hunting, fishing, sewing and other art. work, and no breakdown of figures is made.

Some commercial royalties come from two companies mass-producing the little owls in plush and opposum fur.

Other companies pay to put the Ookpik image on everything from children's jewelry to sweatshirts. There have also been Ookpik storybooks and records and a folk singing quartet has adopted the name.

Altogether, royalties add up to $50,000 but out of that promotion, marketing and legal fees reduce the actual profit to $17,500.

The northern development department now handles only Ookpik's publicity. Promotion and marketing are looked after by Canadian Arctic Producers Ltd., subsidized by government and under the auspices of the Co-operative Union of Canada.

Eskimos in 24 areas market their work through the organization and get back 90 per cent of the profits.

The future for the Ookpik doll probably includes renewal of contracts with both commercial firms. The Eskimos plan to stockpile about 25,000 sealskin birds for Expo where the five-inch model will sell for $2.

More books are planned by Ookpik's publishers and one company is perfecting a process to produce glass figures of the bird.

A three-foot Ookpik will be the official mascot of Frank Ogden on his centennial cross-Canada helicopter flight next summer. The northern development department has bought a couple of hundred of the little owls for him to present to local dignitaries along his route.

Probe To Hear Tapes

VANCOUVER (CP)—The tape recordings that started the British Columbia royal commission on bugging will be heard—if not by the public, at least by Commissioner R. A. Sargent.

The commissioner ruled Tuesday he would hear the tapes made last month during the bugging of hotel rooms occupied by delegates to a convention of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

"I don't want to create the impression that I am not prepared to go into any avenue or that I want to cover up for anyone," said the retired county court judge.

His decision to hear the tapes came after vigorous opposition by John Laxton, counsel for the Canadian union.

Evidence has been given that Pat O'Neal, regional organizer for the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, hired private investigator Weldon Graham to carry out the bugging.

SEES PREJUDGING

Mr. Laxton submitted that if the tapes were heard, it would be tantamount to the commissioner prejudging whether electronic eavesdropping should be tolerated.

He told the commissioner: "If you hear the tapes you are invading privacy yourself and the commission is invading that of my client."

Mr. Laxton's final submission was to relay his client's request that under no circumstances should the tapes or transcripts be made available to counsel, especially counsel for Mr. O'Neal.

Lawyer Neil Fleishman, counsel for Mr. Graham, said his client was under the impression, because he had been introduced to Mr. O'Neal by two RCMP security and intelligence men, that the bugging was in the interest of national security.

COMMENTS ON TALK

Of a conversation between Mr. Fleishman and Superintendent Joseph Atherton of the RCMP concerning RCMP involvement, Mr. Fleishman said: "It became a broken record, with Atherton saying it was a complete falsehood."

He said he then told Superintendent Atherton three times that "the gloves are off. When I finish, someone is going to be pounding a beat in Athabaska—so, I take that back—Baffin land."

Superintendent Atherton, he said, had replied that the force would look after itself.

The inquiry continues.

The Doomsday Flight Padded TV Thriller

NEW YORK (AP)—Tuesday night's The Doomsday Flight on NBC, one of those movies made for television, probably never will be shown commercially.

The two-hour film told the story of a madman who planted a special type of pressure bomb on a fully loaded transcontinental flight — hardly a soothing tale for plane passengers.

Then, by telephone calls, he informed the airline and an FBI man whose wife was a plane passenger that the bomb would explode if the plane descended below 10,000 feet. He also offered to tell them where it was concealed in exchange for $100,000.

The story jumped between the activity on the plane—the furious hunt, the reactions of the passengers, the conversations with the ground—and the frantic efforts at the airport in dealing with the maniac's demands.

The plane, circling high above the desert and unable to land, was running out of fuel. The ransom money was incinerated when the messenger's truck crashed. The madman himself died of a heart attack—but not before he confided one vital fact to a friendly barkeeper that helped save the plane and its 100 passengers.

The film, by Rod Serling, would have made a better one-hour television show. It took a lot of padding to fill the two hours. There were some good workmanlike performances including Jack Lord as the FBI man and Van Johnson as the pilot. Edmond O'Brien tended to overact in his role of the madman.

Recommended tonight: Bob Hope Comedy Special, NBC, 9-10 EST, filmed in Acapulco at a film festival; The Brave Rifles, ABC, 10-11, documentary film on the Second World War Battle of the Bulge.

Liberals May Tag Temple

Belleville Barrister Possible Ontario Chief

Robert Temple, Belleville barrister and former member of the House of Commons for Hastings South, may be the next leader of the Ontario Liberal Party.

Last night an organizational meeting of the Quinte Liberal Association heard Temple grouped with Robert Nixon, MPP for Brant, and Lloyd Francis, former MP for Carleton, as the top three men currently being mentioned as possible successors to Andrew Thompson, who recently retired as leader because of illness.

Authority for this statement was Dan Casey, executive-director of the Ontario Liberal Association, who addressed a gathering of over 50 at the Kiwanis Centre.

Proof to desk indent en

He said of the three, only Mr. Nixon has officially announced he will stand.

Mr. Temple, Hastings South MP in the last parliament, said he hadn't decided yet.

"I'm giving it some very serious thought," he said.

Mr. Casey said: "The name of Bob Temple has been ringing from Parliament Hill to Queen's Park as the next leader.

"The leadership as you know is open, and we need a leader now."

Mr. Casey said there is a great desire within the Liberal Party of this province for unity, "a desire to get someone as leader who enjoys full party backing."

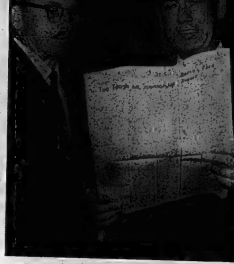
Mr. Casey said the Liberals have been gaining in popularity over the PCs in the province according to the latest polls. He said claims that the NDP is the second most popular in Ontario are not true.

"There are certain areas in this province where it is definitely Conservative," he said.

"Hastings-Frontenac is one of these. But there are many ridings which are only separated by a few hundred votes, a margin which can be overcome by organization and running the right candidate."

Mr. Temple said the new riding of Quinte offers the Liberals a "magnificent opportunity."

"In the last provincial election in the areas of Belleville, Trenton and Sidney Township — now Quinte Riding, but formerly part of Hastings West — we came within a few hundred votes of winning.



"And this at a time when the Conservatives had one of the most popular candidates ever to run in this area (Elmer Sandercock); and at a time when the trend was against the Liberal Party in Ontario."

He mentioned June as a possible election date but said it was speculation and could change at any time.

Mr. Temple said education is one way through which everyone can enjoy equal opportunity.

"No government can survive unless it meets the needs of the people, and education is

Old Rivals Meet

Robert Temple, right, shows the newspaper, "Liberal Action" to Thoroid "Curly" Hoskin, Mr. Temple's NDP rival in the last Federal election. When asked why he attended last night's Liberal organizational meeting, Mr. Hoskin said: "To find the truth. I'm not spying."

Expect UN to Act To Build Peace Force

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— Canadian diplomats were confident today that their efforts to push the UN into a stronger position on peacekeeping will meet some success before the current General Assembly session ends Dec. 20.

The assembly now has on its agenda a Canadian motion inviting UN member countries to designate armed forces and facilities for peacekeeping duties and asking the Security Council to take "practical steps" that would make peacekeeping operations more effective.

The motion was passed by the assembly's special political committee Wednesday night by 52 votes to 14, with 42 abstentions.

It will probably be considered by the 122-country assembly next week, along with an Irish motion to restore compulsory financing of peacekeeping for all except the big powers. The Irish motion got through committee by 33 votes to 27, with 48 abstentions, including

Africans Stick to Guns

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — African members of the UN Security Council were reported today to have refused to drop demands that Britain use force to oust Rhodesia's oil supply despite Western warnings such demands are doomed to defeat.

Informed sources said Britain has failed to persuade the three African members — Nigeria, Uganda and Mali—to abandon their attempt to draft such an amendment into the British resolution calling for mandatory sanctions against 12 Rhodesian exports, not including oil. The amendment introduced this week with the blessings of the 28 African UN members demands that Britain "prevent by all means the transport to Southern Rhodesia of oil or oil products."

Calgary Firm Will Explore Ontario Coal

TORONTO (CP) — Exploration rights to vast lignite deposits in Northern Ontario were granted today to Alberta Coal Ltd. of Calgary.

Premier Robarts told a press conference a provincial cabinet order permits Alberta Coal to explore and drill large deposits of the brown coal in a 375-square-mile area near Onakawana, 150 miles north of Timmins.

Lignite is a brown coal showing traces of woody structure.

Mr. Robarts said granting of the licence may lead to further large - scale mineral development of Ontario's north.

Under terms of the three-year licence Alberta Coal is granted exclusive drilling and prospecting rights in the field, estimated to contain some 100,000,000 tons.

A subsidiary of Mumic Co. Ltd. of Calgary, the firm will have to spend a minimum of $75,000 a year in the exploration.

The premier said that, subject to further negotiation, Alberta Coal will be entitled to mine five per cent of the exploration area for a period of 21 years should the deposits prove worthy of commercial development.

Ontario Hydro is studying the coal's suitability for thermal-electric generation.

Hydro Chairman George Gathercole said development of the deposits would be a welcome addition to Ontario's energy resources.

LBJ Offers to Extend Truce As Hanoi Raids Irk Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson made known through his press secretary Wednesday night that he is ready to discuss an extended ceasefire in Vietnam, including a freeze on troop reinforcements "if the other side is responsive."

When Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers was asked whether that meant the United States is ready to talk over with the other side in the war the specific issues of an extended ceasefire and a "stand-fast" by both sides he replied, "yes."

This latest White House comment reflects guarded speculation among top U.S. officials that the Christmas truce might possibly open up possibilities

Moscow Answers Hanoi Raids By Warning of Promise of Aid

From AP-Reuters

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Kremlin today protested at American bombing raids on Hanoi and demanded that the United States call a halt to its "aggression" in Vietnam.

In a government statement read over Moscow radio, the Soviet Union said the latest raids seriously aggravated international tension.

It warned the U.S. government not to forget the Warsaw pact nations' July declaration in which they pledged to send volunteers to Vietnam if Hanoi asked for them.

It said U.S. air raids on residential districts of Hanoi Tuesday and Wednesday had killed and injured people in the North Vietnamese capital.

The Soviet statement, first of its kind on Vietnam for many months, struck observers here by the relative mildness of its tone, which was less threatening than past Kremlin statements on this subject.

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. planes straddled Hanoi with bombs for the second straight day Wednesday, the U.S. command announced, but intense ground fire and a missile-firing MiG shot three of the American raiders out of the skies.

A U.S. state department spokesman in Washington said the department has no evidence to confirm Communist reports that the American planes bombed non - military targets and inflicted civilian casualties in Hanoi itself.

North Vietnam said today U.S. planes bombed and strafed residential sections of its capital both Tuesday and Wednesday, killing or wounding more than 100 civilians.

Whispered Word

Canadian Foreign Minister Paul Martin whispers into ear of Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer as they leave morning session of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) meeting in Paris today.

(AP Wirephoto via cable from Paris)

Martin Urges Curb on A-Arms Spread

PARIS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada today called for a reciprocal reduction in Western and Soviet forces in West and East Germany and urged that NATO launch a study on how this proposal can be undertaken.

He said also that the Soviet Union appears "more seriously interested than ever before" in reaching an East-West agreement to ban the spread of nuclear weapons.

Martin spoke as the foreign ministers began a two-day annual review of NATO political issues. France is participating as one of the 15 council members.

Martin maintained that while Soviet forces now are stronger than they ever have been, the Russians "have become more reasonable in the political atmosphere."

One possible forward move, he suggested, should be "reciprocal, gradual and balanced reductions in Soviet and Western forces in Germany which might be achieved by parallel steps worked out through informal consultation."

But unilateral reduction of Western strength should be avoided, he said.

The switch to political discussions, to be wrapped up in a communique Friday, followed an intense round of military talks by the 14 NATO members —all but France—that produced agreement Wednesday on a seven-country nuclear planning group to co-ordinate Western nuclear strategy and management.

Belgium, with the support of Britain and Canada, launched a move today for a widespread review and possible revision of the North Atlantic Alliance into a more cohesive Atlantic community.

Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel of Belgium made the proposal. Conference sources said Foreign Secretary George Brown of Britain and Martin gave their enthusiastic endorsement.

Crowd Collects Outside News Office as Returns Show 'Petticoat' Election Draws Big Poll

Apathy Can Be Reversed Says Allen

REEVE BARBARA ALLEN

TWEED (Staff) — Is this village's recent dilemmas in local politics an indication that public confidence in Ontario's municipal system is breaking down?

And, if two successive years have each needed two nomination meetings to fill vacancies on a five-member council does this mean the system needs revision?

Not so, says Barbara Allen, the doctor's wife who is next year becomes the first woman reeve of this village.

Acclaimed to that position after the village's nomination meeting for its 1967 council repeated its 1966 image and failed to find sufficient candidates, Mrs. Allen has had to closely follow developments ever since, leading up to last night's election that finally left a new council for 1967.

But, despite the uncertainties caused by obvious public apathy, she still believes the present municipal system should be retained.

"I think anything that's more efficient is dangerous— in spite of the fact that I often myself become impatient," she says.

"Even though the electorate is apathetic it has a right to be apathetic," she declares.

The retention of local government in small municipal councils keeps the people in touch with their governors and ensures the democratic process.

This applies, she feels, even though today the reins of much local government are increasingly in the grip of provincial boards and commissions.

Yet, there are many things, she says, that rely upon the opinions of the electorate — and that's where the local council, no matter how small a unit — comes into its own.

"Whether this is good, bad or indifferent, this is the essence of the democratic setup."

"I don't think you can eliminate these things. Government is best close to the people."

Mrs. Allen says she doesn't believe the Ontario municipal system is archaic.

While it may fail to attract people in such municipal authorities as the size of Tweed's council, she still does not hold with "any great, big monolithic organization."

"Centralization is a good thing — but centralization up to a point."

What they about the reluctance of Tweed residents to stand for office in two successive years?

"Maybe it's a thing that's always with us — but it's a thing that can be reversed. In this election, for instance, we've got 80 to 90 percent of the voters out."

This was done, she says, by injecting an issue into the situation — in this case the probability of all women councillors.

"It's like an electoral transfusion. Even in a big election you've got to have an issue to bring the people out."

RECEIVING RETURNS — Mrs. Amelia Bosley checks latest count of polls by phone in last night's election that placed her second in popularity.

Man Heads Polls at Tweed In Big Turnout of Voters

TWEED (Staff) — Today, the voters of this village can celebrate a collective cerebral success — a matter of mind over heart.

Yesterday, they faced the choice of naming what probably was Canada's first all-woman municipal council by electing three women.

Last night, from a candidacy of four women and two men, they chose both men — and one woman.

And a man headed the poll.

This results in a 1967 local government that gives only a slight voting edge to the women.

Acclaimed reeve Barbara Allen will now preside over a village council of two men and two women.

Voted onto the five-seat council were Mrs. Amelia Bosley, Burton Thompson, a former councillor and Rev. David W. Sinclair, an Anglican clergyman now ending his first term on Tweed council.

The fifth councillor is Mrs. E. G. Courneyea who was acclaimed when the village's first nomination meeting three weeks ago failed to qualify any more people interested in village affairs.

The possibility of having Canada's first all-petticoat political assembly drew national attention to the village.

However, last night's results were no letdown to the woman who might have had the honor of heading it.

"Now that it's all over, I'll let you into a little secret," said Mrs. Allen as she surveyed the results.

"This is going to make my work a lot easier for me."

Municipal experience would be injected in council by the Sinclair and Thompson elections she said.

"David and Burton have been on council before and it will help a lot. I've got a good, an excellent council."

Mrs. Allen, while claiming the 1967 group would be "the best council this village ever had," also mused on what might have happened with an all-woman council.

"It would have been nice. It would have been fun and interesting."

But then, she felt, such a council might have been in the spotlight that its wrongs and rights would have been magnified beyond proportion.

"Everything we did would have been 10 times as good or 10 times as bad," she said.

However the mere possibility of an all-woman council reflected to the village's benefit. Villagers responded to the pros and cons of the fancy and turned out in near-record numbers to vote during the day.

It was one of the heaviest ballots ever cast.

So much so, it took nearly two hours after the polls closed at 7 p.m. before the final tally was announced.

Meantime, the headiness of the issue drew spectators from surrounding Huntingdon and Hungerford townships as well as people to what was the most hard of conflicts — a fight between the sexes.

Focus of the fight was the main street office of publisher Clyde Bell's Tweed News, where electioneers and election site gathered to await the count.

A crowd collected on the sidewalk outside were kept posted on progress by a placard in the news display window.

Inside, the newspaper's offices also were packed while a staff member, Mrs. Amelia Bosley, took polling results over the telephone and called them off for transcription to the placard.

Lucki Interest ran high with the crowd on the inside, but Mrs. Bosley was among the coolest, despite the fact she also was one of the four women candidates.

She was equally calm when she totalled the final tallies from the last poll — first showing herself and Mr. Thompson tied at first place with 467 votes each.

She didn't even ask for a recount — and neither did anyone else. The result, no matter who really headed the polls, still gave the village what it needed — a municipal council for 1967.

A recount this morning showed Mr. Thompson actually headed the polls with 477 votes.

These were the total votes: Mr. Thompson 477; Mrs. Bosley 467; Rev. D. W. Sinclair 445; Mrs. George Sinclair, 284; Mrs. Jeannelle Whitfield 134; Mrs. Sandra Thompson, 85.

Over 300 Toys To Be Distributed

TRENTON — More than 300 repaired toys and dolls will be given out to underprivileged children in Trenton by the Salvation Army Corps this year.

This assistance to Santa Claus has been made possible by the work of volunteers in the Canadian Armed Forces fire department and other volunteer workers from the base.

The Salvation Army will also distribute food baskets to 60 needy families Christmas Eve. Assisting in the deliveries will be members of the Trenton Kiwanis Club.

Trenton Pool Given Name

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Board of Education have voted to name the swimming pool now under construction in the high school the Trenton Tri - Service Club Centennial Pool and to permit the Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis clubs to attach plaques to the walls of the pool.

The three clubs, with assists from other town organizations and public subscription, raised the $60,000 for pool construction.

Meanwhile, a board spokesman, Douglas Whitley, said yesterday the pool should be ready for use by March 1. There has been a slight delay owing to attempts to arrive at the most effective heating system for the pool and building, this now has been decided and work is progressing according to schedule.

Public Ceremony Suggested

TRENTON — Tuesday, Jan. 2, will probably be the day three newly elected members of council will be sworn into office.

Four school board members and one utility commissioner will also be sworn in.

There is a further suggestion that a second ceremony might be held later in the high school for members of the three town bodies. The public would be asked to make a point of attending this ceremony.

The members of the Trenton Ministerial Association feel that much dignity would be added to the ceremony by holding it in a place where large numbers of the public could witness the event. Ordinarily, the ceremonies are held in the courtroom over the police station.

Building Report Town's Worst

TRENTON — What was termed "possibly the worst building report in the history of the town" was released this week by William Anderson, building inspector, for the month of November.

Only 10 permits were issued. The total value was $12,950.

School Board Has Surplus

TRENTON — At a meeting of the Trenton school board Tuesday, finance chairman .W D. Whitley said there would be a surplus of approximately $35,000 on high school operations this year and a surplus of approximately $5,000 on public school operations.

These surpluses are due to increased government grants in some areas and strict economy in financing, Mr. Whitley said.

Mapping Liberal Strategy

Workers Needed

'Hothouse Liberals' Not Good Enough

The newly-elected president of the Quinte Liberal Association, 36-year-old Belleville lawyer John O'Flynn, said last night Liberals in Ontario must "stand up and be counted."

Speaking at the organizational meeting of the association, Mr. O'Flynn said, "We can't be 'hothouse liberals.' By that I mean people who secretly and softly behind closed doors tell their Liberal friends during a provincial campaign how much they support the Liberal cause, but who are not willing to serve or to work in any way during the campaign.

"This is not good enough. We want active participation. We must invite, entice and obtain new workers and new members. We must get new ideas and be willing to have responsible change in our organization.

"We are a party of reform and we must not forget this." He said the time is right for a change if the workers are willing to make the effort."

Mr. O'Flynn was the unanimous choice of the gathering for president.

Donald "Nick" Fraser of Trenton was chosen vice-president and Kenneth Soden named secretary-treasurer.

Named to the nine-member executive committee were: Mrs. Doris Ford, Zeke Kavarde, Horace Knight, Mrs. Betty Hanley, Bill Thompson, Bud Drury, Frank Rabel, Frank S. Follwell and Dr. Ross Burtt.

The meeting also nominated delegates to attend the Ontario Liberal Association meeting Jan. 6 - 7.

Mr. O'Flynn said the executive will call a nomination meeting as soon as possible to select the party's candidate in the next election.

Completion Of School On Agenda

Members of the Napanee Collegiate Institute Board will meet tonight to discuss the calling of tenders for the completion of construction of the new 28-room addition at the Napanee District Secondary School.

Construction at the $2.5 million school addition came to a halt early in November following a dispute between the school board and the contractor, A. Weller and Company of Toronto.

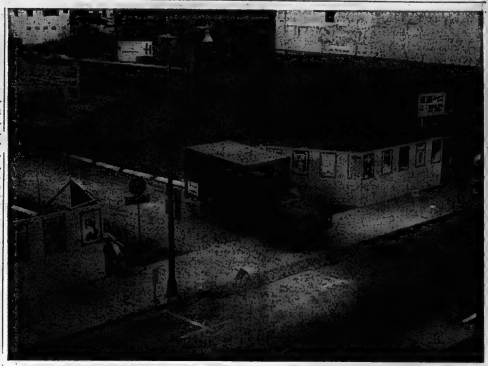
The dispute involved a performance bond which the board claimed the company had failed to provide.

Lawyers for the school board, in a prepared release issued yesterday, said the board was hopeful of acquiring a new general contractor before the end of the year.

The release said the whole matter was before the courts in at least three different legal proceedings. The board has sued the contractor for damages, for breach of contract and for work stoppage.

It is also understood that the contractor has issued a writ suing the school board for breach of contract.

Also five sub-contractors or suppliers are reported to have registered mechanic's liens against the school board property.



The school board held a special closed meeting last Thursday and directed the architect to prepare the necessary documents for re-tendering for the school completion.

Since the work stoppage Nov. 1, the school board has been able to keep some of the work going under separate contract authorized by the Ontario department of education.

In Lennox and Addington county council this week, Newburgh Reeve William Ward accused county Warden Gordon Ploix with responsibility in the $50,000 additional school expense.

Reeve Wagar said the warden at a council meeting last fall had failed to bring up the matter of a debenture issue to make possible an interim payment to the school construction contractor.

Warden Ploix, however, said the annual procedure had been followed, claiming it was the responsibility of the county clerk to see that the matter of the school debenture was on the council agenda.

Truck Exits From Riverside Park; Bus Stop is at Right

New Road Boon to Shoppers

Merchants in Belleville's downtown area just north of the four corners are enthusiastic about the new entrance and exit which has been opened to the riverside parking area.

The city parking authority has leased a right of way over two lots in the burned out Robertson Block area and last Saturday the new entrance to the parking lot area was opened.

Glencoe E. Thompson, chairman of the parking authority, says the leases over the Schwab and Shaw properties are only temporary but he is hopeful something permanent can be worked out.

And merchants in the area echo his feelings.

"The new entrance to the parking lot has helped merchants and it is surprising how many extra cars are using the off-street parking lot," Mr. Thompson said.

With the opening of the new entranceway the exit alleyway at the Metropolitan store has been closed to vehicular traffic.

Mr. Thompson says that motorists, women particularly, are pleased with the new parking lot entrance as they no longer have to negotiate the narrow alleyways.

"And they can see where they are going," he says.

Ross White of Whites Hardware is enthusiastic about the new entranceway and says it will help a lot when motorists get to know it is there.

Another man happy to see the riverside parking area opened is Fire Chief Ted Poste who has long urged that some means be provided to get fire fighting equipment to the rear of the stores in this area.

When the Robertson Block was burned early in 1963, firemen were unable to get heavy equipment down through narrow alleyways.

The temporary entrance way is expected to cost about $2,000. Entrance and exit signs will be provided.

Provision of an entrance from Front Street to the parking lot over the burned out area was one of the recommendations contained in a recent survey report for possible development of a riverside drive.

Youngsters 'Let Down' Trenton

TRENTON — A decline in this town's youngest population grouping has unexpectedly showed fewer people resident here than last year.

Statistics released by assessment commissioner J. Allan Smith today show this population graph for the past three years:

In 1964, 14,112; 1965, 14,115; 1966, 13,807.

That's a decrease over the past 12 months of 308. Some 167 fewer registrations were in the 3-years-and-under group.

Meantime, similar figures for Trenton's sister Quinte community of Belleville are:

In 1964, 31,960; 1965, 32,837; 1966, 32,954.

Mr. Smith notes the heaviest decline is in the age group from three years and under.

By statute, a municipality must register a population of 15,000 before it is entitled to city status.

"Did someone let me down?" queried Mayor James MacDonald this morning when he learned of this year's decrease.

However, he added, he would continue to press for Trenton's right to be called a city and would make the bid shortly.

Dr. Publow Honored At Picton

PICTON — The board of governors joined Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital doctors' association last night to honor one of the county's veteran physicians.

Dr. C. A. Publow is retiring from surgical practice after nearly 30 years of service. For the last two years he has been chief of the hospital's medical staff.

Tribute was paid to his record at the annual board for doctors at the Prince Edward County Yacht Club.

During the occasion, Dr. John Anderson was announced new president of the hospital's medical association — to succeed Dr. K. E. McQueen.

About 300 attended a hospital staff Christmas party following the banquet.

SURGEON HONORED — Dr. C. A. Publow, retiring from surgical practice, was presented with a silver tray at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital's annual banquet by J. M. Hartwick, past-president of hospital board.

Liberals

one of the basic needs," he said.

"It is not enough to say we'll have free tuition" — and we probably will eventually — we have to go beyond that."

Mr. Temple proposed the establishment of a National Scholarship Foundation, "that will assure us as parents, our children not only will receive free tuition, but also they will have available the necessary extra monies for their lodging, their board, their clothes, and so on."

He said the Liberals are dedicated to the principle of freedom of the individual. "Once we lose sight of the fact the individual and his rights are supreme, then we become not much better than some of the countries behind the Iron Curtain.

"There has developed in Ontario in the past 23 years a series of boards and commissions from which there is either no right of appeal or a very limited one," he said.

"We like to govern ourselves. This is our principle and it's a good one. But under these boards and commissions, this is not true."

He said a Liberal government would make the right of appeal mandatory and said the present situation is the "Slow erosion, day by day, month by month, year by year of your various freedoms; mine; all of ours."

He said that people can do something about it if they band together and affect reforms.

Rural Needs

The establishment next year of a committee to deal with special development projects in rural areas of Hastings County holds well for economic progress in the region.

The committee plans to devote its attention to projects which could be introduced under the auspices of the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act. These could include programs in such categories as agricultural redevelopment (alternate land use, for example), industrial development, soil and water conservation, wildlife development and education.

Another committee to be set up would study each project before it is presented to the ARDA committee.

This initiative should benefit the interests of the county at large. Fresh in mind are some harsh words relating to lack of progress in rural areas of Eastern Ontario. In some quarters it has been given depressed-area status, and recently was dubbed a "rural slum" by Ontario NDP leader Donald McDonald.

While the latter remark may be regarded as an exaggeration, its shock value has had a salutary effect. We can all stand a little prodding, and nobody can pretend that our rural areas, not to mention urban communities, have reached the peak of economic development.

The country scene needs rejuvenating. Farmers who are not "with it" should rouse themselves from their apathy, shake off their unwillingness to move with the times, and take advantage of such initiatives as may come their way from local government.

This new attempt to focus attention on rural needs is encouraging. ARDA-sponsored projects could mean a lot to this area. Some have already come our way, but there is room for more.

While we are on council matters, the suggestion that the county may adopt a centralized administration for welfare, as an alternative to local municipal jurisdiction, is significant.

If adopted, such a system would make for easier administration and a better service for needy families. Certainly there are plenty of precedents, with nine counties in Ontario already operating a central body and four more anticipated by April of next year.

Dr. Potter

In Dr. Richard Potter the Conservatives have a candidate of excellent potential to contest the new Quinte riding in the next provincial election.

At 51 Dr. Potter has been long interested in area politics. He has been described as a "grass roots Conservative," and now he is ready to carry the battle into the provincial field.

That an election is possible next year is borne out by recent events. Premier Robarts has hinted at it, so has retiring Hastings West member Elmer "Sandy" Sandercock, as well as Ex-cabinet Minister William Davis, who told the nomination meeting in Trenton Monday night that a vote next year is likely.

Dr. Potter won over two other strong candidates from Belleville, Mayor Jack Ellis and Macdonald (Mac) Smith, chairman of the public school board.

The Liberals, meanwhile, have yet to choose a candidate, and it may well be the NDP will also contest the riding. The composition of the Legislature at the moment gives the Conservatives a commanding majority of 56 over the Liberals.

Daring Yachtsman

The astonishing Francis Chichester has done it again. This latter-day Hemingway character, old man of the sea if you like, has plumbed fresh realms of adventure with his lone voyage from England to Australia.

As anyone who has read his "Lonely Sea and the Sky" knows, Chichester has been in the adventure game a long time. Back in 1929 he flew a Gypsy Moth aircraft over the same route and made a number of other daring international flights before turning from flying to the sea.

In 1960 he won the first single-handed Atlantic yacht race and has made six solo crossings in all. Over a span of almost 40 years Chichester, now 65, has defied not only the elements but serious illness. He survived one nearly airplane crash in Japan and in more recent years a bout with cancer.

But Chichester's final test is yet to come. After a month's rest in Australia, he plans to sail back to England around the treacherous Cape Horn of South America. If he accomplishes this safely it will be one of the greatest feats in the annals of navigation.

Ottawa Offbeat

Will MP's Co-operate to Allow Centenary Celebrations?

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — If Parliament Hill co-operates Canada may be a happy and jolly nation in the 1967 centennial year.

It will be difficult to enjoy that 100th birthday if the House of Commons engages in bitter struggles like those over the new flag and the so-called scandals.

But if the legislative program next year is not too controversial and the MPs keep their tempers in check, Ottawa could set a jovial tone for the rest of the country.

For one thing, the new session — the second of this 27th Parliament — should be a short one to give MPs a chance to participate in centenary observances.

Who can say though, with authority, when even the present session will end?

The government of course, wanted approval this session of medicare and the Canada Pension Plan — key old age pensions. Passage is sought too for the new Transportation Act and the Bank Act.

There is also that rather thorny bill, the unification measure for the Canadian armed forces.

House leader Mcllraith also has a number of other bills he would like to get through this session — things not so contentious but which could take considerable time.

It seems evident from this list of legislation that the Commons will still have plenty to do after the Christmas recess in this strung-out first session.

THE NEW SESSIONS

After their Christmas holiday the MPs will come back early in January and work on to wind up the first session of this Parliament.

Planning for the future could be a good deal more precise if it were known how the armed forces bill would fare. If the fight is prolonged, as the Conservatives have promised, it is difficult to forecast when this item would be disposed of.

The suggestion is, though, that the government would like to wind up the first session by the end of January. This would permit MPs to go home and do some political soundings. And the government would have time to prepare its program for the new session.

A guess would be that this second session would start in the last week of February, after the departmental estimates had been prepared.

MPs could look forward to about eight weeks on estimates and supply. There would also eight days for the Throne Speech discussion and another six sitting days for a budget debate.

That is about 11 weeks right there without coping with legislation. And what legislation would there be?

How about that item calling for a National Anthem? Could anything be more appropriate for the centennial year? But, would it be non-controversial?

A rather cynical observer of the parliamentary scene was suggesting that with this 100th anniversary of Canada it would not be inappropriate for the government to bring forward the somewhat forgotten Canada Development Corporation — an obviously patriotic piece of legislation.

In any event, the MPs assembled in Ottawa next year may sorrowfully see the months allotted by — March, April, May and June.

Perhaps, with co-operation and good will, the Commons might adjourn in June, leaving the members and Senators free to engage in the centenary celebrations.

If there isn't that spirit of compromise the Commons could be in session yet again in the hot summer weeks.

A Parliament in session is not one of the attractions the centennial planners have plotted for the summer of 1967.

However a government spokesman knows for his optimism is predicted that after the Commons rises in 1967 — June, July or what have you — there probably will be a fall session.

As for 1968 — well, they could always have another general election.

To Your Good Health

See Doctor Before Buying Hearing Aid

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: This letter is to inform elderly people — or others — that hearing aids are not always a benefit. I have had a sad experience, spending several hundred dollars for an aid which is of no benefit.

I used to think hearing aid people were like a doctor — one could have faith in their advice. This is not true! Many are salesmen pressing for a sale. They seemingly hold out a promise to the hard of hearing. Their words are carefully chosen.

I would warn anyone: Do not buy a hearing aid if it cannot be tried out first. There are a few companies where this can be done. — Mrs. G. N.

Your warning is worth heeding, although it is only fair to add that there are shamelessly operators selling all manner of products, from vacuum cleaners to house repairs.

There are so many ways of evading laws that we must rely on our guard against unscrupulous operators. (The Better Business Bureau is always interested in finding out about such trickery.)

When it comes to hearing aids, my advice is to see your doctor first, and if he suggests going to an ear specialist, by all means do so.

Some hearing problems are best corrected by surgery. Others cannot be helped that way, but can be improved with a hearing aid. Some hearing defects are such that no method can help, and the patient is best advised to learn lip-reading.

An ear specialist is qualified to decide which is best for you, and if he recommends a hearing aid, he also can see that you go to a reputable firm.

In my experience there are hearing aid companies which are eminently fair and reasonable, and measure your hearing needs with skill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a bad pain under my heart all night and in the morning broke out a strip about two inches wide from the breastbone around the spine. It looked like red sunspots. The doctor said it was shingles. What causes this? — V. C.

It is a viral infection of a nerve trunk. It usually looks as you have described it, and may look like red sunburn but is a whole lot more painful. For more detailed explanation, probable duration, and an outline of what can be done, I suggest reading my booklet on shingles. You can obtain a copy by sending 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the best limit for one to enter medical school? — J. R. C.

The average age is about 22, but with good background and good scholastic record are more important than age, and I doubt that there is any rigid rule as to youth.

Many, however, will not take beginning students past the age of 30 unless some unusual motive is involved — for example, a physician will be at least five years before a student can become a practising physician, and more than that if he becomes a specialist.

Note to Mrs. M. M.: Wright reduction, or plastic surgery in extreme cases, are the only answers I know for breasts that are too large.

Lamplight Romancing

Windsor Star

One of the items sought by collectors of antiques is the old-fashioned lamp which graced the kitchen, parlor and bedroom in days agone. And, as there was an even greater variety of them than there are of modern lighting fixtures, the hunt is for the most attractive.

There was the table lamp that sat in the middle of the kitchen table, on a desk or atop the piano. It could be carried from room to room, and with a large glass or china bowl for the oil and with the chimney. But sometimes, and most often, the bowls bedecked by pictures of flowers, etc.

Then there were the hanging lamps, affixed to the ceiling but which could be raised and lowered at will, these often very quite fancy, with crystal ornaments dangling from them.

Those who did their courting in those days found the lamps a handy attribute. By turning the wick just right the desired amount of light, or lack of it, could be obtained to create a romantic atmosphere. The progress of a courtship could be gauged by how low were the lights!

Costly War In Viet Nam

Hamilton Spectator

It seems incredible that the United States government should make an error of $10 billion in its budget estimate for the Viet Nam War. The war is costing twice as much. The defence estimate included $10.3 billion extra for the Viet Nam War. This last figure should have been $20 billion.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 15, 1946

Roy Blakely, E. Moira St., general foreman of the Bridge and Building Department of the CNR has received a well merited promotion being named the first of the year to London as Bridge and Building Master at that terminal.

Stewart Reilly, manager of the Mason-Parker Co. of Canada, Belleville's newest industry states that his company expects to employ between 150 and 200 male workers when the company goes into full production early next year. The Mason-Parker Co. will manufacture woodworking articles such as summer and juvenile furniture.

30 YEARS AGO

December 15, 1936

Front Street roadway was once planked and public haggings held here, states James Cole who observed the 80th anniversary of his birth on December 13. Mr. Cole and Ontario Intelligencer enjoyed a talk with Mr. Cole and found he has a source of interesting information. He remembers Belleville very clearly in the early days of his life. There were only three streets, namely, Front St., Moira St. now College St. and Back Street, now Pinnacle St. From St. was a plank road in those days and the planking extended as far as Plainfield. Building of this road was believed to have been started by a large American lumber company which was situated at Plainfield. Lumbering was a very active industry at that time.

40 YEARS AGO

December 15, 1926

W. C. Mikel, K.C., has been appointed Provincial Magistrate for the City of Belleville by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to succeed the late Stewart Mason, K.C. Mr. Mikel has served the city as an alderman, mayor, city clerk, city solicitor and city auditor. The first Provincial Magistrate for the Town of Belleville was appointed in the year 1862; he was the late Smith Bartlett, a lawyer who at that time was practising here.

50 YEARS AGO

At a recent meeting of Camp Rob Roy Sons of Scotland at which Chief William G. McDonald presided the following officers were elected: chief, Arthur Clarke; chieftain, William Giveen; chaplain, Rev. A. S. Kerr; recording secretary Donald Paterson; financial secretary Alex McAree; treasurer, Alexander Bleecker; marshal, Noble Krown; standard bearers, James Miller and George Irvine; senior guard, Albert Johnstone; junior guard, Thomas Bowie; physician, Dr. A. Pistol-Packing American Tourists

Lethbridge Herald

Directors of the Southern Alberta Tourist Council are reported at a recent meeting to have expressed amusement at the large number of American tourists arriving at the Canadian border with pistols and revolvers and being surprised at not being able to bring them into Canada.

Apparently they carry them "for protection" in the United States, and even if they are convinced that guns are not needed for that purpose in Canada, their problem then is what to do with the guns.

One suggestion from a Canadian customs official anxious to encourage the tourist trade is that the guns be sealed by Canadian customs and then permitted in, and inspected on the tourist's return to the U.S. to make sure the seal hasn't been broken.

For obvious reasons this would not work. Anyone bent on using the gun in Canada wouldn't worry about breaking the seal. Or what if he said on his return that he had lost it in Canada? What could be done about it?

Pistols and revolvers, with or without American permits, are not permitted in Canada, and there must be no compromise about it. Export with that principle. If Americans feel unsafe here without their guns, let them stay out.

The United States is considering tightening up its laws on the carrying of hand-guns. The case with which firearms of all kinds can be purchased and carried is bothering the authorities.

Strictly Personal

The Anatomy of Freedom

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

The word "freedom" should be used rarely. It is divided into its two components of "inner freedom" and "outer freedom"; this might clarify the confusion that exists in the inner freedom to think, outer freedom is meaningless; and without the outer freedom to act on our judgments, inner freedom is irrelevant.

• • •

With half of all American families headed by a person over 65 being in the poverty bracket — that is, having an income less than $3,000 a year — and with 4 million unattached individuals over 65 earning half of that — how can we speak of the shame of "the most prosperous country in the history of the world?"

• • •

What we must recognize if we are to survive the 20th century is that there can no longer be military "solutions" to large-scale conflicts, but only political settlements arrived at through negotiations; for war is no longer, as Clausewitz said, "an extension of politics by other means," but has become a self-defeating process for both sides.

• • •

Today we hear little but thunder from the left and thunder from the right, all of it unaccompanied by any lightning to illuminate the issues.

• • •

In India, 130 million schoolage children do not go to school, and the government spends only 17 cents per capita per year for education; and throughout the world, in the last six years alone, there has been an increase of 200 million in the world's population of illiterates — and whenever opponents birth control in such areas must be held responsible for adding to the world's stock of contentment, starvation and misery.

It is hard not to agree with Prof. John J. Medicare Burden

St. Catharines Standard

While the Medicare bill has been passed, there is continuing doubt relative to the ability of doctors and hospitals to serve the inrush of patients which medicare might cause. Hospital insurance served to fill the hospitals, medicare could make that situation worse as well as serving to increase the work of the already overburdened doctors.

If Medicare is a step in the right direction, but the time remaining before it comes into operation is too short to provide adequately for its efficient operation.

Child Drowned in Hole

'Too Many Opinions Voiced,' So Jury Has No Suggestions

TRENTON — A coroner's jury last night brought down the verdict that the November 6 death of 7-year-old Bill Bell, is a water-filled hole at the bottom of Carr's gravel pit, was caused by drowning. They were no specific recommendations. Jury foreman Harold Blakely told coroner Dr. Brock Nagent, that there had been "too many opinions expressed" for the jury to reach a "clear-cut" recommendation.

The court was told that the eldest, witnesses said.

A snow fence delivered to the gravel pit the same day the hole was dug — Oct. 12 — had not been placed around the excavation.

child, son of Corporal and Mrs. Robert Bell, of Lorne Avenue, had been playing in the gravel pit with two companions when he fell into the waterhole. Thomas Hickey, father of the other boys, tried to get aid and attempted to revive the child.

The hole, 16 feet at its deepest was filled with water. It had been dug to possibly supply water to the nearby golf course greens and was unprotected in any way at the time of the accident, witnesses said.

World Wheat Trade Expected to Decline

LONDON (CP)—World wheat trade is expected to decline in the coming year and the only likely source of substantial future growth lies in aid-assisted purchases by the poor countries, the International Wheat Council predicts.

The council, which groups 19 wheat-exporting countries and 39 importing, says the trend in the last five years, in which surplus wheat stockpiles have been depleted by strong demand, is likely to be reversed.

The forecasts are contained in a 150-word statement released following a week-long council meeting which ended Tuesday. The full annual review, covering the crop year Aug. 1, 1965, to July 31, 1966, will be published at the end of January.

The council statement confirms that the meeting decided to defer action on the future of the expiring International Wheat Agreement while awaiting developments in negotiations at Geneva on a possible wider agreement covering all commodities.

The council will meet in special session starting April 3 to decide on trading arrangements after expiry next July 31 of the present agreement, which sets minimum and maximum world wheat prices.

GM Announces 3-Day Layoff

OSHAWA (CP)—Most of the production workers at the General Motors of Canada Ltd. plant here will be laid off for three days Dec. 28-30 for the company to make production line changes, the company said in a statement Wednesday night.

A company spokesman said the changes are to improve the flow of vehicles.

The statement said workers will receive unemployment benefits for the three days.

Florida Orange Crop Largest in History

TORONTO (CP) — Salada Foods Ltd. has had a good year, despite an abnormally poor season in Europe and an unusually good one in Florida, shareholders were told Wednesday.

In Florida, Salada has entered into a co-operative arrangement with a group of citrus fruit growers that enables it to show a greatly improved return, President Arthur E. Beeby said.

"However, I feel I should warn that this year's Florida orange crop, at an estimated 140,000,000 boxes, will be the largest in the history of the state and, unless some way can be found to drain part of it off into other channels, we will once again be in an over-supply and depressed price situation."

He also said a new instant-tea plant in Florida has been experiencing technical difficulties.

Nevertheless, Mr. Beeby said, the company showed "respectable gains" over the previous year, with sales advancing 4.3 per cent and profits 8.5 per cent.

He gave no figures, but the annual report released earlier shows gross sales of $84,238,000 for the year ended Sept. 30, compared with $80,805,000 in 1965.

Net profit rose to $2,428,132 from $2,236,966.

CBC Fee-takers Safe

Commons Never Gets to Wednesday's Scheduled Business

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons never got around to its scheduled order of business Wednesday. Even the daily question period was scrubbed. Instead, members:

—Heard and commented on a report by Prime Minister Pearson that said no action is planned against 17 MPs who accepted fees from the CBC, contrary to the Senate and House of Commons Act.

—Held an emergency debate on the planned strike by more than 600 air traffic controllers who plan to walk out next Tuesday.

The House had been scheduled to continue debate on the government bill proposing a guaranteed income of $105 a month for old age pensioners. This remains the order of business for today.

Mr. Pearson's announcement on the CBC fees question ended speculation that many MPs might lose their seats for breaching the act that provides such a penalty.

He said there were 17 MPs known to have accepted such fees between May, 1963, and September, 1965. But the payments had occurred during the previous Parliament and none now was in danger of penalty.

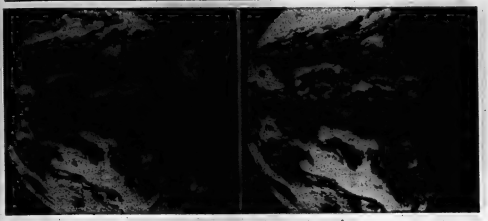
The act says any member who accepts fees from the public treasury, apart from his salary and allowances, must resign his seat or be liable to a fine of $200 for each day he sits in the House after committing the offence.

Mr. Pearson said no MP "has been offered or has accepted a payment from the CBC" since the November, 1965, election.

"The 17 members that I have referred to included five Liberals, five Conservatives, five NDPs, one Creditiste and one Social Credit."

He said no minister had accepted a fee while in the present cabinet, although one—later identified as Energy Minister Pepin—had accepted a fee before joining the cabinet and another of the 17 had been a cabinet minister previously.

Mr. Pearson said the act did not make fines automatic and any action had to be taken within 12 months of accepting the payment. His statement was in reply to a written question submitted last spring by Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon).



Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson had "glossed over the matter." The CBC had received a legal opinion from the justice department in 1964 pointing out that such payments put a member's seat in jeopardy.

NDP Leader Douglas sought clarification of the relationship between members and the CBC. He had received a $50 cheque from the CBC to cover expenses and had returned $38 because he was only out of pocket $12.

Social Credit Leader Thompson suggested the government amend the act to stipulate whether it is proper for MPs to accept expense money for travel on trips such as house committees take.

The House spent the rest of the short sitting day on the threatened strike after Speaker Lucien Lamoureaux ruled the situation warranted an emergency debate.

In the Senate, Chief Justice Robert Taschereau of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting as deputy to the Governor-General, gave royal assent to 10 bills.

Prince Edward Council Completes Year's Work

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Council had "packed it up" for another year with hails and farewells at this week's meeting. New councillors, reeves and deputy reeves were welcomed and those who had served were bade farewell.

Retiring members South Marysburgh Reeve Donald Bond, Athol Reeve Keith Brummel, and North Marysburgh Reeve Kenneth Hicks were congratulated by Reeve Bernard Hepburn of Picton.

Retiring Warden Harold Bonter, Reeve of Ameliasburgh, who retires completely from municipal activities at the end of the year, thanked the council for its support. He added next year's warden will have the honor of being warden for centennial year. But it may also be a much busier year, he warned.

Reeve Bernard Hepburn who presented the warden with an engraved travel clock on behalf of the council, said: "You ruled justly, you had a tough year but you did a marvellous job".

New members who sat through the final session were George Foster, deputy reeve of Sophiasburg; Harold Harrison, reeve of North Marysburgh; Laird Adams, deputy reeve of Ameliasburgh; Harold Miller, reeve of South Marysburgh and Gordon Demore, reeve of Athol.

Assessment Bylaw Passed

PICTON (STAFF) — Prince Edward County Council in its last meeting of the year, this week passed a by-law to equalize the assessment of municipalities of the county.

At the same time council passed a related by-law of application to the minister of municipal affairs to avoid a recurrance of last Wednesday's court battle between Picton and the county.

In effect, this allows county council to pass an equalization report similar to that of last August for the next three years. Should a complete county reassessment take place sooner, this measure could be cancelled or if more time were required, the county could apply for an extension. There was little council discussion accompanying this reading.

BC Bank Bill Finally Law

OTTAWA (CP)—After more than two years of parliamentary delays, the private bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia finally became law Wednesday.

The measure received royal assent from Chief Justice Robert Taschereau of Canada, acting as deputy to the Governor-General, shortly after the Senate concurred with amendments passed earlier by the Commons.

Detroit Teamsters Walk Out Protesting Hoffa's Conviction

DETROIT (AP) — Rebellious teamsters curtailed transport in the Greater Detroit area today in a display of support for their leader, James R. Hoffa, and anger at the U.S. Supreme Court decision that may send him to jail.

Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, warning that the proposed 24-hour walkout would cripple Detroit, appealed by telephone and telegram to Hoffa to intercede.

Hoffa was in Chicago on union business but pledged to fly to Detroit to try to quell the uprising by Detroit's 43,000 teamsters if it failed to dissolve, Cavanagh reported.

A Hoffa aide said that while the strike was in sympathy with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Hoffa himself was upset by it.

"Hell no, we're not happy," the aide said. "We're going to have to try to get them back to work."

During the morning, the walkout appeared to be spotty, with some terminals reporting they had been unaffected. But work stopped at other terminals.

There were unconfirmed reports that other cities might be similarly affected, but truck traffic appeared normal today at major terminals in other states.

The Teamsters revolt broke out Wednesday night in what had been scheduled as a routine business meeting for Teamsters Local 299, Hoffa's home local.

A motion from the floor brought the 3,000 members at the meeting shouting and voting almost unanimously in favor of a 24-hour work stoppage, starting at midnight.

The Supreme Court ruling that angered the truckers upheld a jury tampering conviction and eight-year prison sentence given Hoffa in Nashville, Tenn., in connection with his trial on conspiracy charges.

Charlie Wilson, a steward, said the union couldn't afford to lose Hoffa to jail.

"If he does (go to jail), I say we don't work," Wilson said.

SHUT PLACE DOWN

"They just shut the place down," an official of one carrier said, "just pulled everybody off the job at midnight. They said those on the road could come in, but nobody else could come out."

Another company reported all of its 80 men due to report at daybreak had called in sick.

The walkout, while constituting an unauthorized work stoppage, apparently is compatible with Teamsters contracts, which usually forbid reprisals against wildcat strikes during the first 24 hours.

Hoffa is still president of Local 299 and is entitled to a $20,000 annual salary, which he has waived in recent years.

The union leader remains popular with his men.

U.S. Justice Department Says Kennedy Banned Some Methods

WASHINGTON (AP)—As U.S. attorney-general in 1962, Robert F. Kennedy issued a private directive to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and other justice department officials that certain investigative means were not to be used, the department said Wednesday night.

The department, in response to queries, declined to discuss the specific contents of the directive except to say that it was written in broad terms.

Kennedy, now a Democratic senator from New York, has exchanged statements with Hoover in a dispute over whether Kennedy had authorized Hoover to expand the use of electronic eavesdropping devices.

Kennedy said he didn't authorize use of "bugging" and didn't know it was being done. Hoover said Kennedy not only knew about such practices but had indicated interest in getting better electronic equipment to do the job.

Recent decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court have placed in jeopardy many federal convictions based on eavesdropping and wiretapping.

'Bugging' Is Explained

VANCOUVER (CP)—Private detective Angus Macdonald, a former Vancouver city police drug squad officer, told the royal commission on bugging Wednesday about some of the bizarre devices used to eavesdrop on people electronically.

The inquiry, under former county court judge R. A. Sargent, was called after bugging devices were found at a labor union convention last month.

Evidence has been given that Pat O'Neal, a organizer for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, paid another private detective to bug hotel rooms occupied by delegates to the convention of the rival Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Mr. Macdonald told the inquiry he was hired by the Canadian union to de-bug hotel rooms, and hired later to de-bug the union's headquarters in suburban Burnaby.

He explained he had one of the "better collections" of bugging and anti-bugging devices, and that many are sold on the open market to detective agencies and police forces.

While he was on the force, he said, he used to make his own equipment. "The sergeant didn't take any notice—just as's I got convictions," he said.

One of his gadgets, he testified, is briefcase size, and by concealing it and hooking it to a telephone line with a fine wire he could tape and record both sides of conversations. He said it was activated by picking up the receiver and would record for eight days.

Among his other equipment was a combination microphone-transmitter the size of a sugar cube, with an effective range of about two blocks.

He said he has "about two" of these, and a special AM-FM receiver for them made up "by a man in Richmond." Richmond is a Vancouver suburb.

With the drug squad, he used hearing aids to bug at a distance of 150 feet and a "spike" microphone that could be pushed into a wall and record. There was also a transmitter that could be carried to scramble voices in a crowd.

"This is to prevent people from bugging you," he said. "California call girls use it."

The pride of the collection, he said, was a $1,000 bug that could be connected to a phone thousands of miles away.

HIT RIGHT NOTE

The bug could be hooked to a phone in Florida, and would be activated by a long-distance call from Vancouver, during which certain note on a harmonica would be struck. The note would activate the bug, which would then record all incoming and outgoing calls.

Representatives of the British Columbia Telephone Co. also testified at Wednesday's sitting of the commission.

Gordon F. Macfarlane, the company's chief engineer, said the company may seek a tariff amendment that would enable it to tighten up on bugging devices.

He said that under no circumstances did the company condone or assist in wiretapping and that this applied to the city police and the RCMP.

Earlier, Commissioner Sargent ruled the tape recordings made at the labor convention will be made public.

He said legal counsel at the inquiry and members of the press will be allowed to listen to the tapes.

The commissioner made his decision after a lengthy argument from John Laxton, counsel for the Canadian Union, who submitted that the inquiry's terms of reference did not give the commissioner the power to hear the tapes.

The inquiry continues.

Black Watch Praised

PARIS (CP) — A Canadian battalion was singled out for special praise during defence discussions at the three - day NATO conference.

Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said Norway's defence minister, Otto Grieg Tidemand, praised the 2nd Battalion, Black Watch, for its excellence and highly-specialized training during the NATO mobile force exercise in northern Norway last February.

The 2nd Battalion, stationed at Camp Gagetown, N.B., formed part of an integrated effort, with the RCAF's Air Transport Command and the Royal Canadian Navy taking an active part in the troop and equipment movement.

Hellyer has offered to double the Canadian commitment to the mobile force by offering an additional battalion. This offer now is under active consideration by the military authorities, Hellyer said Wednesday.

Hellyer added that NATO ministers reached "substantial agreement toward the goal of common funding of exercise for this force." He described this as a "very significant achievement" that could increase the number of exercises for the force "once the agreement is completed."

Record Not Received, MD Says After Prisoner Dies in Hospital

KINGSTON (CP) — Dr. William Amodeo, physician at Kingston penitentiary, Wednesday criticized Toronto's Don Jail for lack of "proper and sufficient medical facilities."

Dr. Amodeo was testifying at an inquest into the death of Albert Poirier, 53, a penitentiary prisoner who died Nov. 18 in nearby Canadian Forces Hospital of cirrhosis of the liver.

"From his own statements, he (Poirier) had been ill for several weeks before being transferred from the Don Jail to Kingston penitentiary," Dr. Amodeo said.

"It was obvious he had been suffering from intestinal bleeding for some time before entering. But we received no medical record, diagnosis or treatment indicated for him. It appeared to us on July 5 his condition had been present for some time."

Dr. Amodeo said Poirier entered Kingston July 29 after having been confined to the Don Jail since Oct. 13, 1965. Poirier was serving five years for trafficking in drugs and was an admitted drug addict.

The doctor said Poirier's was not an isolated case.

"More than several prisoners from county jails are admitted to prison in very precarious medical position and we do not get medical records on them unless they have tuberculosis or are suspected of having it."

The jury agreed with Dr. Amodeo's diagnosis and ruled death was caused by cirrhosis of the liver.

It recommended that on the basis of medical attention presented by Dr. Amodeo that "all medical documents should accompany the prisoners when they are admitted to penitentiary."

Local Firm At the Top In Housing

A local construction firm has reached new heights in its building program — about 7,000 feet near the top of the Swiss Alps to be exact.

Maurice Rollins Construction built a home in Switzerland in the mountain village of Meinfeld, 150 miles southeast of Zurich.

The company is also building homes in England, France, Belgium and Holland. Negotiations are underway in other countries as well.

And just to prove it's a small world, one of the men Mr. Rollins was working with in Europe, the Federal Department of Trade and Commerce's Belgian representative, living in Bruxelles, is a former Belleville man, Donald Holton. Mr. Holton's family lived on Charles St. and he was educated in Belleville schools.

Trans-Canada Says Proposal Same

WASHINGTON (CP) — Recommendations to dismiss its $200,000,000 U.S. project are "frivolous on their face and should be denied summarily," Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. told the Federal Power Commission Wednesday.

Trans-Canada said undertakings given recently to the Canadian government on the project, designed to feed more Alberta natural gas via the U.S. to eastern Canada and U.S. export markets, leave its application entirely unchanged.

It said the application should be restored to the presiding examiner for a "prompt decision."

Its submission was aimed at four others presented Monday — from staff counsel of the commission, coal interests, the Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha and the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. of Kansas City.

Hearings on the Trans-Canada application began last April but were suspended by the presiding examiner when the Canadian government announced Aug. 25 it would not approve the export of the necessary gas to Trans-Canada as its project stood.

Subsequently, after certain Trans-Canada undertakings limiting the amount to be carried to Ontario and Quebec via the U.S., Canadian approval was given.

That left the commission with the task of deciding whether to let the presiding examiner carry on with preparing his nonbinding recommendation to it or whether to order the application dismissed.

The brief from coal interests and that of staff counsel George Lewnes, a strong critic of the Trans-Canada plan, asked the commission to reject the application. That act would leave Trans-Canada, already well behind in its original plan to deliver more gas to expanding Ontario markets by last Nov. 1, no recourse but to make a new application, its fourth since November, 1964.

The plan calls for Alberta gas to be delivered to Northern at the Manitoba border while Northern would supply Trans-Canada in Ontario with American gas.

Lewnes accused Trans-Canada of "culpable misrepresentation" and prevarication and asserted the "parties have completely transformed their project (not merely modified it) and have thereby effectively closed the door to a consideration of the pending applications on their merits."

Much of the Lewnes case was based on figures for gas volumes cited before Canada's national energy board and here.

He contends for one thing that the agreement with the Canadian government means another 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily to be exported to the U.S.

Trans-Canada denies this. It says also that Lewnes erroneously draws conclusions from a paper submitted to the national energy board clearly marked "for study purposes only." That document does not represent final official gas volumes, Trans-Canada say.

U.S. Girl Flown to Toronto

Allyson's Hope Is Christmas Gift of Life

TORONTO (CP)—Five - year-old Allyson Burleson is pretty used to hospitals. She has spent most of her life in them.

This year Allyson — flown from her home in San Jose, Calif., to be operated on for a heart defect — will probably spend Christmas in Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

She is given a 50- to 80-per-cent chance of recovering successfully from an operation to cure the heart defect, which is known as transposition of the great vessels. If not cured, the ailment increase disability and causes early death.

In San Jose, Allyson's four brothers and sisters—ages 12, 10, six and eight months—will for the first time be away from their parents for Christmas.

George Burleson, 32, and his wife, Frankie, 30, made the trip to Toronto with Allyson aboard a United States Air Force jet plane Tuesday.

"The other kids felt badly until we told them that for the first time there's hope for their little sister," said Mr. Burleson, a navy aviation electrician's mate at Moffett Naval air station. "They're with relatives, but we hope my mother will be able to get them all together for Christmas."

"Next year should be different," he said. "I don't want to go home until I can take Allyson with me."

Dr. William T. Mustard, Toronto heart surgeon, is to operate on Allyson within five day . He id to visit her for the first time today.

"Allyson has settled down nicely," Mr. Burleson said. "She has taken over the hospital's toys and is chattering away to her roommate, another little girl."

"She's up and walking around, and complaining about the needles they have given her. The Peanut is pretty used to hospitals, though; he's spent most of her life in them."

Allyson and her parents arrived in Toronto in a U.S. Air Force DC-6 Flying Hospital, normally used to transport wounded military personnel from Vietnam to American hospitals. Because the conditions created by flying were dangerous to the little girl's condition, three nurses and four other medical attendants accompanied her on the eight-hour flight.

"They told us we'd have to get her up here fast because her blood was getting thicker and she could lapse into a coma unless something was done fast," Mr. Burleson said.

"She feels much better after a fast plane ride," said Mr. Burleson. "The only thing she regrets is that there's no snow.

She has never seen it."

Allyson started kindergarten this year, but she tires quickly, her father said. "It frightens the teachers when her circulation slows down and she starts to turn blue. She's never been able to play strenuously like the other children."

"If she gets well, what a lovely Christmas present it would be," he said. "She's a little scared. She doesn't like to be alone, but she wants to get it over with so she can ride a bicycle."

Dr. Mustard, 52, first reported the operative technique he will use on Allyson in 1964. It involves redirecting the flow of blood inside the heart by sewing in an artificial baffle. This counteracts the defect, in which the aorta and pulmonary arteries are reversed, and turns the "blue baby" a normal pink."

MRS. J. F. KENNEDY

Jackie Admits Law Suit "Horrible"

But Claims Book Tasteless, Distorted

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy says she is prepared to relive her grief and shock after the assassination of her husband in order to block publication of a book about the tragedy.

She admits the prospect of going to court is "horrible."

The book, which the Kennedy family at first had authorized, is Death of a President, by William Manchester. It describes the assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas, Tex., Nov. 22, 1963, and the events in the days immediately afterward.

Mrs. Kennedy calls parts of the book "tasteless and distorted" and says:

"As horrible as a trial will be, it now seems clear that my only redress is to ask the courts to enforce my rights. . . "

Her lawyers said they are preparing papers seek a temporary injunction to stop the book's publication and will file them in two or three days.

Summonses already have been served on Harper and Row, book publishers, and Cowles Communications Inc., publishers of Look magazine.

The magazine paid Manchester a reported $650,000 for the serial rights to his book and has scheduled publication of the first article for Jan. 10. Harper and Row plan to bring out the book next April.

Mrs. Kennedy's statement about the book mentioning "inaccurate and unfair references to other individuals" and the impending lawsuit may throw some light on reports of friction between the Kennedys and President Johnson. It was supposed to have started on the plane that brought Kennedy's body from Dallas to Washington after the assassination.

To support Mrs. Kennedy's contention that Manchester's book violated the terms of the agreement under which it was written, this and other episodes may be aired.

Manchester said: "I have confidence in the book. I think it will stand on its own. I ask only that people give it a chance."

William Attwood, editor - in - chief of Look, issued a statement Wednesday night saying cancellation of the scheduled publication now would amount to "censorship of history." He said Look intended to go ahead.

Harper and Row said they had made four "substantial" revisions to the book at the request of Mrs. Kennedy and other members of the family.

After the first series, the firm said in a statement, the Kennedy's officially notified them "members of the family will place no obstacle in the way of publication."

A source close to Mrs. Kennedy gave this version of the events that led up to the dispute:

"Early in 1964," he said, "it became apparent to Mrs. Kennedy and other members of the family there would be 'sensational' versions of the assassination."

The source said a "memorandum of understanding" spelled out the terms under which Manchester, selected by the family, would write the book. It was signed by Senator Robert F. Kennedy and William Manchester.

It is dated March 26, 1964, and contains 11 clauses. The Kennys consider two of these have the immediate bearing on the case.

One reads: "The completed manuscript shall be reviewed by Mrs. John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy and the text shall not be published unless and until approved by them."

The other reads: "The book may not be published before Nov. 22, 1968, unless Mrs. Kennedy designates a prior date and shall be published a date thereafter as shall be mutually reasonable to the contracting parties."

Mrs. Kennedy, the source continued, then gave Manchester two long interviews in early 1964.

"She was in a state of grief, of course," the informant said. "She was not self-censoring but relying on his agreement not to publish anything that would be offensive to her.

"The material is offensive in that it delineates her feelings during that period. No woman would want these things disclosed to the world."

In his foreword to the book, Manchester notes that Mrs. Kennedy suggested he write the account "of the tragic and historic events in Texas and Washington 10 weeks earlier."

"Neither Mrs. Kennedy nor anyone else is in any way answerable for my statement research of this narrative," Manchester says in the foreword. He also stated in part:

"I could not dilute my questions and still be faithful to my task, and over half the subjects experienced moments of emotional difficulty. Often, I found that a principal figure had thrust his memories into a remote corner of his mind. Bringing them out was agonizing, almost unendurable."

Community Holds Shower For Couple

Last Friday evening Melrose Community Hall was filled to capacity when residents of the area gathered for a community shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Clarke (nee Nancy Lou Middleton) on the occasion of their recent marriage.

The first part of the evening was spent playing cards, after which an address to the young couple was read by Mrs. Charles Wood. Master of ceremonies during the course of the evening was Mr. Tom Thierbeck, who on behalf of the community presented the honored guests with a sum of money.

Both Nancy Lou and Lyle suitably replied expressing their thanks and appreciation.

Library Board Holds Meeting

MARMORA — At a meeting this week of Marmora Association Library Board, the chairman Howard Bleecker, outlined the procedures which had been completed to establish the present existing association library as a public library operated by the municipality.

A by-law has been passed by the Village Council, and the Director of Library Services in Toronto has been informed, as well as the Regional Library Board in Peterborough. After this change at the end of the year, the library board will consist of the reeve and four members to be appointed by the Council. Assets of the present library will be audited at the end of the year and publishbed in the local paper.

For consideration at the beginning of the year will be the relationship of books in school libraries with reference to juvenile books purchased by Marmora Public Library.

It was agreed that the library will be closed the Saturday preceding Christmas, and the Saturday before New Year's Day.

Successful Living

Living One Day at A Time Tremendous Secret of Success

DORIS CLARK

One Day At a Time

Dear Readers: Newfoundland's "News and Views in Welfare" contributes this gem:

Yesterday, Today
And Tomorrow

There are two days in every week about which it is useless to worry:

One is yesterday with its mistakes and cares, its faults and blunders.

The other is tomorrow. It, too, is beyond our control. Tomorrow's sun will rise either in splendor or behind a mask of clouds; but it will rise.

That leaves today; and usually our present trials are easier to bear than remorse for what happened yesterday, or dread of what tomorrow may bring. Let us, therefore, journey but one day at a time.

Anonymous

To which I would add:

. . . To live one day at a time is a tremendous secret of success. Just rub out all the tension that goes with tomorrow's expectations, and all the regrets about yesterday's less-than-perfect performance. Live in a day-tight compartment.

The mind and heart find themselves gloriously free to give today all you've got. And that is plenty! — Doris

Dear Doris: Here's another remedy for Jimmie's onion fingers. Simply run your fingers up and down a stainless steel table knife held under cold running water and the onions disappear. It works for me. — Shirley.

Dear Shirley: Sounds like magic. If I didn't know you personally I'd suspect witchcraft.

Dear Doris: I am 14. I have a boy friend also 14 whom I shall call Mr. X. He is a farm boy, and can only get into town on Saturday with his parents. This afternoon I found out there are two other girls that have a crush on Mr. X. They are going to try and take him from me.

Mr. X has asked for a date this Saturday, but I have an appointment to baby sit and had to refuse. I am afraid he will now ask one of these girls for a date on Saturday. These girls are the school's biggest flirts.

I am afraid that if he goes with either one of them, Mr. X is going to be hurt when he is dropped like a hot potato for another boy. — Worried and Feeling Helpless Against the Forces of Evil.

Let him go. A boy has to get experience to really appreciate sterling characters like you, a girl who is not too busy to take on some babysitting of a Saturday night.

Steamed Date Pudding With Sauce

On November 23rd I gave here my recipe for a rich plum pudding, but plum puddings are too rich for some appetites.

As a compromise, but still steamed pudding idea, I have made a Steamed Date Pudding. I will give it to you today and add excellent sauces for festive flavor.

STEAMED DATE PUDDING
(No suet)

1 cup dark brown sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 egg
½ tsp. rum flavoring or vanilla
1¼ cups sifted all - purpose flour
4 tsps. single-acting baking powder
½ tsp. salt.
1 cup milk or apple or orange juice
1½ cups chopped pitted dates -
¾ cup chopped nuts

Cream together sugar, butter or margarine. Beat in egg and vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt and beat in, alternately with the milk or juice, one-third of each at a time. Stir in dates and nuts. Butter a pudding mould. Do not use one with fancy embossing or this pudding will not turn out neatly. Cover closely with foil or parchment, tied on. Steam two hours, having water come half way up sides of bowl. Serve hot with -

Clear Lemon Sauce

Mix together in a saucepan 1 tbsp. cornstarch, 1-3 cup brown sugar and ½ tsp. salt. Stir in ¾ cup boiling water and cook stirring until thickened and boiling. Remove from heat and stir in ¼ cup lemon juice and 1 tbsp. butter. Serve hot. Lovely over any steamed pudding —plain or fancy.

Or serve Steamed Date Pudding (above) with -

Hard Sauce

Beat until pale and light ¼ cup butter. Add ½ tsp. salt, 1½ cups unsifted icing sugar, ¼ to ½ teaspoon almond flavoring and, if desired, 1 tbsp. brandy or rum and beat until light and airy and smooth as velvet. Pile on slightly ice small shallow bowl peaking up the top with fork tip. Sprinkle with nutmeg, if desired, and chill until hard. Plum "Pudding given here November 23rd.

Clothes Line Used for Art Display

Dear Susanna: Bringing school work home for us to see is so important to our little moppets, and if we save the art, etc. and put it on display, what a thrill!

But, since we have five young ones, I can hardly have papers all over the house. Hope you appreciate how well our solution is working out.

My husband strung a clothes line across one clear wall of the kitchen for me (right against it, and nowhere near the stove of course) and I snapped a colored clothes pin on the line for each child. In this way the precious work is preserved.

Oh, one can, can one. No matter how slyly you say it, it still sounds to me like sneaking out the bottom pieces of work while those unsuspecting little kids aren't around. TSK, TSK. — Susanna.

Dear Susanna: Two uses for everything today.

Gift Wrap Parcels at IODE Meet

MARMORA — Mrs. G. J. Melkiejohn, past regent of Marmora Chapter, IODE, was hostess Thursday evening at her home for the annual Christmas party for members of the Chapter and guests.

A delicious smorgasbord meal was enjoyed by candlelight in the cozy atmosphere of the festively decorated living room.

During a short business meeting presided over by regent, Mrs. Mel Borland, 50 IODE calendars which include Canadian historical drawings were distributed by educational secretary, Mrs. Don Merrett, for sale. Some of these will be donated to local schools.

A donation of $10 from the Chapter was acknowledged by the newly-formed Crowe Valley Land Rangers.

Regarding provision by IODE of $50 for Christmas Cheer, it was decided that this money should be spent at the discretion of the executive and convener for services at home and abroad, Mrs. Jack Reynolds, after discussion with members of the local Legion.

Letter of appreciation was received from District Field Secretary of the Institute for the Blind for the efforts of Marmora Chapter in collecting $411.27 in the canvas for the blind.

Mrs. James Park agreed to represent the IODE on the Centennial Craft Show to be held March 3, 1967.

There were several humorous contests organized by Mrs. Jack Jones, and while the gift-wrapping of toys for Christmas cheer took place, Mrs. Gordon Bennet supplied special Christmas music, concluding a happy party.

"It's to sit on my husband's desk where his boss will see it!"

Ann Landers

One Hubby Shuns Jobs, Another Is Too Eager

DEAR ANN LANDERS: One of the things I remember about my husband before we were married is that he was always so handy around the house — his mother's house that is. He fixed everything from her sewing machine to the septic tank. Single-handed he built a tool shed for his dad.

We have been married six years and I can't get him to do a solitary thing around here. We bought an old house at a very good price with the understanding that he would fix it up. What a fool I was to believe him. Everywhere I look I see things that need to be done.

ANN LANDERS

Right now I am aggravated because the back door doesn't close properly and there's a 30-mile gale blowing through the kitchen. I've been asking my husband to fix it since June.

Is there a solution that I don't see? — STYMIED.

DEAR STY: Please read the next letter and maybe you'll feel better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am married to a man who is in the insurance business and we can well afford to hire repairmen when something needs fixing around here. My husband, however, has the notion that he is a mechanic, a carpenter and a master plumber. Most of my appliances are no longer working because of his botched-up handiwork. Every single faucet he has "fixed" worked before he monkeyed with it. He has spent a fortune on tools and new parts and nothing he puts together is worth a nickel's worth.

Any advice? — WIFE OF A LUMMOX.

DEAR WIFE: Keep quiet and call in the repair squad after your husband has had his fun, because this is what he is doing. And it's not a bad hobby when you consider what some husbands find for recreation.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been keeping company with a certain boy for over a year. Eight months ago a Marine stationed in Viet Nam wrote to our local newspaper asking for mail from his home town. I wrote to him and we have been carrying on a lively correspondence ever since.

My boy friend read the first letter I received from the Marine and asked me to stop writing him. I have not mentioned the Marine since and I'm sure he thinks I followed his instructions.

Now the Marine writes that he will be home next month and of course he wants to take me out. I am dying to go out with him, but I love my boy friend and I know he would never forgive me if my dating should slip. I plan to be married in a couple of years and I don't want to damage our relationship.

You might say I want to eat my cake and have it, too. What is your advice? — CRAZY MIXED-UP KID.

DEAR C. MIXED-UP: You have carefully avoided giving me two important facts. How old are you? Fifteen? Eighteen? Twenty-Four? Also, is this boy friend your first, or have you dated others?

If you are 16 and have never gone out with anyone else, I strongly recommend that you date the Marine and any other young man who interests you. If you are 24, have had other boy friends and now are seriously considering marriage, forget about the Marine and devote yourself to the man of your choice.

WESLEYAN METHODIST WOMEN'S MISSONARY SOCIETY

Brightly decorated for the festive season, the home of Mrs. Robert Coles on Sinclair Street was the setting for worship, at the monthly Women's Missionary meeting of the Wesleyan Methodist Church.

Mrs. Garfield Cooney and Mrs. Pamela Rawlings shared the devotional period in which many well loved Carols were sung and a reading given on the sounds, sight, taste and touch of Christmas.

The president, Mrs. Elmer Votcary took the chair for the business at which a letter was read from the Conference W.M.S. president and the white gift Christmas offering was received for Evangelism around the world.

It was decided to cooperate with the Hastings Manor Women's Auxiliary by sending out birthday cards to the inmates for the month of February; also the members voted to send a Christmas gift to Miss Joan Anglin in Jamaica, B.W.I.

Customs observed by different nationalities at Christmas were given.

Mrs. Rawlings concluded her message with a challenge to the local W.M.S. She said "Wisemen expected Jesus, the king keeper neglected Him, the shepherds accepted Him, the King rejected Him, What is your reaction to Christmas?"

Mrs. Votcary closed with prayer.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Coles assisted by Mrs. Rawlings.

Rotary Club Hosts CNIB Yule Party

Belleville Rotary Club hosted, for the 15th successive year, the Christmas dinner and party for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. This year attendance reached an all time high and everyone enjoyed a delicious turkey dinner prepared and served by the women of St. Andrew's Church in the church parlors. Reverend A. L. Sutherland, minister of St. Andrew's asked the blessing.

Mr. M. Sisterovy, local chairman of the C.N.I.B. presided. At the head table were Mr. and Mrs. Wallis, Mr. Newton Thompson (Rotary), Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Timmins, Mr. and Mrs. K. Wheeler, Mr. M. Sisterovy, Mr. Sutherland, Miss Barbara Bruce (Home Teacher), Mrs. V. Golden, Miss Roslyn Robertson and Mrs. V. Barclay.

This annual banquet is one of the many good works performed by the Rotary Club in the city. Not only do they provide the banquet but also transportation for the guests.

FINE PROGRAM

After dinner carol singing was enjoyed. Miss Evelyn Robertson led in the singing and rendered two solo numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. V. Barclay.

Five pupils of the Elmores Accordion School played several numbers. Mrs. Golden presented two interesting readings, one complete with French Canadian dialect.

Mr. Newton Thompson, in the absence of the president of the Rotary Club, Mr. McCorquodale, welcomed everyone and expressed the pleasure of the Club in giving this party.

Mrs. Vi Waite brought greetings from the White Cane Club. Mr. Wheeler, the new Field Secretary spoke briefly and mentioned that Christmas Eve, on the Broadcast for the Blind, he would be introducing Mrs. Wheeler and his two sons who, with himself, will present the program.

Mr. Timmins, in his new role as invited guest, told of the origin of these annual dinners and their great popularity.

Mrs. Maude Rollins thanked the entertainers and Mrs. Gladys Seldon thanked the women of St. Andrew's for the tasty meal as well as the work involved in decorating the hall and tables for the occasion.

Lady Tweedsmuir Forsakes Politics, Now Director of Steamship Line

MONTREAL (CP) — Priscilla Lady Tweedsmuir has given up politics for business and beekeeping. She came sailing into port from the London and told about her new career.

The former undersecretary of state for Scotland wore a rather special fur coat during her shivery voyage up the St. Lawrence — one that holds memories for Canadians.

A dark, ranch mink, it was presented to her mother-in-law in 1940 following the death in office of Lady Susan's husband, Lord Tweedsmuir, better known perhaps as author John Buchan and one of Canada's most respected governors-general.

"She gave it to me as a sort of repatriation gift," Lady Tweedsmuir explained at a luncheon aboard the liner Franconia where she welcomed visitors as a newly-appointed director of Cunard Steamship Co. Ltd. "It kept me lovely and warm right across the Atlantic."

The slim, elegant blonde was travelling without her husband or three daughters on what she called "my briefing trip" to Cunard offices first in Montreal and then New York.

THROUGH WITH POLITICS

Defeated in the last British election after 20 years as the Conservative member of Parliament for South Aberdeen, the 51-year-old Scotswoman says she is out of the political limelight for good.

"I thought to myself, 'It looks as if the Labor government is in office for a good, long term; I'll just call it a day.'"

The Cunard directorship — she is the first woman appointed to the line's board — was one of several offers that dropped in her lap following her electoral defeat.

She also sits on the board of a security firm and "I keep bees."

"It was just a hobby when I sat in Parliament but after I lost my seat I bought 10 hives and then 16 more. Now I make a profit selling honey."

Quiet spoken but definite in her manner, Lady Tweedsmuir says she regards her job with Cunard as much more than a formal appointment or a bow to the shipping line's large percentage of woman passengers.

MARRIED AN OFFICER

"I should hope that after 20 years representing both men and women in Parliament, no one would try to treat me that way. I'm looking and learning and hope to be of real use."

Born Priscilla Jean Fortescue, the daughter of an army brigadier from Aberdeenshire, she learned fluent French and German during her father's many postings abroad.

Her first marriage was to an army officer and her eldest daughter was born in Cairo "where I looked at the Egyptian rulers and decided I wanted to become an archeologist."

But when her husband was killed in 1944, the widow with two young daughters decided to do something different to forget her past and plunged into a hopeless contest as the Conservative candidate for North Aberdeen.

In 1946 she fought South Aberdeen and to her surprise, won the seat she was to hold for the next 20 years.

It was in Parliament that she met Lord Tweedsmuir, a businessman and writer who sits in the House of Lords.

He encouraged her career through 1960-61 when Lady Tweedsmuir sat on the British delegation to the United Nations and in the last Conservative administration when she held posts in the education and home offices.

CLASHED WITH BARBARA

"It wasn't always easy even with his help. I'm a woman has to work a little harder than a man to get anywhere."

Working harder meant a brief spell as a weekly columnist on political affairs, Scottish television appearances and "hammer and tongs arguments" across the floor of Parliament with Barbara Castle, Labor's minister of transport.

"We used to disagree very frequently about women's rights. She would argue that special positions must be reserved for women on boards and committees. I insisted such seats should only be won on merit."

Still active as a party organizer, Lady Tweedsmuir now will spend most of her time alternating between her Scottish home "where I do all the cooking," and board meetings in London.

She hopes her new position with Cunard will mean a good deal of ship travel, apart from regular business trips with her husband and a planned voyage to Canada next year to attend the 1967 Montreal world's fair.

Water-management Proposed for Lakes

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—The Great Lakes commission approved Wednesday a suggestion for a water-management agency for the Great Lakes waterways system.

The proposal, endorsed at the opening session of the commission's two-day annual meeting, would band together eight states, two Canadian provinces and the Canadian and U.S. federal governments.

The agency would co-ordinate regional activities and fill voids in areas not now covered by the states or provinces, said State Secretary Edgar D. Whitcomb of Indiana, commission chairman.

The commission is an advisory agency, without regulatory powers. A management agency, if eventually authorized by all governments, would have control over the uses of Great Lakes water.

Creation of such an agency could take years.

The commission re-elected Whitcomb as chairman and Mrs. Alice Wee-chairman Ohio State Representative Robert E. Stockdale.

Stolen Car Operation Uncovered

MONTREAL (CP)—Police in the Maritimes and Hamilton, Ont., have combined with Montreal police to smash a stolen car ring.

Lieut. Rejean Cadieux, head of the Montreal stolen car squad, said Wednesday "we expect more arrests."

Joe Mae, operator of a Moncton, N.B., service station, was arrested Tuesday on a Montreal police warrant.

His arrest followed three raids Monday by an 18-man RCMP posse headed by Sgt.-Det. Leclerc Theriault of Montreal's stolen car squad in Baiturst, Newcastle and Shediac, N.B.

"They've been operating since the beginning of the year," Lieut. Cadieux said. "They've made between $500,000 and $1,000,000 on this one."

Another member of the car squad, Sgt.-Det. Gerard Belval was in Hamilton for two weeks. Ontario Provincial Police and Hamilton police seized eight cars in the Ontario city.

"We still expect the number of stolen cars we find, just about anywhere, to go up from the 36 we have already," Lieut. Cadieux said.

Government Makes Two-way Effort To Prevent Air Controllers' Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—Negotiations will resume at 3 p.m. today in an attempt to head off a strike of air traffic controllers called for next Tuesday, but the government is proceeding with plans to bring in legislation outlawing the strike.

A strike of the nearly 900 control tower and radar operators who are members of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association would halt all air traffic except for small aircraft able to take off and land without assistance.

Negotiating teams from the CATCA and the treasury board spent 3½ hours in talks Wednesday night before adjourning until today. Revenue Minister Benson stood by in his office, ready to take part in the talks if called.

The government gave notice Wednesday that it will introduce legislation to outlaw the strike, and at the same time said it will ask for extended hours of sitting to debate the bill.

A motion to be introduced today is expected to ask MPs to sit until 11 p.m. on Friday instead of the normal 6 p.m. and to sit from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

CALL FOR NOTICE

The rules of procedure call for a 48-hour advance notice of legislation so the strike bill cannot be introduced before Friday without unanimous consent of all members in the House.

Last week, Gilles Gregoire (Ind. — Lapointe) denied the government unanimous consent to bring in emergency legislation dealing with the West Coast longshoremen's strike.

A motion to change the rules is also expected to be introduced today. It would make it necessary for at least 15 members to oppose the introduction of emergency legislation to prevent the 48-hour notice being waived.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux agreed to an Opposition demand for an emergency debate of the air traffic controllers situation Wednesday.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker accused the government of holding a club over the controllers' heads by threatening to bring in legislation outlawing a strike while negotiations were still going on.

NDP Leader Douglas said the government had no choice but to accept the recommendations set out by Judge John B. Robinson, who was appointed by the government to inquire into the dispute.

Mr. Benson said finally the cabinet would not agree to the controllers' wage demands. He said the wage proposals set out by Judge Robinson would mean a 46-per-cent pay increase for the 900 air traffic controllers.

He said it was never intended that the Judge would recommend specific pay scales. It would upset the entire civil service salary schedule if the Robinson report was implemented.

A trainee under the present scale starts at $4,800 and can move up to a maximum of $9,528. Under the Robinson formula the minimum and maximum would be increased to $5,328 and $11,820.

Spokesmen for the CATCA said the wage rates recommended in the report would mean an average pay increase of between 14 and 17 per cent.

Mr. Benson said the controllers received a 13-per-cent raise on July 1, 1965 and another three per cent on July 1, 1966.

MEANS 46-PER-CENT HIKE

Judge Robinson was proposing an additional 23 per cent which would mean almost 40 per cent in two years, Mr. Benson said.

Judge Robinson said he was surprised at the government's stand that specific wage rates could not be proposed. He said his study of the terms of reference indicated the reverse.

Mr. Benson said the key point in the report that the government finds unacceptable relates to pay comparability with Air Canada despatchers.

Mr. Pickersgill said the government could not treat the air traffic controllers in isolation. Their pay pattern must fit in with rates for comparable categories in other civil service groups.

Negotiations will resume today with J. D. Lyon of Winnipeg, president of the CATCA, heading the controllers' bargaining team. J. D. Love is directing negotiations for the treasury board.

Results of a strike vote released late Tuesday night showed the controllers strongly in favor of strike action. They are scheduled to quit work at 8 a.m. local time Tuesday, Dec. 20.

CRASH SCENE — This is an aerial view of the derailment near Pickering, Ont., Tuesday that forced 200 residents to evacuate their homes. Among the derailed cars is the white propane tank car which developed a leak and threatened the nearby area.

(CP Wirephoto)

Gas Burned Off

Pickering Families Home

PICKERING, Ont. (CP)—The last of volatile liquid propane gas was removed from a derailed tank car Wednesday but a dispute arose over whether it was safe for residents to return to their homes in the area.

Provincial police said today the last of the gas had been burned off late Wednesday night.

About 24,000 gallons of the gas had been pumped from the tank car and the balance was burned off by a flare at the end of a long, two-inch diameter pipe propped upright in a pasture, 50 yards from the car.

Police said about 70 families were evacuated from their homes Tuesday because of the threat of an explosion at the scene of a truck-train crash.

Against the wishes of Reeve Gordon LaVoie, all but one of the families who fled were given permission by Emergency Measures Organization officials to return to their homes Wednesday.

The family of James H. Murdock was warned by the EMO not to return to its house, about 250 yards south of the wreck.

The derailment, in which two died, occurred about 17 miles east of Toronto after a twin-engine CPR freight collided with a loaded five-ton gravel truck.

Truck driver Allan Feeney, 36, of Pickering township and his son Steven, 5, a passenger in the truck, were killed. Mr. Feeney's body was finally removed from under the wreckage early today.

Police said the CPR began clearing away the wreckage and might have the rail line ready for traffic later today.

EARL CAMERON DICKERS

TORONTO (CP)—Earl Cameron, who was replaced as the CBC's 11 p.m. national newscaster early this month, said Wednesday his lawyer is negotiating with the corporation to allow him to do commercials. Mr. Cameron signed a five-year contract Nov. 23, 1965, undertaking to give up all commercials in exchange for a CBC undertaking to retain him as a newscaster on the national news.

Mushroom Growth

France Sets Five-year Limit On Life of New Shanty Towns

PARIS (CP) — The mushrooming shanty towns of France are to be wiped out by official decree, although it's likely to take longer than the five years the government has set as its target.

French authorities estimate that 70,000 persons — mainly immigrant workers from Algeria and Portugal—now live in the sprawling, ugly collections of wood and tin shacks known as "bidonvilles" that have sprouted around several major French cities in recent years.

Nearly 50,000 persons live in the 90 separate shanty settlements around Paris alone. East of Paris, a single bidonville at Nanterre is home for an estimated 10,000 persons, mainly North Africans, while another 14,000, largely Portuguese, are reported living in a shanty town at Champigny, southeast of the city.

Outlining an intensified five-year government program to wipe out the shanty towns, Housing Minister Roland Nungesser wrote recently to regional authorities throughout France that they must attack "with great firmness a state of affairs whose continuation should not be tolerated."

The regional authorities who govern Paris and its surroundings have estimated it will cost nearly 400,000,000 francs ($87,000,000) to buy up land and build housing for the residents of its bidonvilles.

The national government—presided by Finance Minister Michel Debre, who has long campaigned to eliminate the shanty towns — has brought down laws to expand official powers of expropriation, provide temporary accommodation for the dispossessed, boost the public-housing program and make housing loans easier for municipalities.

Debre has announced that immediate public - housing plans are to be expanded by 8,000 apartments solely for people living in the shanty towns.

The problem of the bidonvilles comes at a time when housing is a prime concern for the average Frenchman.

On the one hand there is a continuing and serious shortage of adequate housing in France. Two - thirds of France's housing was built before 1914. A quarter of the population lives in overcrowded conditions. Much of the existing housing, particularly in the country, is still without inside plumbing. Government programs of low-cost housing have not nearly kept up with post-war growth.

On the other hand, many new homes and apartments remain empty for months. A recent study showed that nearly 9,000 new apartments were vacant in the Paris region alone—a quarter of the total built since the beginning of the year and enough to accommodate 40,000 persons.

PRICES TOO HIGH

Construction companies blame a shortage of mortgage money and a sudden den spurt of building, particularly of elegant complexes of apartments going up around the major cities. But potential buyers complain that prices are just too high, that the cost of an apartment has doubled in the last 10 years.

The bidonvilles are a particularly insidious aspect of the whole housing problem.

Spreading like cancerous growths across disused waste land, they generally comprise nothing but shacks built from remnants of wood and metal. Usually there is no electricity, running water or sanitary facilities. Drinking water must be fetched from a nearby tap.

The more enterprising of the inhabitants have opened shack-type cafes and shops and some even "rent" leantos they have built on spare land to fellow emigres.

Authorities say the shack towns are wide open to disease, overcrowding and serious social problems.

When a sudden fire swept through 600 square yards of such buildings at Nanterre earlier this year, causing three deaths, authorities found that 162 persons had been made homeless. Barely two square yards had been available to each person, including the dirt lanes separating the shacks.

HAVEN FOR UNSKILLED

The majority of the shanty-town residents are single men. Many of them, particularly among the Portuguese, are illiterate and unskilled.

They have come to France to find jobs in the building trades, public works and other fields, supporting families back in their homeland. Most of them are here illegally—the Algerians arriving as "tourists" and staying on, the Portuguese sneaking across the Pyrenees from Spain — but the government generally takes no action to deport them because of the shortage of unskilled labor.

Thousands of their country-men as well as workers from Spain and Italy and other countries, have been more or less absorbed into the French community.

But many of the newcomers find it difficult to adapt. For them, the shanty towns provide the advantage of neighbors who speak their own language, cheap rents and a minimum of official interference.

Previous government programs to reduce the bidonvilles brought resettlement for 15,000 people, mostly single men placed in rooming houses. But government authorities report that the residents of the bidonvilles often refuse to move, or else return postalgically to their former homes once resettled.

Since immigrant workers will continue to pour into France to fill the labor shortage, and since the pressure for housing from the existing population is likely to grow, few observers are willing to predict that the bidonvilles will have vanished in five years' time.

Apartments Replace Shanty Towns

This new housing project is typical of the buildings replacing the bidonvilles that had grown up on the outskirts of Paris. The name bidonville comes from North Africa, where Arabs flattened discarded oil cans to use as building material. Although in France the shanty towns are mostly of wood, the name caught on. Variety of School Texts Questioned by Council

Members of Hastings county council would like to hear the reasoning of the Ontario department of education which allows a variation of text books for teaching the same subject in schools.

The observation was made during discussion of a Huron county resolution which asked for more uniformity in school curriculum so as to facilitate students transfers.

The resolution pointed out that in many instances when students transferred from one school to another they found they had subjects to catch up before being allowed to continue in grades they had left.

Stirling Reeve Donald Rodgers, chairman of the county public school consultative committee, noted that the variance in textbooks was usually in English or some other associated subject.

He said that mathematics textbooks were quite uniform in all schools.

Actually, he said, until there was more equality in school accommodation, variances in teaching could be expected. One-room schools could not hope to offer the flexibility of program possible in large schools where specialized subjects were taught.

But Rawdon Reeve Fred Beckett said there was nothing to prevent the same text books being used for particular subjects.

Tudor Reeve Vera McMurray said he read recently where as many as 42 different text books for the study of a single subject were available.

TEACHER WINS AWARD

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto mathematics teacher who considers television vulgar and common has won an international award for an educational TV shows he didn't want to make. Peter Colgrove, 56, who forbids TV in his home, won honorable mention in the Japan Prize contest for two half-hour programs he made for the Metropolitan Educational Television Association.

Ideal Vendors Undergoing Expansion

Construction of a 35,000 square foot plant addition is currently nearing completion and with the present building will increase floor space to about 100,000 feet.

Company officials say the new addition will be used for warehousing with space in the present building remaining used for this purpose to be turned into manufacturing.

The company employs about 110 persons and as new manufacturing gets under way, some additional staff will be required. The company produces automatic vending machines.

Ideal Vendors Ltd., is a division of Eddy Match Company Ltd., and has been operating in Deseronto since the early 1950s. The present plant was built in 1961.

Ford Warns Arbitrary Safety Standards Could Shut Plants

DEARBORN, Mich. (CP)—Henry Ford II warned Wednesday there is a possibility unreasonable safety standards could force the auto industry to shut some plants.

At his year-end review and economic forecast here, he termed some of the 23 safety standards United States automakers are required to build into their 1969 model cars unreasonable, arbitrary, unnecessary and technically not feasible." He did not mention any specific requirements.

The new features must be included on 1968 model cars The U.S. commerce department has until Jan. 31 to publish the safety standards in their final form.

Ford, in a question and answer session, also warned that "the cost of implementing some of these requirements could price us right out of the market."

"This industry is very important to the economy of the U.S.," Mr. Ford said. "If we have to shut down plants because we can't meet some of these requirement, this country is going to be in real trouble."

Ford's comment came as Ford Motor Co. and American Motors Corp. announced they are cutting back production in the next few weeks because of lagging sales.

Chrysler and General Motors earlier announced holiday season cutbacks for the same reasons.

THUNDERBIRD MAY GO

Ford Company let it be known several months ago, when the list of probable standards started to take shape, that Thunderbird might be among those it couldn't produce in 1968.

Ford also said that in response to an administration plea this week the company is reducing planned spending for expansion in the U.S. and abroad by $150,000,000. The company still plans to spend $780,000,000 to modernize worldwide facilities in 1969.

The problem auto - makers face is lead time—the time it takes a car to travel from drawing board to showroom. Ford told a group of New York bankers two weeks ago that lead time for his company is 42 months and in that speech he singled out probable required safety standards as head rests and redesigned dashboards as posing a problem.

He was optimistic that despite current setbacks Ford and the industry will wind up 1968, already the second best year ever, with sales of around 9,000,000 as compared with 8,300,000 last year.

As for sales in the year ahead, Ford said that "if confidence is restored, purchasing power next year should be ample to support car sales of 8,000,000 or more."

"But," he added, "if people still are worried about rising living costs and the possibility of higher taxes, shorter work weeks and layoffs, many of them may put off buying a new car."

Ford said January and February production schedules are being cut by about 22,000 cars to bring stocks in line with present sales rates.

Insurance Agency Also Goes Bankrupt

TORONTO (CP)—Agency Insurance Service Ltd. of Toronto had made an assignment in bankruptcy in a growing list of events following the collapse of Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd.

Agency Insurance, with 8,000 clients, made the assignment Monday and Clarkson Co. Ltd. of Toronto has been appointed trustee.

The company sold insurance from offices it shared with Wentworth Insurance Co. —of Toronto, a company ordered wound up Tuesday by the Ontario Supreme Court. Wentworth is a Prudential Finance subsidiary.

North American General Insurance Co. of Montreal, another Prudential Finance subsidiary, was ordered wound up Nov. 30.

Frederick Funston, general manager of the Canadian Federation of Insurance Agents and Brokers Associations of Toronto, said Wednesday that the Agency Insurance bankruptcy raises touchy legal problems.

An insurance agency is a company that arranges coverage for insurance companies.

CUSTOMER COVERED

"Money paid to agents is the same as money paid to the company — the customer is covered," Mr. Funston said. "Some policies are expected to be cancelled but until they are, the position of the claimant under such a policy would present a problem."

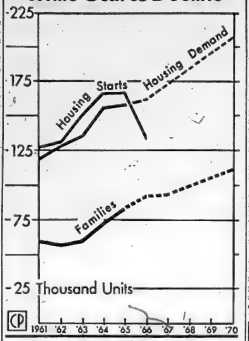
Agency Insurance was incorporated Jan. 5, 1959. J. W. Labbett, president of Wentworth, is president of Agency Insurance and Joseph Benoit Brien, president of Prudential Finance, is vice-president.

Mr. Brien also is a director of Wentworth and North American General.

Mr. Funston said Agency Insurance sold both life insurance and general insurance, arranging coverage with Wentworth, North American General and about 20 other companies.

In its assignment, Agency Insurance listed Prudential Finance as its largest creditor. It owes Prudential Finance $139,854.82 and 24 other unsecured creditors $233,534.08. Receivables are shown as $138,235.84.

Losses to sole and debenture holders in Prudential Finance, which was declared bankrupt Dec. 5 are estimated at more than $19,000,000.



North American General has liabilities of about $2,000,00 and assets estimated at $1,600,000. It had more than 20,000 policy holders.

Wentworth had about 2,500 policy holders.

ISSUE WORK CONTRACTS

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal works department awarded major contracts worth $9,255,000 during November compared with $20,540,000 the previous month. The department said Wednesday the biggest awards were $1,781,000 for road construction on the Ingraha Trail west of Yellowknife and $1,200,000 for ferry terminal buildings at Port aux Basques, Nfld.

Rising Housing Problem

Public Trust Suggested For Times

LONDON (Reuters) — The government was urged Wednesday night to set up a public trust to run The Times, the target of two rival takeover bids.

A suggestion that a public body similar to the BBC should publish the famous 181-year-old newspaper was made in a motion tabled in the House of Commons by six left-wing Labor members.

They complained of "increasing dangers of monopoly" in the British press.

The government's monopolies commission, meanwhile, is considering whether Canadian-born Lord Thomson's plan to take The Times into his mammoth press-and-television empire is in the public interest.

A consortium of newspaper and banking interests claiming multi - million - pound assets is fighting the Thomma takeover proposal, hoping the commission will rule against it and open the way for their rival bid.

Sets Are Not Toys

Walkie-talkie Warning Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — That low-powered walkie-talkie set you bought your kids for Christmas could turn out to be mighty expensive if they misuse it, the federal transport department warned Wednesday.

A department official said in an interview children have used the sets to misdirect taxis and upset construction work on big projects where walkie-talkies are in common use.

Last summer, a search of Lake Simcoe was sparked by a false distress signal sent on a toy set.

The penalty for sending a false distress signal is a fine of up to $500 or up to one year in jail.

The department warned in a statement that the battery powered walkie-talkies, a popular item on toy counters this season, "are not toys and their use as playthings constitutes a breach of federal radio regulations."

Among other things, the sets can cause annoying interference to radio and television reception. The long-suffering department said it gets many complaints on this score.

However, no licence is needed to use the walkie-talkies and they can be legally sold as toys as the power is less than one-tenth of one watt, giving it a range of one-third to one-half a mile.

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1966

Mr. Webster's New World Dictionary defines the word "fan" as a contraption to move or agitate air; to set up a current of air.

Mushmouth's Zwick's Island dictionarist tome has it that a fan sports-wise is a human contraption with two arms, ditto legs, a brain normal?; loyalty unquestioned; vocabulary colorful; allergies?, referees, umpires and opposing players; judgment, questionable at times; politics, home lawmen; emotions, blast or cheer as the situation warrants, and generally is a normal guy or gal in office, shop, factory, or home.

If the statisticians of the current Senior "A" Hockey League gave out points for fan support, the Mo-Hawks sidelines fraternity would be set in front by a half-dozen laps.

When the subject of a Belleville entry into Senior "A" circles, after an absence of a half-dozen years, was first mooted, it was greeted by some with hoots of derision.

Hard-core sceptics said it wouldn't draw the proverbial peanuts. The first question that came to me a few minds was "What's it going to cost the taxpayer?" This was the blasting of those who refused the letter the McFarlands incident and likewise refused to believe that the 1966 entry would be sponsored by 29-30 well-heeled business professional and industrial men.

Many reluctant but well-meaning fans wanted to know "Where will they get the players? We've nothing but some tiring veterans and young talent not up to senior calibre."

Subsequent events have proved that the senior hockey virus was not dead in the veins of city and district fans — just dormant.

It was announced at the first meeting of the club directorate which this reporter attended, that the "break-even point" for the club would be 1,000 fans nightly.

Frankly I was sceptical after hearing the announcement. I recalled the ill-fated intermediate club trained and coached by Lammy Lamirande a few years back and which consisted of 90 per cent ex-McFarlands.

It was a good league — and Lammy had a good club. But John Fan didn't jell. 400 fans was a bumper crop, Saturday, Sunday or New Year's Eve. Average was a little over 300.

But ten teams, ten collections of new faces. Names like Kingston, Toronto, Collingwood, Guelph, Woodstock and the rest caused the old urge to stir in the blood of fandom. After all, it bore a familiar name "senior A".

Opening night, sponsors, management and players had their figurative fingers crossed. To be or not to be. This should be an indication.

It was. Some 2,400 fans turned out in watch the newly-organized Mo-Hawks make their home-town debut. And apparently they liked what they saw.

But management was not convinced. Neither was this department. The crowd exceeded all expectations. Were this greater majority there through curiosity? This, as has been proved, was not the case.

That fandom had put some sort of seal of approval on the Mo-Hawks was evidenced in the attendance at the next game, some 2,100. That proved a part-clincher.

Further evidence of fan approval is seen in mid-week crowds ranging from 900 to 1200. The lowest box office to date, Tuesday night when between 850 and 900 were on hand.

But it should be remembered this is the Christmas season. Wallets are under fire from several sources.

The figures mentioned exceed any and all of those reported from any of the remaining nine clubs in the league. Mo-Hawk fans lead their league by a substantial margin.

A fan wail from Kingston says that in four Sunday afternoon games the average attendance was 818. The average attendance in five week-nights games is 836.

Even the arch-enemies from Belleville fail to draw the Kingston fans from their TV sets or whatever other counter-attractions Roddenville has.

The Mo-Hawks may not win the loop title — but they have the best Rooter's Gallery in the hull kit and kaboodle — so far.

Hot Rod Gilbert, Rangers' Top Gun

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Hawks, Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If goals help Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers forget his ailments, the National Hockey League's top scorer must be feeling mighty healthy today.

Veteran of an off-season operation for a back ailment and nursing a cracked ankle suffered in November, Gilbert scored twice Wednesday night as the Rangers defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-1 to stay in first place.

DENNIS HULL

The right winger now has 15 goals and his nine assists put him in third place among the league's point collectors. He has scored seven times in the Rangers' last four games.

Toronto Maple Leafs squeezed out a 2-1 win over Boston Bruins in another game Wednesday night, while Chicago Black Hawks edged Montreal Canadiens by the same score.

Phil Goyette, second in the points race, and Don Marshall scored the other New York goals. Alex Delvecchio scored for Detroit.

SHACK SCORES

Eddie Shack and Frank Mahovlich scored for the Maple Leafs and Ron Stewart for Boston. Ken Wharram and Dennis Hull scored for the Black Hawks and Bobby Rousseau for the Canadiens.

New York now has a four-game winning streak and 20 points, one more than second-place Chicago and Toronto.

The Rangers led 2-0 at the end of the first period on goals by Goyette and Gilbert. Marshall put New York ahead 3-0 with his 14th goal of the season and 30 seconds remaining. Shack gave the Leafs a 1-0 lead at 9:36 of the second period with his 100th NHL regular season goal. Stewart tied the game for Boston just over a minute later.

UNBEATEN IN 13

The victory extended Toronto's unbeaten streak on home ice to 13 games this season. The loss extended the fifth-place Bruin's winless string to nine games.

The Bruins took only 21 shots at Johnny Bower. The Leafs had 32 at Gerry Cheevers.

Chicago's victory over Montreal was the Black Hawks' third in four meetings this season over the defending league and Stanley Cup champions.

Wharram put the Hawks ahead 1-0 at 9:54 of the first period and Dennis Hull, Bobby Hull's younger brother, scored for the Hawks in the second. Rousseau narrowed the margin to 2-1 late in the second but the Hawks hung on.

Stan Mikita, leading the league in points, picked up an assist on Wharram's goal and increased his total for the season to 39. He has 27 assists.

★ ★ ★

In the second period, Delvecchio cut the lead to 3-1 when he scored early in the third period but Gilbert made it 4-1 just past the five-minute mark of the third.

The Rangers shot 38 times at Roger Crozier. The last-place Red Wings managed 28 at Ed Giacomin.

Mahovlich scored the winner for Toronto with four minutes and 30 seconds remaining. Goyette has three goals and 22 assists for 25 points, one more than Gilbert.

Chicago netminder Denis Dejordy came up with one of his best performances of the season as he stopped 27 of 28 shots. The Hawks had 32 shots at Charlie Hodge.

The Bruins will meet the Red Wings at Detroit tonight in the only scheduled game.

Stan Mikita had one assist against Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night, but big head is the National Hockey League individual scoring parade was cut to 14 points.

Mikita, Chicago Black Hawks' classy centre, has 12 goals and a league-leading 27 assists for 39 points. But Phil Goyette of New York Rangers had a goal and an assist against Detroit Red Wings Wednesday night to take over sole possession of second place in the race with 25 points.

Rod Gilbert, New York's hot ring winger, scored a pair of goals against the Red Wings to move into third place in the scoring. Gilbert has 24 points, including 15 goals, tops in the NHL this season.

Ken Wharram of Chicago, Bobby Rousseau of Montreal and Norm Ullman of Detroit are close behind with 22 points, followed by Don Marshall of New York and Dennis Hull of Chicago with 22 points apiece.

One-Legged Hero

Garden Ga-Ga Over Gilbert

Almost everytime he pulls back his hockey stick and shoots at an opposing goalie, plenty happens.

Gilbert scored twice Wednesday night and took the National Hockey League goal - scoring lead with 15 for the season as the first place New York Rangers ripped sagging Detroit 4-1.

The goals gave Gilbert seven in the last four games—the hottest pace in the NHL. And he's been doing it on one good leg.

"The ankle is still sore," Gilbert admits. "It feels stronger but I have no lateral movement. That means that every time Gilbert turns on the ice, it's a major navigational problem.

He has developed a slight case of bursitis in the joint as a result of a rap across the ankle by Detroit goalie Roger Crozier last month. He went eight games without a goal after the injury but has snapped the slump spectacularly in the last week.

"Am I leading the league," Gilbert asked when someone mentioned his goal total. "That's great but what's even better is that we're first. That's more important."

The Rangers, in the midst of a four - game winning streak, were serenaded by their happy fans with a "We're number one" chant again and the players loved it.

"It was great to hear," said goalie Ed Giacomin. "Having the fans with you is a big boost."

Asked if any trades were expected now that the Howie Young deal had been erased, Detroit manager-coach Sid Abel shook his head.

"No," he said, "there's nothing on the fire . . . not even the club."

Hundreds Hurt

Smoke Bombs Panic Soccer Fans

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Eight injured Liverpool soccer fans were in a hospital today after a panicky crush that felled scores of spectators watching their team get eliminated from the European Cup by Ajax of Amsterdam Wednesday night.

About 200 fans were slightly hurt and 31 were admitted to local hospitals with everything from cracked ribs to broken fingers after smoke bombs started the panic among the crowd of 54,000 at Liverpool's Anfield Road Stadium.

Police led more than 3,000 spectators from the ground for their own safety at the height of the crush. Dozens who had fainted were lifted over barriers from the terrace behind one of the goals.

Peter Robinson, secretary of the Liverpool Club, said some of the panic was caused by perspiration "rising in clouds of steam" from the crowd. Some fans thought the place was on fire.

"It may sound fantastic but we have had those clouds of steam at Liverpool before on big occasions," Robinson said.

All but eight of the injured were released from the hospitals after treatment.

Ajax drew 3-2 with Liverpool and went into the quarter-finals of the Cup of Champions on a 7-5 aggregate score.

Supreme Court

Defers Licences Bid

TORONTO (CP)—An application for a court order directing the Ontario Racing Commission to grant licences for 1967 racing dates has been put over to next Monday by the Ontario Supreme Court.

The action was filed Wednesday by The Jockey Club Ltd. which sponsors thoroughbred and harness horse racing on five tracks in the province.

The commission is a government body that controls racing in Ontario. It has refused to approve dates suggested by The Jockey Club until a dispute over purses involving horse owners has been settled.

There has been no indication of agreement in negotiations by the club with the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association and the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association.

Fielding Records

Old Champs Never Forget!

CINCINNATI (AP)—All the infielders who won fielding honors during the 1966 baseball season had led the National League before in their respective departments.

Official National League averages showed Wednesday that Bill White of Philadelphia fumbled only nine plays out of 1,340 chances taken for a .994 average at first base. He also was top man in 1964. Bill Mazeroski of Philadelphia led the second baseman with a .992 record. He made eight mistakes in 957 changes in 162 games. He was the top fielder at his position in 1960 and 1965.

Bob Aspromonte of Houston, leader in 1964, was 410 for 428 changes at third base for a .964 fielding average and Cincinnati's shortstop Leo Cardenas—who never missed a game—erred on 15 of 740 balls that came his way for a .980 mark. He was the top shortstop in 1963.

Curt Flood of the St. Louis Cardinals didn't make an error all season in the outfield and tied a major league record shared by two other players. Flood now has a string of 185 games without an error.

The Pittsburgh battery of Vernon Law and Jim Pagliaroni earned top fielding marks for pitchers and catchers. Law—whose season record was 12-8—handled 47 chances without an error and Pagliaroni, who batted .235, did a not better with the globe. He missed only twice in 652 changes for a .997.

Philadelphia Phils led the league in fielding with 982 after 113 errors in 6,317 chances taken. Cincinnati was second with .980 and Los Angeles third with .979.

Deadline Tonight

Maris, Maury Top Deals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The inter - league baseball trade deadline in the major leagues is at midnight tonight and the deals that sent Roger Maris to St. Louis Cardinals from New York Yankees and Maury Wills to Pittsburgh Pirates from Los Angeles Dodgers look to be the biggest that will be made unless there is a last day flurry of activity.

Wednesday, California Angels traded veteran first baseman Norm Siebern to San Francisco Giants for outfielder Len Gabrielson. And St. Louis sent Walter Williams, who led the Pacific Coast League in batting last season, to Chicago White Sox along with relief pitcher Don Dennis.

In return, the Cards got catcher John Romano and minor league pitcher Lee White.

The Angels got youth for age in giving up the 33 year-old Siebern for Gabrielson, 26. But Siebern hit .247 last season and drove in 41 runs while Gabrielson hit just .216 and had 16 RBI.

Romano, the key player in the St. Louis deal, hit .221 for the White Sox in 1966 and had 15 homers. Williams, 25, hit .300 for Tulsa while Dennis was 4-3 in relief for the Cardinals.

The two deals brought to 14 the total made in the last three weeks.

Young Caper Hawk Hokum---Abel

NEW YORK (CP) — Howie Young is still a minor leaguer and Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League are crying foul.

Young, playing with Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League, and the Wings are separated by thousands of miles and the Chicago Black Hawks.

* * *

HOWIE YOUNG

The former bad boy of hockey was to have played with the Wings in New York Wednesday night, but the Hawks blocked a complicated trade by claiming prior right for Young's services.

"Why did they wait so long before killing the deal," asked Detroit coach Sid Abel. "This is strictly hanky panky on the part of the Black Hawks.

"They have a special deal with Los Angeles, but it's obvious they are just out to keep us down."

The Wings, floundering in the NHL cellar, could have used Young Wednesday night. They were beaten 4-1 by New York Rangers.

The Howie Young caper all started when Detroit made a deal with the Blades to send two players to Los Angles in exchange for Young, who played for Detroit from 1960 through 1962, compiling a record 273 penalty minutes in the 62-63 campaign.

The Wings offered forward Murray Hall and defenceman Al Lebrun off their Pittsburgh farm club.

But that trade collapsed when an unidentified NHL club put in a claim for Hall or Lebrun. Both were removed from the waiver list and returned to Pittsburgh.

The Wings then started wheeling and dealing again, this time offering Bob McCord from Pittsburgh and Alex Faulkner from Memphis Wings of the Central League.

The Blades said yes, but the Hawks, who obtained Young from the Wings in June, 1963, said no.

Chicago reminded NHL president Clarence Campbell of an agreement they had signed with the Blades two years ago, after selling Young to Los Angles in mid-season of 1963-64.

Campbell explained Hi:

"Chicago has the right of first refusal on any player owned by Los Angeles under agreement the two clubs signed in 1964. This agreement runs through to July 1, 1967."

He said the Blades had no authority to make the trade with Detroit and added his office was not instrumental in barring Young's return.

"We have always kept a string on Young since we sent him to Los Angeles three years ago," said Chicago general manager Tommy Ivan.

"We received some cash in the deal, but the important consideration was getting NHL rights to two players from Los Angeles. These players have not made it in the NHL, so we still have some say where Young plays in the NHL."

Ivan admitted he approved of the transaction of Young for Lebrun and Hall. He objected to McCord and Faulkner and would not say why.

"I don't have to explain why except to the Los Angeles club," he said.

Tiger, Torres Tangle Tonsils

NEW YORK (AP) — "He's whistling past the graveyard."

That was Dick Tiger's comment today to Jose Torres' latest pronouncement on how he expects to knock out the Nigerian in a light heavyweight title fight at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Torres has been stopped in a 14-year pro career. Torres was knocked out in the fifth round by Florentino Fernandez 3½ years ago. Tiger had stopped Fernandez in the sixth round a year before.

The light heavyweight shot is Tiger's first start since he lost his middleweight 160 pounds caught him in the first round," said Torres, the 30-year-old light heavyweight king, when he finished training at Alamesha Lake.

"He may think I'm a pushover, but he not," said Tiger. "I wouldn't be a pushover for a heavyweight."

Tiger, a former two-time middleweight champion, never has been crown to welterweight champion Emile Griffith at the Garden last April 25. He was dropped for the first time in his career and lost the decision.

"I don't have to make 160 pounds this time and I'm a lot stronger," said Tiger. "The finish could be different, too."

Wallbridge, Glen Ross The Winners

MADOC — Wallbridge Warriors took the measure of the Foxboro Lumber Kings 8-5 and the Glen Ross Rebels defeated Frankford Shoemen 8-6 in a postponed Central Hastings Hockey League double header here last night.

The games were those laid over from last Sunday.

Tom Bennett was the big gun for Wallbridge racking up three goals with Rick Denard driving home a pair. Earl Reid, Dennis Gould and Wayne Moore also scored.

Dennis Ray fired home two for the Lumber Kings with Jerry Mann, Larry Marshall and Barry Dafoe accounting for the others.

Go-Go Goalie Could Gig Game I

Many parts.

Dave actually is unique in one respect. He has the honor of being the only woman farm team of a senior "A" hockey club.

A forward in his younger days, Charles won a trifle slow on skates and when his request for an outboard motor was denied he decided to take over the goalie spot.

Fortunate in having a good team in front of him, Charles found himself growing lonesome. He longed for company or at least something to pass away the time.

So he had a tape recorder inserted in one pad and a record player in the other.

Hence his claim of having broken more records than any other goalie of his class extant.

Affiliated with the Mo-Hawks, Charles stands by in case his services are needed. Seriously he is a goalie of no mean ability.

He is thinking of forming his own ice combo, Dave and the Goliaths. They should be the top slingers of the time.

Come day he may be the third pipe in the Mo-Hawks' net.

It should be quite a "gig."

Len Wilson New Member "400" Club

Len Wilson rolled an even 400 in the Men's Commercial "A" League at the Bowl-O-Drome Tuesday night. Len who had an average of 245 started with a strike, took a head pin in the second frame and finished the game with 10 consecutive strikes.

Previous 400 games at the B.O.D. this season during league play included Jim Hultquist 433 in Club Allouette League and Jack Canning 400 in Quinte Classic.

Minor Hockey Results

The Hawks ran away with an 8-2 victory over the Rangers in BMHA midget activity here last night while in the novice class Leafs defeated Wings 3-1 and Canadiens edged the Bruins 3-2.

Bazuk, Mallory and Rupert each counted twice for the Hawks with Buckles and Schwager also scoring.

Watson had two assists with Lebow, Ronata and Bazuk getting singles.

Murray Cresswell and Sled scored for the Rangers.

P. MacKenzie, D. Richardson and T. White counted for the Bruins with Bowers and Richardson getting assists. D. Bland got the Leafs only goal.

Bruce McIntyre's two goals paced the novice Leafs attack with Mike McDonald also scoring. McKay scored the Wings marker.

Ernie Duffy, Ricky Barbeau and Pat Wright were the scorers for the Canadiens with Brain and Barbeau assisting.

D. Powell and Mike Lynch were the Bruins goalgetters.

World Cup Soccer, Aftermath, Dominated 1966 European Sports

LONDON (CP) — English and European soccer gained global supremacy in 1966 but in doing so encouraged forces that could challenge its structure in coming months.

England's World Cup victory last July — with West Germany, Portugal and Russia shutting once-dominant Latin Americans out of the rest of the top places—restored leadership of the world's most popular sport to the founding country and its European neighbors.

But the very success of the eighth quadrennial World Cup tournament—watched by the biggest television audience in history — emphasized pressures for change. Fans once satisfied with second - rate hometown professionals are showing signs of discontent with less than the best. The demand for excellence has rocketed the price for players, further tiltering weaker clubs.

At the same time, North American television interests are showing a hungry interest, especially following the lucrative potential revealed by world-wide World Cup coverage. Current recruiting campaigns in Europe could further tighten the player market and hasten the contraction of European leagues.

The pressures are pointing towards fewer pro clubs competing eventually in a European league, with television supplying centres that lose hometown soccer. TV is likely also to be footing the cottier bill and increasingly calling the tune on the pattern of North American television's involvement in baseball, football and hockey.

World Cup soccer and its aftermath overwhelmed the 1966 European sports program, but other sports showed changing patterns during the year.

East Germany supplanted Russia in the European track and field championships at Budapest, sending the 14-nation field with eight gold medals to Russia's six. The Soviet team competed without four champions in women's events who stayed at home rather than face new sex-determination examinations.

But Russian swimmers never before making much of a splash internationally, dominated the 1966 European championships at Utrecht by winning 13 of the 23 events.

European finesse in the person of Spain's Manuel Santana broke an 11-year monopoly by Australian - American power tennis at the Wimbledon championships in taking the men's title.

But in motor sport, Ford of America finally pried loss Europe's grip on the glamorous Le Mans 24-hour race in convincing fashion, as the first three places to break off the six - year victory string of Italy's Ferrari.

Australian Jack Brabham, a vintage 40 years old, captured the British, French, German and Dutch Grands Prix in a car of his own design and became the first driver to win the world championship in a self - made car. Brabham, champion also in 1959 and 1960, is the first since five-times champion Juan Fangio of Argentina in the 1950s to win the title more than twice.

Garfield St. Auburn Sobers, a handsome West Indian of 29, established himself as the world's greatest cricket player — many experts say flatly the greatest of all time with leading his West Indies team to victory in the summer test-match series against England. A combined counterpart in cricket of baseball's Willy Mays and Sandy Koufax, Sobers averaged more than 100 runs each time he batted, bowled 20 of the 79 opponents retired during the five-match series, fielded brilliantly and managed his side's triumphant tactics.

In boxing, any lingering European heavyweight hopes were dashed in rapid order by a peripatetic Muhammad (Cassius Clay) Ali, who knocked out Britain's Henry Cooper and Brian London and stifled European champion Karl Mildenberger of West Germany with only slightly more effort.

A gentler American, Jack Nicklaus, captured the one major golf title that had been eluding him when he won the British Open against the strongest international field ever assembled for the 105-year-old classic.

Bart Starr Given NFL MVP Award

NEW YORK (CP) — Bart Starr, Green Bay Packers' brilliant quarterback, has been named the Most Valuable Player in the National Football League in 1966 by the vote of a panel for The Associated Press.

A total of 18 NFL players were mentioned in the balloting by a committee of sports writers and sportscasters, three from each of the 12 league cities. Four of the 43 did not vote in this category.

Starr won by a wide margin with 29 votes to six for runner-up Larry Wilson, the St. Louis Cardinals' safety. Don Meredith, Dallas Cowboys quarterback, got four votes.

Starr, who will be 33 Jan. 9, is having his best season in his 11th year as a pro. He has a spectacular 62.3 percentage of completions and a record of only three interceptions in 251 attempts, a 1.2 per-centage.

Dejordy Hot Stick In AHL

ROCHESTER (AP) — Roger DeJordy of Hershey Bears is carrying the hottest stick in the American Hockey League.

DeJordy scored seven goals last week and ran his season's total to 24—best in the AHL. He is tied for fourth place with Dick Gamble of Rochester Americans at 37 points, five fewer than co-leaders Wayne Hicks and Gordon Labossiere of Quebec Aces.

Hershey has five other players among the league's top 12 scorers. Jeannot Gilbert is third with 38 points. Mike Nykoluk sixth with 36, Gene Ubriaco seventh with 35 and Wayne Rivers and Bruce Cline are in a four-way tie for ninth at 29.

Butler Boosts Barons

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland rookie Gary Butler put the Barons ahead 3-2 in the second period with his eighth goal of the season Wednesday night and the Barons went on to win 4-3 over Springfield Indians in an American Hockey League game.

Goals by defenceman Bill Needham and centre Cecil Hoekstra put the Barons in a 2-2 tie with the Indians in the first period, and Butler's shot was the turning-point.

Wayne Schultz scored Cleveland's fourth goal.

Ho-Hum Brewer Again!

WINNIPEG (CP) — Carl Brewer, former defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, is expected to play with Canada's national hockey team this weekend against Russia's B team in Vancouver and Victoria.

Jackie McLeod, the Canadian team's coach, said Wednesday he considered Brewer an official member of the team when manager-coach George Imlach of the Leafs signed his release.

"We hope Brewer's amateur card comes through from Canadian Amateur Hockey Association president Fred Page but even if it doesn't, as long as the papers were sent to the NHL's central registry in Montreal, there will be no problem about his playing for the nationals," McLeod said.

Roland Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Roland, a 1965 all-American back from Missouri who received a big bonus to sign with St. Louis Cardinals, has been named Rookie of the Year in the National Football League by an Associated Press panel of sports writers and portscasters.

Roland won in a close vote over Tommy Nobis of Atlanta Falcons, the two - time all-America from Texas.

In the Cards' first 13 games, Roland accounted for a total of 1,566 yards with his running, throwing or catching. He has scored six touchdowns and has thrown one touchdown pass. He leads the league in punt returns.

Among those receiving scattered support was Karl Sweetan of Detroit Lions. Sweetan, who played with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, stepped into the No. 1 quarterback job after an injury to Milt Plum.

Roland had 18 votes, Nobis 15 and Sweetan three.

The 1965 winner was halfback Gale Sayers of Chicago Bears.

Senator Pouliot Says Hellyer 'Too Lenient' With Landymore

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot has told Rear - Admiral William Landymore that Defence Minister Hellyer was "too lenient" when he fired him and that anyone else would have court-martialed him.

"In our college days, you and I have been taught the old Greek saying that 'before commanding, one shall learn to obey'," the Quebec Liberal senator adds in a letter to the admiral.

The letter, dated Dec. 12, was made public by Senator Pouliot. He was replying to a letter from Admiral Landymore of Dec. 1, accompanying briefs and documents opposing armed forces unification legislation now before the Commons.

Admiral Landymore was dismissed from the services last summer over his attitude on unification. At the time he was chief of Maritime Command. Since then he has waged a vigorous campaign against the program.

Senator Pouliot's letter says the admiral "is overlooking the fact that both world wars have been won by the allied armies under the united command of Marshal Foch and General Eisenhower."

The senator says he approved the dismissal of the admiral by Defence Minister Hellyer.

"My only regret was that he was too lenient. I wonder if you have realized that anyone else would have found it serious enough for a court martial."

School Addition Shelved

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County's public school consultative committee this week shelved the possibility of new buildings for the Picton Public School Board in 1967.

Last July the board received tentative approval from town council to replace the York Street and Mary Street Schools. Both schools are outdated and there is some question, particularly involving the Mary St. School, of their safeness. Nothing tangible could be done until county council's consultative committee submitted its report.

Monday the decision came to postpone further plans, pending further investigation. The committee advised the school board to review the overall requirements of new facilities within the next year, taking into consideration the results of annexation and the possibility of purchasing from Hallowell Township School Board, home economics, shop and auxiliary education.

ANAF Weekly News Notes

The president would have liked to see a few more members out for the nominations last week but there was a fair representation and a good meeting was held. Following is a list of those nominated which the comrades could clip out and use for reference until the election of officers. It is sincerely hoped that every eligible member will make an effort to turn out and vote.

For president, Cdes. George Christopher and Stan Molbourne; 1st vice Cde. Dick Burns (acclaimed); 2nd vice, Cdes. Bill Ford, H. Herrington and Gerry Percy; secretary, Feree Kelly (acclaimed); treasurer, Cec Chapman (acclaimed. Executive, Cdes. Ron Baker, Russ Blaind, Reg Featherstone, Jack Fitzgerald; Hank Ford, Art Hobbs, Percy McTaggart and Don Rushbrook.

The entertainment chairman had a nice box lunch, piping hot, of fried chicken and chips after the meeting.

On Friday evening a good crowd was present and the first turkey rolls of the season were held with approximately 25 lucky people getting a fine turkey without too much expense. Next Friday evening the turkey rolls will be held again immediately after the movie. There will also be rolls held in the downstairs lounge Saturday afternoons and evenings until Dec. 17. These are held to help defray the children's Christmas party expenses so come on down, have a good time, a good chance for a turkey and at the same time help out towards giving the kiddies a good time also.

If you have not done so already and plan to attend, better get your tickets for the New Year's Ball. Not too many left so don't be disappointed.

The sick chairman is happy to report that Cde. Jack Carter is up and around again but is sorry to say that Cde. Fred Armstrong had another attack and is in room 221, RCH, but seems to be recovering. Cde. H. Thibault has been moved to the Kingston General Hospital. Other comrades still in hospital are: M. Phillipe, St. Mary's, W. Ingham, Hastings Manor Hospital Wing, H. McLaurie, room 106, A. St. Pierre, room 232 and J. Cunningham, 245.

The comrades of the Ladies' Auxiliary are busy looking up old patterns and hunting suitable material to make themselves costumes and dresses relative to the 1867 fashions. They have invited the Ontario Command Ladies' Auxiliaries, approximately 20 branches, to a centennial party to be held in the Memorial Hall on Saturday, Jan. 28, 1967, and they are going all out to make it the event of the year.

Knowing their versatility and talents of past parties they will come close to succeeding. It should be a colorful party full of fun and gaiety that all guests will thoroughly enjoy. Good luck, comrades, the unit is behind you 100 per cent.

The next big event is, of course, the children's Christmas party, Saturday, Dec. 17, when old Santa will be there to look after the gifts and goodies for the wee ones. Remember the times: 9 a.m. for surnames starting with A to J and 11:30 for K to Z, and avoid any congestion.

Dolls Are Youngsters' Plaything Now But Not 100 Years Ago

If you think sophisticated fashion dolls have a corrupting influence on little girls, forget it.

Those models of innocence, Victorian children, played with adult-type dolls exclusively. The baby doll wasn't even invented until the beginning of the 20th century.

So says doll collector Mary Moult, owner of 120 examples of the dollmakers craft. Part of her collection is on display at Hastings County Museum for the Christmas season, together with the museum's own examples.

"Not until early in the 1900s did dolls become the universally accepted playthings they are today," says Miss Moult. "Government subsidies of the German china doll-head cottage industry put a doll in every Victorian nursery. Parents bought the china heads and the family dressmaker made sawdust stuffed bodies with leather hands and feet. Wealthier people could afford matching china hands and feet."

Oldest doll in the museum display is a figure of reddish, sun-baked clay made by Indians in Ontario 3,000 years ago. Whether toy or religious object, no one now can tell. Although clay dolls have been found in the graves of Indian children, archaeologists agree most primitive dolls were votive offerings.

"Few dolls of the pre-Victorian era were intended as playthings," Miss Moult says. "Those that survive in museum collections were originally mannequins used by dressmakers to display fashions or were a type of fancy-work project indulged in by idle wives of the upper classes. Doll dressing was a hobby of Queen Victoria and Marie Antoinette."

Three dolls from the city-owned Cooldery Collection of European antiquities have been identified by Miss Moult as bobby dolls of the late 1700s. Six to 10 inches high, they have beeswax heads, hands and feet and wooden sticks to support them when placed about the boudoir as decorative knick-knacks.

They wear their original clothes. Occasionally a lucky little girl of that era might have inherited her mother's dolls as playthings when they became too dusty and faded for display.

Although she owns a few elegant fashion models, Miss Moult has specialized in dolls made since 1830 for children's use.

"Early doll heads of beeswax, papier mache and china were too fragile to be good children's toys," Miss Moult says. "In their search for a durable material, manufacturers came up with composition. This mixture of sawdust, bran, glue and plaster of Paris continued in use until the advent of plastics."

Exquisitely molded doll heads of Parian ware, a smooth unglazed ceramic, were made for a short time between 1860 and 1870. Stone bisque, a rougher surfaced unglazed china, succeeded expensive Parian heads and continued to be made until the early 1900s.

About 1800, a member of the Jumeau family in France set out to produce the most beautiful dolls in the world. Most collectors agree he succeeded, and his products are the most highly prized of all antique dolls.
